New-York Daily Times.

VOL. V. . . NO. 1281. NEW-YORK, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 26, 1855. PRICE TWO CENTS.

New-York Daily Times.

THE GREAT EXHIBITION AT BOSTON

CROWDS OF VISITORS.

Mighty Thousand Persons on the Grounds.

TEN THOUSAND UNABLE TO GAIN ADMISSION.

Display of Working Oxen and Cart-Horses.

GRAND EXHIBITION OF STOCK HORSES.

INTERESTING AND EXCITING RACE.

GENESEE THE WINNER IN 2:25 1-2.

Sir Reddock but no the Killed.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Daily Times.

BOSTON, Thursday, Oct. 25.

My friend, the relative of your own MERIAM, was decidedly fortunate about the weather. This morning broke clear and cold, and soon put the Exhibition grounds in fine order.

At 10 o'clock sixty thousand persons had passed the Gate, and at 3 o'clock over eighty thousand had been admitted. Such an Exhibition and such attendance have never been known before in this country.

Owing to the storm yesterday, which discouraged the programme, the order to-day was changed with a view to closing the Exhibition this week, if there should be no further interruption from the weather.

The Exhibition was opened by a display of working oxen. The display was very fine, but the previous day's rain had so softened the ground that the grist of strength did not show so largely as it would had the ground been more favorable. Seven teams was the heaviest load drawn.

This display was followed by a grand cavalcade of road horses—the finest ever seen. There were five hundred and seventeen horses in the line, and many of them the finest in the country.

The next was a display of stallions of five years old and upwards, in the ring—the most notable feature of which, aside from the fine appearance of the animals was the horse Columbus, twenty-four years old. He went his mile in 2:46, beating the Stockbridge Chief. The Morrell horse trotted with one of his colts and won heats, the colt winning in 2:42.

The American Eagle trotted with the American Star, and beat him easily, in 2:37.

Wild Star trotted with Tiger and was beaten—Tiger winning in 2:36.

Flying Morgan trotted with Morgan Rattler, and won in 2:40.

Marion Boy trotted with Angle Saxon, and won in 2:18.

Lone Star won in three minutes, and discomfited Nancy Clay.

This closed the display of stallions, much to the enjoyment of the spectators.

Next followed the grand race of the day, and decidedly the most interesting that has taken place for many years. It commenced at 3 o'clock, and was open to all horses that had never trotted for money, and free to all drivers.

The following entries were made:

Genesee Star, entered by Mr. CURTIS.
Kate Miller, entered by Mr. MAGE.
Eastern Colt, entered by Mr. HAYES.
Big Jim, of Bangor, entered by Mr. GEO. WOOD.
Molly, entered by Mr. STRATTON.
Genesee, entered by Mr. NORTON.
Young America, of Freethman, entered by Mr. LAYMASTER.
Young Sherman, entered by Mr. SHERMAN.

The race was most exciting from beginning to end. The first heat was won by Genesee in 2:28. He was followed by Kate Miller, and Kate was followed by Red and Young America. The others were far behind, and two of them were distanced.

Genesee won the next heat in 2:25½.

The third heat was won by Kate, by half a head, in 2:27.

The next was won by Genesee in 2:25½, which made him the winner of the race and a prize of $200.

Kate won the second prize easily.

The following is the order in which the horses came to the stand:

Genesee	1	1	1	1	Red	3	2	5	dis.
Kate Miller	2	2	2	2	Young America	4	3	3	dis.

The time at the close of each heat was announced from the Judges' stand and received with tremendous applause by the assembled tens of thousands.

At the close of the third heat an unfortunate accident occurred, but fortunately no person was seriously injured.

BILL WOODRUFF drove Young America, and just as he had passed the Judges' stand his left rein broke, and his horse crowded upon the people, who had crept from their proper position to get a view of the horses. The right wheel hub struck a man and knocked him down. Immediately afterwards some eight or ten who were advancing upon the track were run down, and the wagon was smashed into pieces.

Mr. WOODRUFF was thrown out with great violence but seem none, having sustained only a slight injury to his right leg. The others limped off, declaring they were unhurt.

The horse continued on and ran into the others, damaging all the wagons on the track, but doing no other injury. He was stopped when near the distance pole, and as soon as a new wagon could be procured, the race was concluded, and the day's performance closed.

At 4 o'clock there were ten thousand persons outside the gates unable to gain admission.

Success rejoiceth, and the heart of MARSHALL P. WILDER is glad. MOMOTOMBO.

FROM OUR REGULAR TELEGRAPHIC REPORTER.

BOSTON, Thursday, Oct. 25.

The National Agricultural Exhibition to-day was successful beyond all expectation, the number present being estimated at from 60,000 to 100,000 persons. The receipts were over $30,000. A great many could not get in on account of the inability of the ticket takers to collect their tickets. The Show commenced with a grand cavalcade of gentlemen, between six and seven hundred, making a magnificent appearance.

Then came an exhibition of the various classes of horses—among them, the blood horses Logan, Fashion, and Matchless—and also an exhibition of splendid blood stock. In the afternoon there was a trot, in which eight horses took part, for purses of $300 and $100. Genesee, a New-York horse, won the first prize, and Kate Miller the second. Genesee won the first two and fourth heats. Time 2:28, 2:30½, and 2:42. When the last heat came off, WILLIAM WOODRUFF, of New-York, driver of Young America, broke his rein, and the horse dashed against the rail and into the crowd, throwing his driver and smashing the gig, but he was finally captured without serious harm to any one. The attendance to-morrow promises to be very large.

A STORMY DAY.

PROSPECT OF AN EXTENSION.

MISCELLANEOUS NEWS.

BOSTON, Wednesday Evening, Oct. 25, 1855.

It is not in man to know what will be on the morrow. Yesterday was as fine a day as ever the sun did shine upon, and to-day is as unpleasant as the most fastidious young duck could wish. Soon after I wrote my letter of this morning the weather changed. A clear blue sky was hidden by unwelcome clouds, and rain began to fall as if it intended to atone for the sins of the longest drought that has occurred since the days of Moses. But we have had no drought of late, and at present we are, in Boston, not at all thankful for this prodigious rain. It injures the business of the National Agricultural Society, and whatever injures us in a national point of view, is dangerous to the safety of the Union, and inimical to the well-being of our glorious institutions. Therefore, we have neither occasion nor inclination to appoint a day of Thanksgiving for this very stormy day.

The grounds of the National Exhibition are deserted. To examine stock in such a rain is out of the question; and no respectable horse would consent to make good time over a half-mile course on such a day. Consequently, we are dull. And what is worse, we are likely to continue so, for a gentleman almost as nearly related to the weather as your own MERIAM, informs me that last evening, when the sun set, there were several strips of cloud near the Western horizon, and that as soon as the sun had gone down they gathered together—faced, in fact, for the most disagreeable purposes. He thinks—he knows—it will rain for three days. If it does we must either prolong our Exhibition, or make the Boston merchants pay that twenty thousand dollars they promised in case of a failure in the anticipated receipts of the Society. This, I have no doubt, they would do without a murmur, were it necessary, for I must say, that—so far as I have observed, the people of Boston have shown an interest in this National Exhibition, and a liberality in preparing for it, that exceed anything I have heard known for a like purpose. If the weather should continue unfavorable, the Exhibition will doubtless be prolonged. There are now some three or four hundred cattle, and more than so many horses, on exhibition; and the requirements of the farmers of the country, and, in fact, the interest which the entire people have in such exhibitions, forbid a termination of the Show until the various breeds, and the counter of the Exhibition, have been examined and noted by all the producers of such animals as desire to see them.

The further exhibition of horses has been deferred until the first fine day. In this department, preparations have been made for the finest display of draft horses ever made in this country. There are more than five hundred entries, and among them are some of the best specimens of the best breeds ever before shown. This department will fall in affording important information to those who are interested in this class of horses, and offering beneficial results to the country.

The course of cattle of various breeds is now very large; Devons, Ayrshires, Herefords, Jerseys, Durhams, native, and grades are well represented; the peculiarities and excellences of each, that I have not already spoken of, I will endeavor to give, when a fair opportunity of judging of the merits of these on exhibition offers.

Besides the National Exhibition, we have in Boston an Industrial Fair, which from a somewhat slender beginning, is now extended notice than I can now give.

We have also a few Political Conventions which are of interest. Last evening there was a meeting at Roxbury, of the Liberal Party. The object of course was to increase the chances for the election of Mr. BRACH, the candidate of the Party for Governor. There was a very fair attendance. The attendance from Boston and Charlestown was very large, and the speeches were generally received with favor. Col. WRIGHT, G. W. JACKSON, of the Fourteenth Ward, New-York, and several others, addressed the meeting, and were often enthusiastically applauded. The people of Roxbury had made ample preparation for those from other sections who attended the meeting. Several extensive collations were served, which though of a private character stayed the stomachs of several hundred guests. The most prominent among those who attended to the wants of strangers were Mr. DU BAR and Mr. WM. CROMPTON. The several parties broke up about 12 o'clock.

To-night, there is to be a grand meeting of the Democracy, at Faneuil Hall.

BACHEL is doing splendidly well here. She is at the Boston Theatre, which is generally about one-half filled.

Mlle. FAMBRI is doing well here at Music Hall; Miss E. LOGAN is drawing good houses at the Museum, and HARRY WILLIAMS and wife are doing well at the Howard Athenæum. MOMOTOMBO.

LATEST INTELLIGENCE

By Telegraph to the New-York Daily Times.

INTERESTING FROM WASHINGTON.

THE SEIZURE OF THE BARK AMELIA.

The Three Million Mexican Indemnity.

IRELAND TO BE SAVED FROM THE IRISH.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Daily Times.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, Oct. 25.

The seizure of the bark Amelia, by the American Commercial Agent at Port-au-Prince, was made because she sailed under false papers, and not because she was a filibuster, although known by the authorities here to have belonged to the late Quitman Cuban Expedition.

Mr. HARGOUS had an interview with Secretary MARCY, to-day, relative to the Mexican indemnity. JOHN VAN BUREN, of counsel for claimants, is also here, at GUY's National Hotel, but does not register his name. The speculators fight desperately.

J. ADDISON THOMAS, the new Assistant Secretary of State, arrived at the Department to-day.

The British representative here has discovered a secret circular of the Irish Emigrant Aid Association, whose object is to aid Ireland to free herself from England's rule, now while the latter is engaged in the Eastern War. Britain is seriously alarmed, and beseeches the President to take instant measures to save Ireland from the Irish. S.

THE LUTHERAN SYNOD—CAPT. HARTSTEIN ORDERED TO WASHINGTON—SENATOR TOUCEY, &C.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, Oct. 25.

The members of the Lutheran Synod, in session in this city, yesterday visited the President, and various complimentary speeches were exchanged.

Captain HARTSTEIN, of the Arctic Expedition, has been ordered to Washington.

Senator TOUCEY, of Connecticut, is here as the guest of the President.

Secretary DOBBIN's health has much improved of late.

Government Survey of the Atlanto Canal Route.

Special Dispatch to the N. Y. Daily Times.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, Oct. 25, 1855.

Mr. F. M. KELLEY, who has been for some time in this city, bringing to the attention of the Government the feasibility of a route for a Ship Canal across the Isthmus, has left for New-York.

I understand that the Cabinet have given to the maps of the Survey, made by Mr. KELLEY, more attention than they usually bestow upon such projects, and that the practicability of the measure is deemed to be clearly demonstrated.

It was proposed, I think, that the Government should send a corps of Engineers over the route indicated, for the purpose of ascertaining the correctness of the surveys made by the Engineers in the employ of Mr KELLEY; and that a Government vessel should be employed for that purpose, as was done some two years since, when Lieut. STRAIN made a partial examination of the Darien Route, indicated by GISBORNE and CULLEN.

To this proposition the Government has so far acceded, as to authorize Mr. KELLEY to select one Officer of the Navy and two Engineers from the Army, to whom the Navy and War Departments will give such facilities as may be within their power. The Officers will have leave of absence with pay until their return.

The hope of identifying their names with a project of such magnitude, and of such world-wide importance, will doubtless impel many of our young officers to tender their services for this expedition.

Violation of the American Flag by Mexican Authorities at Campeachy.

NEW-ORLEANS, Thursday, Oct. 25.

The brig J. S. Bethings from New-Orleans, was quarantined for seven days on her arrival at Campeachy, under the pretence that cholera prevailed here. On the night of the 24 inst., during the existence of the quarantine, Colonel ZELINA, a passenger on board the brig, was removed by force of arms from the vessel by the orders of General ULZEA during the absence of the Captain, convoyed on board the Mexican war steamer Cajeca and taken to Sisal. There he made his way to Merida, where he was received with great joy by the populace. This extraordinary conduct of the Mexicans demands an explanation.

Pennsylvania Liquor Law.

PITTSBURG, Thursday, Oct. 25.

WILLIAM BENNETT, convicted yesterday of a violation of the liquor law, appeared in Court to-day and gave bail until the motion for a new trial is decided. The Court stated that all cases under the law will be strictly enforced without regard to persons.

In the case of JAMES SHARPER the Jury to-day rendered a verdict of guilty.

THE AFRICA AT BOSTON.

FURTHER DETAILS OF HER NEWS.

RESIGNATION OF GEN. SIMPSON.

THE BANK OF ENGLAND.

BOSTON, Thursday, Oct. 25.

The Cunard steamship Africa, Capt. HARRISON, arrived here about 6 o'clock this evening. Her mails will be dispatched in the early train to-morrow, due in New-York at 5 P. M.

The following is the latest news:

RESIGNATION OF GEN. SIMPSON.

The London Daily News says:

"We believe there is no doubt that Gen. STRYKER has resigned his command in the Crimea, and has recommended Gen. STEELE as his successor. The Government, however, has decided to accept Gen. SIMPSON's resignation.

PARIS, Friday evening.—The Duke and Duchess of BRABANT arrived here at 4 o'clock, and were received with great ceremony.

Friday's Constitutionnel, speaking probably on good authority, says, that according to a letter from Kamiesch, dated, Sept. 9, it was expected that in two days time the floating batteries, each carrying 50 guns, would open a fire against the north side of the harbor.

The Bank of England.

The Daily News, in its city article, says:

"The most serious change exhibited in the Bank of England returns is the decrease of no less than £659,647 in the Coin and Bullion, and of £778,517 in the reserve."

The News further says:

"The advance of the Allies on Perekop caused a further rise of ¼ per cent in Consols, making the total advance of the day no less than ¾ per cent, concerted with prices quoted on Thursday, prior to the decision of the Bank Board being made known. The latest quotation of this (Friday) afternoon shows a rise of 1½ per cent. A favorable feature, upon which stress is laid, is the apparent cessation of the drain of gold."

Diminished anxiety was also expressed as regards the results to be exhibited in this evening's Bank return,—at the same time it would appear that real relief would be best derived from immediate supplies from Australia. Such arrivals would be peculiarly opportune at the present moment, as no excellent bill could be offered for discounting if the Bullion drain had really subsided. The Discount market shows no change of importance. Money continues in good demand, and the supply is fair. In the Stock Exchange Money commanded 4 to 4½ per cent. In Stock and Exchequer Bills."

The Bank of England returns, Oct. 6, state the amount of notes in circulation at £20,308,555, being an increase of $149,679; and the Stock of Bullion in both departments £18,209,951, showing a decrease of £449,647 when compared with the previous return.

There is no later news from Odessa than that embraced in the Halifax dispatch.

The steamship Arago arrived at Havre on the 5th, and the Ariel on the 7th inst.

The Indian Troubles on the Western Plains.

ST. LOUIS, Wednesday, Oct. 24.

We have received dates from Fort Laramie to the 15th ult.

Capt. A. P. Howe, of the Fourth Artillery, was on trial by Court-Martial for disobedience of orders at the battle of Blue Water. Col. HOFFMAN presided over the Court.

Gen. HARNEY arrived at Fort Laramie on the 17th of September. The Sioux Indians continued their war like proceedings, and had attacked several parties, far off with Government and other herds, and committed depredations of all kinds. Large numbers of Indians were congregated at White Earth River, and had sent messages to Gen. HARNEY to come on, as they were ready and wanted horses. Capt. CADY accompanied Gen. HARNEY, in command of a battalion of the Sixth Regiment; Col. HOFFMAN being unwell. The health of the officers generally was good.

Ex-Governor REEDER left Kansas City yesterday for Virginia.

The Indian Troubles in Texas.

BALTIMORE, Thursday, Oct. 25.

The New-Orleans mails of Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, of last week, came to hand this morning.

The papers contain full details of the recent fight between Texan Rangers and Lipan Indians. The battle occurred on the Mexican side of the Rio Grande, and lasted three hours. Although beaten, the Indians were not dispersed, and maintained a threatening attitude. Capt. CALLAHAN was encamped with his Rangers at Eagle Pass.

The United States Agricultural Exhibition.

BOSTON, Thursday, Oct. 25.

The storm ceased last night, and there is a bright sky overhead this morning. The day will be observed as a general holiday, in order to give all our citizens an opportunity to attend the National Exhibition. The offices of the Banks and Insurance Companies will be closed, both in the city and adjoining towns, the schools adjourned, and business generally suspended. The city is overflowing with strangers, and the National Exhibition and the Industrial Exhibition are crowded with visitors.

The Anti-Maine Law Men and the Coming Election—The Liquor-Dealers' Ticket Repudiated.

ALBANY, Thursday, Oct. 25.

The State Central Committee of the opponents of the Prohibitory Liquor Law, appointed by the State Convention of the 19th of June, have issued an address calling upon all their friends and the Liquor-dealers' Association throughout the State to vote for the whole Democratic Soft-Shell ticket. They review the course of all the Conventions, and pronounce this the only practicable alternative. They say the Liquor Convention at Syracuse, under Mr. FRENCH, has failed to be responded to and repudiate it. The address is signed by John Taylor, of Albany; Matthew Vasson, Jr., of Rochester; Robert A. Forsyth, of Newburg; James Melver, of Utica; John W. Culbert, of New-York; Thomas G. Jerrold, of Kings; Solomon Schen, of Buffalo, and seven others.

Loss of the Lake Propeller Illinois.

BUFFALO, Thursday, Oct. 25.

The propeller Illinois, from Buffalo, for ports on Lake Michigan, with 600 tons of merchandise, sunk last night in 18 feet of water, near the mouth of the Detroit River.

From Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, Thursday, Oct. 25.

Messrs. T. S. GOODMAN & Co., who suspended during the financial crash of last Winter, resumed payment to-day.

Trotting and Pacing on the Centreville Course.

Two most exciting contests came off yesterday afternoon. The first was a pacing match between Hero and Hudson Colt. The same day a trotting match between Frank Forrester and Lady Franklin. The following is a summary of the pacing and trotting:

Thursday, Oct. 25. Pacing match, $1,000. Mile heats, best three in five. Hero to wagon; Hudson Colt in harness.

GEO. SPICER names g. g. Hero	1 1
W. PRIDDY names ch. g. Hudson Colt	2 dist.

Time, 2:29—2:26.

Same day, trotting match, $1,000. Two mile heats, in harness.

GEO. SPICER names b. g. Frank Forrester	1 2
H. WOODRUFF names r. m. Lady Franklin	2 3

Time, 2:16—2:16.

Later from Honduras—Severe Earthquake Shock.

From the N. O. Picayune.

By the arrival of the British brig Cressie, Capt. ROBINSON, from Belize, Honduras, old Rustan, we are in possession of later intelligence from Spanish Honduras.

The only item of interest to our readers is the announcement that an earthquake was experienced on the 24th ult., at Truxillo. It was a severe shock, throwing down several houses, and demanding a number of others, the public buildings sustaining their share of injury.

The inhabitants were, of course, much alarmed, and rushed into the open country. Fortunately no lives, as far as is yet known, were lost on the occasion. For full particulars we shall have to await a later and more direct arrival.

Of the state of affairs between the Government forces and the insurgents, and of political matters generally, we have nothing later by the Cressie than what has already been received.

THE SOFTS.

Ratification Meeting at Tammany.

A REGULAR TAMMANY ROW.

HARRY HOWARD'S FRIEND TRIUMPHANT.

A bonfire, which produced more smoke than flame, was kindled last night in the front of Tammany Hall, and kept the neighborhood in a smother for two or three hours. The usual amount of cannonading took place in the Park, to the perfect satisfaction of a large congregation of boys and children. There was a great crowd about the doors of Tammany, and the large room up stairs was nearly filled. It was a meeting of the Softs of the Democratic Party, to ratify their City and County nominations. A huge transparency, displaying the entire ticket, was exhibited on the front of the building, and will form a conspicuous, but not precisely an ornamental addition, to the features of that building until after the election.

At 8 o'clock the meeting was called to order by DANIEL E. DELAVAN, and the band in the balcony having ceased playing, CORNELIUS W. LAWRENCE was nominated as Chairman, by acclamation. The list of Vice Presidents and Secretaries was then read, and the ordinary initiatory observances of a political meeting in Tammany complied with—including plenty of uproar.

Mr. COCHRANE then read the resolutions of the evening—which were six in number and somewhat lengthy—and the list of candidates nominated on the regular ticket of the party. We append a synopsis of the resolutions:

RESOLUTIONS.

The first consisted of a declaration that the language of the Nebraska Bill, which decreases that "the people shall be left perfectly free to form and regulate their own domestic institutions in their own way, subject only to the Constitution of the United States," is the honest language of the whole Northern Democracy, who view with equal abhorrence every attempted violation of this, their rights, upon whatever pretence it may be grounded, or from whatever quarter it may be directed; confident of the capacity of each member of the Union for self government, and trusting to the beneficial influence of an American civilization eventually to dispose, most satisfactorily to every party, and most safely to the whole of the Union, of the question of domestic servitude, and are therefore opposed to the repeal of the Nebraska Bill, by which this question is virtually settled; and are equally opposed to all attempts to restore the Missouri Compromise, as unwise, impolitic and useless.

The second congratulates the Democracy upon the brilliant victories it has won over that atrocious league—Know-Nothingism. Other political bodies court office, or sought its dangerous friendship. Tammany Hall opposed it, as she opposes every invasion of the people's rights.

The third resolves, that the "Act entitled an Act for the Suppression of Intemperance, Pauperism and Crime," is a fitting monument to the memory of one of the most corrupt legislative bodies of a corrupt and desperate party. The Maine Law strikes at the fundamental principles of all law—endangers the Constitution and subverts all justice, &c.

The fourth declares that the National Administration has faithfully, impartially and energetically carried out the principles of Democracy, under circumstances of peculiar obstruction and difficulty.

The fifth, that the people, in spite of the envy, slander and detraction which have assailed FRANKLIN PIERCE, are convinced that the Democracy never mistake their man, nor elevate to the highest office in the Republic one unentitled to their confidence or unworthy of their admiration.

The sixth and last indorses the resolutions adopted by the State Convention, held at Syracuse on the 29th of August.

When the reading of the Resolutions commenced, the turbulent inclinations of a portion of the audience began to show itself. In front of the speaker's stand a number of the dirtiest rowdies to be found in the City had congregated. When the name of SAMUEL ALLEN, as Street Commissioner, was announced, considerable applause followed from the respectable ranks, which was immediately drowned in vociferous cheers for HENRY HOWARD by the crowd of rowdies aforesaid. A fight then commenced, blows were given, bruises were inflicted. For a long time all was confusion and row. The Chairman vainly strove to put the question for the adoption of the resolutions. A fireman in a red shirt was very conspicuous as a "contumacious" and insubordinate individual. The hall rang with frantic cries for "HOWARD." His friends danced and yelled. Tammany was in her greatest glory. At length the Chairman put the resolutions, which were carried. The Yeas were overwhelming, and the Nays comparatively feeble.

Some little order having been restored, the first speaker of the evening was announced,

MARVIN GROVER, Esq., of Albany, who said that he had come there to give some account of the—[Interruptions and shouts of "Oh, we don't want to hear you."] He recalled three hundred miles away. [Shouts, groans, yells, "Go back there—three cheers for HOWARD."] He admired the spirit he saw them evince, for it showed there was no apathy among them, and that they were determined to elect their candidates and succeed. [Shouts for HOWARD, and some private pummeling.] He had nothing to do with their private quarrels, and only came to call their attention to the great questions presented to them in a national point of view. He came to Tammany Hall with the same devotion that the Musselman made his pilgrimage to Mecca. Tammany was established fifty years ago, in opposition to the Federalists, who had since assumed different names and amalgamated with new parties. The proof that Tammany Hall was sound,—[three cheers for Tammany, and cries of "Leave off the nr"]—is, that it is the same now that it was fifty years ago—showed the same landmarks now as then. [No, Sir; it nominated CHAUNCEY SCHAFFER last Fall;" yells, groans, and cheers for HOWARD.] It must not be expected that for fifty years there would not be some bad men among them. [Shouts of "Come to the point." Here a newspaper was displayed and held up by the HOWARD party amidst loud cheers, yelling, fighting and confusion.] The speaker said he knew that HOWARD had many friends. [Cries of nominate him now; cheers, yells, interruptions and confusion for some minutes.] Many a good man, continued the speaker, has been ruined by the indiscretion of his friends. He knew nothing of their local politics and had come to address Democrats. [A Voice—Give us your name, and shouts of go home.] The Speaker taking advantage of a lull, said that men who came there to disturb their meeting were a disgrace to the Democracy. [Cheers and yells.] He came from a distance to address them on subjects of National interest with which he had a community of feeling with themselves. [Several Voices—You are in bad company, and shouts for HOWARD.] The speaker then traced Know-Nothingism back to GEORGE the Third, who was opposed to emigration to America, and was the first Know-Nothing. [A Voice—He is dead; cheers and laughter.] The speaker, amidst interruptions and cheers for HOWARD, described the origin, course and progress of the Hindoos, who burned houses and shot down with their rifles those escaping from the flames. The speaker was here interrupted by one of the rowdies, who said that Tammany Hall nominated CHAUNCEY SCHAFFER last Fall. The speaker protested that he was not here last Fall, and know nothing about it. [Well, then, cried one of the Howardites, it was your corpse was here.] The Whig party and Negro Slavery were next discussed amid interruptions and cheers for HOWARD, running commentaries, free fights and general rowdyism. He concluded by assuring them of victory at the election, to which conclusion he was led by the pluck and spirit displayed by the meeting.

Hon. John KELLY spoke next and vindicated the action of Tammany, which, if not in accordance with the views of the people was sure to be put down. The constitutions being now made it was their duty to support them. He would ask them if any of the candidates belonged to the Know-Nothing Party. [Cries of no, no—and ALLEN.] He had conversed with Mr. ALLEN and he (Mr. ALLEN) declared that the accusation was false and that he never belonged to the Native Americans. They were bound to defeat the Know Nothings in New-York where the movement arose, and bury them in a grave so deep that they would never emerge again. [Cheers.] He reached into the Hindoos and traced their deeds from Massachusetts to Kansas. [One of the crowd cried out, "Chain them and bombshells, hooray, hooray!"] The Whigs and the "Black Republicans" were next disposed of. He then referred to a Know-Nothing pamphlet which he had received describing their proscriptive doctrines, particularly against Roman Catholics who arrived here, became citizens, and where central hostility to the crown of Great Britain. [Cheers.] The speaker vindicated the character of the true and enlightened Americans who were not opposed to those who came to the United States and assisted in building up the liberty and prosperity of the country. He condemned the Hard Shells for meeting at Syracuse and denouncing the President and holding him up to ridicule, not only at home, but also in leading the people of Europe to understand that he had not the confidence of the citizens of the United States. FRANKLIN PIERCE was one of the best Presidents that ever sat in the Presidential chair. [Cheers for PIERCE, KELLY and HARRY HOWARD.] The fight of Shells should be put down, and they should unite to elect a Democratic President in 1856. Two speakers alluded to the quarrel between the friends of ALLEN and HOWARD. HOWARD did not belong to the Tammany Hall organization, and, therefore, his friends had no right to ask them to accept him, more especially when he had already received the nomination of another party. If they meant to elect him, that was not the place to do it—let them go to the polls for him on the 6th of November. [A man in the body of the Hall said—"I was offered $20 to vote for ALLEN, and I would not take it." Cheers for HOWARD, and cries of we'll elect him.] Mr. KELLY having again laid heavy hands on the Shadows, and elicited loud cheers, concluded by telling them what he would do when he took his seat in Congress, and recommending them to support the Tammany ticket.

At the conclusion of Mr. KELLY's speech a noisy scene again ensued. Loud calls were made for EVERDIS and others, but none of them responded, and great confusion prevailed. A motion to adjourn was made, and the Chairman strove to put it, but his voice was completely drowned by the terrific yells and cheers for, "HOWARD," "Let's nominate him," "he's our man," &c. In the meantime a running and seemingly indiscriminate fight was going on in the hall. Any one daring to look anything but HOWARD was immediately set upon and beaten.

Capt. RYNDERS was, as usual, conspicuous on the floor, resorting to every means but his stick and fist to keep order. At one moment he might be seen with his arms wound affectionately but tightly around a thick-set fellow with a bullet head and red shirt, who could be made to understand nothing but HARRY HOWARD, and the next standing over and screening some unfortunate who had not shouted loud enough for "patriot Harry."

The confusion was at length lulled for a moment, when a tall man with a black moustache and Byronic collar, who seemed to be the leader of the noisy gang, and who stood in front of the stage, shouted out—

"Gentlemen, I nominate HARRY HOWARD—those in favor will say aye"—

And a terrific and unanimous Aye was the response. No one had the temerity to say no.

The crowd seemed satisfied, and became comparatively quiet, whereupon the Chairman put the motion to adjourn, and it was declared carried.

Just at this moment a rush was made for the platform, and a young man named MCKAY, a resident of the First Ward, who stood near it, was set upon by the ruffians, who had created all the disturbance. He fled to the stage for safety, but was quickly dragged from it and severely beaten.

A number of the dissatisfied then mounted the platform and wound up the proceedings by loud and long-continued cheers for HARRY HOWARD, "The bloody Sixth Ward," &c; &c.

Several policemen were in and around the hall during the evening, but no arrests were made, because, no doubt it would be dangerous to attempt doing so.

After the adjournment, the throng separated and filled both bar-rooms, (there are two such "institutions" in Tammany,) but no further fighting took place.

We heard one gentleman present (evidently from some rural district) observe to a bystander—"Isn't this shameful?" He was answered with a look of contempt, and the remark—"Why, no; this is Tammany Hall!"

NEW-YORK CITY.

Fair of the American Institute—Address by Luther M. Marsh, Esq.

Last evening having been appointed by the Institute for the delivery of the Annual Address, the Crystal Palace was filled with company. The cars of the Sixth and Eighth-avenue Railroads were crowded beyond convenience in transporting the public to and fro. The arrangements made by the Committee of the Institute were very creditable, and every effort appeared to have been bestowed to render the proceedings of the evening agreeably interesting. Music by the band served to enliven the scene, and all were on the qui vive for the delivery of the Annual Address. About the hour first mentioned, the Vice President, Dr. RENZE, in company with several distinguished members of the Institute, ascended the forum, when the Doctor, having made a few introductory remarks, introduced the orator of the evening.

Mr. L. M. MARSH, from whose address we abstract the following: Having adverted to the beautiful harvest of the past year in an eloquent manner, and reviewed the necessity which exists for the promotion of Agriculture, he held that, to be successful, something more than the mere application of sinews was needed. Intellectual must be blended with physical toil; we must study the nature of soils, the best mode of enriching them, the proper alternation of crops, the adaptation of ground to wheat or corn, oats or hemp, and the proper feeding and fattening of cattle. He dwelt upon the reasons why the science of Agriculture had not been brought to the highest perfection in America, and asserted that "to help to bend public attention to the importance and love of Agriculture is a duty of patriotism," and it was to be regretted that in this State there had not yet been established an Agricultural College.

He glanced at the field of invention, the favorite (he observed) of American genius, and concluded.

Mr. MARSH's address was a very brilliant one—as he always are. Nothing but a perfect report of it could do it justice—and that, of course, we should not be justified in giving in such newsy days as these.

The nine fire engines on exhibition at the Fair will be marked in the building on Wednesday next, at 10 o'clock. They will play upon the Hydroville Mathis Observatory. To-day, Engine Company No. 6, of New-Haven, and Hose Company No. 1, of Brooklyn, will visit the building, with their bands, and the children from Randall's Island will attend and drill.

Those Thirty Acres in the Seventeenth Ward.

Many Seventeenth Warders are nervous as touching that queer claim which is lately put in—under the shadow of Messrs. SIMEON DRAPER and JAMES B. TAYLOR's names—for thirty acres of land in their quarter of the City. The plaintiffs' Attorney sends us a history of the claim, which, for the information and harrassment of the nervous, we digest as follows:

The "converted ancestor" spoken of was doubtless the late JACOB J. ARDEN, of this City, who died in 1801. By his will, after giving a life estate to his widow, he devised all his estate, real and personal, to his sole and only child, JACOB S. ARDEN, "and the heirs of his body lawfully begotten forever." By a subsequent clause in the will he qualified the primary devise to his son by devising the fee over to a nephew, (JOHN SOMERS,) in case JACOB S. ARDEN had "no heirs of his body born or to be born at his death." This devise over to take effect on the happening of a contingency at a particular time changed the estate given to JACOB S. ARDEN by the primary devise from a fee simple absolute to a determinable fee.

JACOB S. ARDEN died in 1804, without ever having had heirs of his body, and Mrs. ARDEN, the widow of the testator, died in 1825. On the death of J. S. A., the devise over to SOMERS took effect, and the fee simple passed to him, subject to the outstanding life estate of Mrs. ARDEN. In 1826 JOHN SOMERS, the executory devisee, granted all his interest in the premises devised to JACOB S. ARDEN, and to his heirs and assigns, with covenants of warranty. This deed was a good conveyance to pass the estate, by way of estoppel, when the estate came to SOMERS, which event occurred on the death of JACOB S. ARDEN in 1834, without issue then living.

Until the death of ARDEN the interest of SOMERS, under the will, was a naked possibility, and could not be conveyed, released, surrendered, or in any manner transferred, so as to pass a present interest, or an interest which could pass to an assignee of the grantee, but when the contingency was determined by the death of ARDEN, without having performed the condition on which his fee simple, under the primary devise, depended, the estoppel created by the covenants of SOMERS took hold upon the estate and carried it over to the grantees in his deed, and those grantees were the persons answering to the description of heirs of JACOB S. ARDEN. These heirs are the plaintiffs in the suits now pending in the United States Circuit Court.

☞ Mr. BOOLE's portrait of Hon. TOWNSEND HARRIS, ordered by the Faculty of the Free Academy, we notice is on exhibition for the present at APPLEGATE's bookstore.

☞ Some pleasant exercises will be had at 2 o'clock P. M. to-day, at Public School No. 7, in York-street.

Anticipated Negro Insurrection in Baton Rouge.

A correspondent of the New-Orleans Delta, writing from Baton Rouge on the 17th of Oct., says: "Last night our usually quiet city was thrown into a state of great excitement, by current rumors of an intended rising of the negroes of this place, and of the plantations in the vicinity. Anonymous letters were received by the editors of the Advocate, and by the Mayor, purporting to give information of a well-organized plan by the negroes to assemble during the night, take possession of the United States Arsenal and the Branch Bank, and being thus provided with money and material, to commence a campaign against the white population. The report spread like wildfire, and our citizens turned out in large numbers, armed to the teeth, and the streets and the suburbs were patrolled all night.

Nothing transpired, however, to confirm the rumor,

LONG ISLAND.

TRIAL OF MARSHAL GORMAN FOR THE MURDER OF CHARLES JOHNSON.

KINGS COUNTY COURT OF OYER AND TERMINER.

Before Hon. Judge Dean, H. A. Moore, County Judge, and Judge Stephens and Sleeper.

SECOND DAY.—TWILIGHT.

The Jury having reassembled the District Attorney opened the case for the prosecution.

He briefly recapitulated the chief evidence of the case. The prisoner stood charged with the murder of Charles Johnson, by stabbing him on the left side and abdomen. The testimony would show that the attack was unprovoked, as it was reckless and sudden, and the consequence had been the death of Charles Johnson, and his brother Robert, and the serious wounding of a third man who had lent his aid to the deceased immediately to two. The fight which consequence took place were near the junction of Bedford and Fulton avenues, in Brooklyn, at about half past seven o'clock, and the time between 11 and 1 o'clock on the morning of Sunday, July 1. William Johnson and Robert, (the brothers of the deceased,) had been to south Brooklyn to purchase some clothing, and returning, they called at the house of their brother Charles, in Raymond-street, near Fulton-avenue, and left there accompanied by Charles and a third person, McDonough. In passing through Raymond-street, they saw three men lying on the sidewalk, apparently intoxicated. They tried to wake them up, but succeeded in waking up the first; the second they could not wake, and the third was the prisoner. On being asked by him he immediately assumed the party, without any previous collision or contention between Charles and the prisoner, which in his view was found, and Robert. These strangers, seemed concerned, unknowingly, and in a wilful manner, and he proceeded to explain (the law of humanity, and the various degrees of culpability by the witnesses.

The first witness called was William Johnson, who deposed he was a brother of the deceased, and a farmer by trade; he resided in Bedford-avenue, near the Station (Rutgers) resided with his brother Robert; they left the house together on Saturday evening, and went to Atlantic-street, near Columbia, to purchase some clothing; went from there to Fulton-street, to the Bishop's where he drank beer; left there about half-past 6 o'clock; we started to go home through Raymond-street; there I saw my brothers (Charles and Robert) sitting on their stoop; they lived there; we stopped a minute, and then we, William, Charles and McDonough and Campbell started together to go to the Fulton-avenue; we went up on the side of Raymond-street; Campbell and I were a little ahead; when we came near Fulton-avenue we saw three men lying on the east side of Raymond-street; they were lying down, and one was starting up; we thought "we had better go over and wake them up;" we went over and waked up two of them; Campbell and I got one of them up

CANADA.

The Future of Canada.—Proposed Confederation of Lower Canada on France—Opinions of the Press.

[illegible] Times.

TORONTO, Saturday, Oct 20, 1855.

[illegible] curious idea has lately been broached in certain quarters, and advocated with a considerable degree of ability and zeal, which, if any practical steps should be taken towards its accomplishment, will no doubt be a matter of interest to your citizens. I allude to the proposed confederation of Canada, or rather the lower section of it, to France, a project to which M. BARRETTE has devoted a whole book, under the title of Canada conquise par la France, and which, since the publication of that work, has been commented on by almost all the Parti Rouge papers in the country of the great [illegible]. The Future of Canada, it seems, is now beginning to attract a subject of concern to a still wider circle than before. Brother Jonathan, of course, as everybody knows, has long been firmly impressed with the belief that the manifest destiny of Canada is to constitute a portion of the bright galaxy which symbolizes the American Republic. John Bull, on the other hand, is the champion of that Canada shall remain British, and, by the amalgamation of the two provinces, as at present, or annexation, sooner or later, or constituting the most important member of a Federal Union, which shall include the British possessions on the Continent of North America. But he will be more than ever persuaded how [illegible], if needed of one, he shall have to deal with two rival claimants; the one asserting that in the second order of events, Canada must inevitably submit to that fate which has befallen the other advancing [illegible], which have lain dormant for a century. If John Bull should go his hand, it is within the [illegible] that Upper Canada may one day [illegible] the position on a Colony of France. Strange [illegible] appeared to me now, and Louis Napoleon [illegible] it as object worthy of his ambition to [illegible] the American [illegible] of Great Britain to [illegible] the present relations of Great Britain to [illegible] Canada are very great obstacles [illegible] in the way of its accomplishment. I [illegible] that, the Government of the [illegible] would be inclined to interpose its veto. [illegible] Canadian who has, for some time, [illegible] that Lower Canada, in [illegible], in nationality, has [illegible] France, in spite of all the efforts [illegible] have been perseveringly made since the Conquest, to Anglicanize population. He declares against the [illegible] which he alleges England has exercised over the French inhabitants of Canada to a very recent period, if not to the present moment, and points to a [illegible] when Lower Canada shall again be [illegible] name and its allegiance, as well as in heart, [illegible] the Paris Press, as I have said, have reviewed M. BARRETTE's book, and given the project a [illegible] and outlook discussion. For the most part, also, they have coupled with it the recent mission of M. DE SELVERE, which was ostensibly with a view to opening up commercial relations between Canada and France, but, according to some, had as one object in paving the way towards the establishment of relations of a much more intimate character. Some short time ago the Lower Canada Press reproduced an article from the Paris Union in favor of M. BARRETTE's project; and during the present week another of the same sort from the Gazette de France has been republished by the Montreal Pays, and will likely go the rounds. The Gazette speaks of the mission of M. DE SELVERE, and congratulates the Government of France on giving to the population of Canada, "so faithful in their attachment to the mother country," that on the first mark of recollection and interest which they have received from her since the conquest, [illegible] their gratitude.

[illegible] M. BARRETTE has reason, more than any one else, to rejoice over this result, for, before the arrival in Paris, before his publication of the book which has created so deep sensation, who, in France, thought of Canada? [illegible] The Revue struggle manifested the power of journalism in its course in [illegible] M. BARRETTE, who has mentioned the fact (I [illegible] upon) that his merits drew [illegible] through the pages of that distinguished medium of the English journals, the Times, in

THE INDICTED OFFICIALS.

THE PEOPLE vs. ANSON HERRICK.

POINTS FOR DEFENCE.

Argument of Mr. Brady—District Attorney's Reply.

JUDGE'S CHARGE.

The Jury Disagree and are Discharged.

OYER AND TERMINER—THURSDAY, Oct. 24.
Before Hon. Judge Roosevelt.

The court-room, from the moment of its opening this morning, was filled to excess. The interest appeared to have reached its climax.

Mr. Whiting rose and presented the points which the defence claimed should be charged to the Jury. They were as follows:

POINTS FOR DEFENCE.

First—Waring, on his own testimony, is an accomplice, and as such, should be corroborated, and, if not corroborated, the defendant should be acquitted.

Second—The corroboration required by law to support Waring's testimony, should be the proof of facts tending to fix guilt upon Herrick, and which are not reasonably consistent with his innocence. The corroboration must be as to such and so many parts of the accomplices' evidence, (without regard to what those parts may be,) as to reasonably induce the Jury to believe that, bad as he is, he is telling the truth.

Third—If Waring's testimony does not establish, beyond reasonable doubt, that Herrick accepted the check, and intended, at the time he received it, that it should influence his action or vote, he cannot be convicted.

Fourth—Even if the Jury believe that Waring, in giving his testimony, has wilfully made a false statement in regard to any material fact in his narration, in judgment of law he is unworthy of any credit, and it is their duty to discredit him entirely.

Sixth—The burden of proving the guilt of the accused rests upon the prosecution, who must establish it beyond all reasonable doubt.

Seventh—The finding of the bill of indictment is no evidence whatever of Herrick's guilt, and is not to be considered as evidence by the Jury.

Eighth—Testimony as to conversations, such as that given by Waring in relating his alleged interview with Herrick, is to be received by the Jury with great caution, such testimony being regarded in law as fresh and dangerous.

Ninth—If the Jury believe that Herrick, before the alleged receipt of the check by him, had determined to vote for the measure in question, and would have done so, then he was not influenced by the check, and cannot be convicted of the crime charged.

Tenth—If Herrick had no intention that the check should influence his vote or action when he received it, no intention afterwards formed to keep that check or its avails would justify his conviction.

Eleventh—In weighing the credibility of Waring's testimony the Jury are to regard the threat, "That there was evidence enough to convict him, and that unless he gave evidence against Herrick they would indict him," as a very strong, if not a sufficient inducement to Waring to falsify the truth.

Twelfth—The Jury are to take into consideration the fact that Murphy concealed this matter; his subsequent acts, his interviews with the Grand Jury, with Mayor Wood, and the foreman of the Grand Jury at Wood's office, and the chase to indict and convict Waring unless he testified against Herrick, as creating strong suspicions of trickery in procuring the indictment, and sufficient to call on the prosecution to explain by evidence such an unprecedented transaction.

Thirteenth—If Waring, while under oath before the Grand Jury, said contradictory stories in relating the transaction, or has on this trial related the facts in any material parts different from those related before the Grand Jury, or has been contradicted in any material part by other witnesses, then in judgment of law the witness is unavoidable that he has fabricated the story and is unworthy of credit.

Mr. Brady rose and proceeded to address the Jury in behalf of the defendant. His speech occupied three hours in delivery, and was characterized alike by logical force, clear and concise statement, brilliant illustration, touching eloquence, and scathing sarcasm and ridicule. The gist of his argument went to show that the alleged bribery was the result of a conspiracy between the Mayor, Waring and Murphy, originating in the bitter personal hostility of the Mayor to the defendant. The conduct of the Mayor was rigorously criticised, and, by a process of ingenious synthesis, a startling presumption was raised from certain facts elicited from the witnesses for the prosecution, that Fernando Wood did himself contrive the fiction on which this charge of bribery has been brought. The discrepancies and contradictions in Waring's testimony, and the improbability of several of Murphy's statements, were dwelt upon at much length.

When the learned gentleman had concluded, a brief recess occurred, and Mr. Whiting presented the following additional requests to charge:

Fourteenth—That if the Jury came to the conclusion that there was a conspiracy between Wood, Waring and Murphy, it is a perfect answer to this case in the judgment of the law. Again, that the history of the bitter enmity of Justice presents no case in which the prosecution has been permitted to give evidence, not only to prove the narration connected with the transaction charged, but to prove the corpus delicti itself—the body of the offence; and that in no case will the law permit a party to be convicted upon the uncorroborated and unsupported evidence of the man who originated the crime, and proves the body of the crime, &c., and there is no corroborative evidence in the case—and that in the judgment of the law, no man can be convicted on the testimony of such witness.

The District Attorney then addressed the Court in reply. His speech was marked by lucidity of arrangement, compactness of statement, deliberate calmness of tone, and clearness and force of style. He maintained that the acts of the defendant himself, and the cognovits of his counsel confirmed the leading facts testified to by Waring, and sustained the charge. He vindicated the Mayor from the aspersions and objurgations of the counsel who had addressed the Jury for the defence, and relegated his wrath to be considered as assuming the responsibility of the indictments against the defendant. At the termination of his argument, which was wound up at a few minutes past three P. M.,

THE JUDGE'S CHARGE.

The Court proceeded to charge the Jury. The learned Judge said it is my province to address you not in the language of oratory, but in that of simple narration and dry legal logic. I shall begin, therefore, by reminding you that prior to the year 1853, this community was filled with rumors—whether well or ill-founded it is not now our duty to inquire—of the tendency, in municipal transactions, to official corruption. In consequence thereof the Legislature, in the month of April of that year, passed an act further to amend the Charter of the City of New-York. In that Charter was inserted a provision to make the promise, offer or receiving of a bribe, a high crime and misdemeanor on the part of any member of the Common Council, which by the terms of that Charter, was to be newly organized. That act, before being put into effect, was to be submitted in the month of June following to the votes of the electors of this City.

At that election, the amended charter with that provision was adopted by the popular voice, and, as was supposed, it became law. Not long afterwards, however, a question arose in one branch of the Supreme Court of the City in regard to whether or not it was competent, by the Legislature, to make the adoption or non-adoption of a law passed by them rest on the popular vote, they themselves being elected to represent the will of the people. It was decided that law was null and void; at least, it appears so, and I give you my instructions from dens and facts, for the Legislature were called upon in the month of May in that year, to look into this subject another time; they did so, and on the 18th of July they passed an act to amend the existing law relating to bribery and extending the provision in regard to bribery in that amended charter of this City, to all, or nearly all the officers of this State, including members of the Legislature and the Judiciary. That professes to be an act to amend the existing law relating to bribery, and under it it is provided that every person who shall promise, offer, or give, or cause, or aid, or abet in causing to be promised, offered, or given, or furnish, or agree to furnish, in whole or in part, to the Governor, Lieutenant-Governor, going through the whole list of officials, or to any member of Common Council in this State, or Mayor, or any other officer, any money, goods, right in action, such as a check or promissory note, or other property, or anything of value, or any pecuniary or personal advantage, present or prospective, with intent to influence his vote, opinion, judgment or action upon any question, matter, cause or proceeding which may be then pending or may by law be brought before him in his official capacity, shall, upon conviction, be imprisoned in the State Prison for a period not exceeding ten years, or be fined in the sum of $5,000, or both.

That case applies exclusively to the briber, or the one who proposes or offers the bribe. Now, what is to be the fate of him to whom the proposal is made? Every officer who shall accept any such gift, thing of value, or advantage, or any promise, or undertaking to furnish the same, on any agreement or understanding that his vote, opinion, judgment or action, shall be influenced thereby, or given in any particular manner, or side of any question then pending, or which may be brought before him in his official capacity, or who directly or indirectly shall demand, require, propose to receive, receive, or entertain any request or proposition for any such gift, thing of value or advantage, as a reason for his vote or action, shall, upon conviction, be ever after disqualified from holding any public office or appointment in the State, and be punished by imprisonment in the State Prison for a term of years not exceeding ten years, or by a fine of $5,000, or both.

Then there are inserted two sections which must be borne in mind on determining the legality and competency of testimony.

Every individual offending against the preceding provisions of this article, shall be a competent witness against any other person so offending, and may be compelled to appear and give evidence before any Magistrate, or Grand Jury, or in any Court, in the same manner as other persons; but the testimony so given shall not be used in any prosecution or proceeding, civil or criminal, against the person so testifying.

This act then goes on further: In any prosecution for such offence, if any person shall refuse, or, without just cause, omit to appear, or to produce any paper or writing before any Magistrate or Grand Jury, or any Court, according to the requirement of a subpœna for that purpose duly served upon him, or if any competent person there present shall, when duly required, refuse or omit to testify, the Magistrate or Court in which such prosecution shall be pending may, in addition to any other punishment authorized by law for contempts of Court, order such witness to be imprisoned, until he shall consent to appear and testify, or present such paper or writing.

The Court then proceeded to examine the facts of the case, as presented in the testimony elicited on the trial. It appears, gentlemen, said the learned Judge, and we may as well begin at the commencement of this case—that sometime in February last a contest arose among the owners of lots in the upper part of the City, in what may be called its rural district, as to the proper grade of the street or road leading to and from the Harlem Ferry; one party contending that the grade as then established was the proper grade, and the other that it involved too deep a cutting through a rocky hill at great expense and to the great damage of some of the owners, especially those whose lots would on a consequence be left so high above the street as to require the removal of a large mass of rock to bring them to its level.

The diversity of opinion was a very natural one, and the mere fact is at the accused or any other member of the Common Council was in favor of, or against, the proposed change, furnished of itself not the slightest ground for impeaching his motives. You will recollect, without adverting to other evidence, the frank and manly testimony of Bryan McCahill—one of the members of the second board—which as it seems to me must satisfy any mind on that point. He voted for the measure. He did so, he says, after careful examination, believing it to be just and right. He spurned the proffered bribe. The Court entertaining no doubt—and I think the Jury will entertain none—of his truth and sincerity. You may assume then, I think, in the further consideration of the question of guilt or innocence, that the measure was one which any honest man might advocate and still be honest.

As an man, however, can lawfully accept a bribe to vote for a just measure, or even to vote for a measure which he would have voted for without such bribe, we are still left to inquire was there a bribe received or not.

Waring, a witness to whose testimony in this case is essential to the case on the part of the People—says there was; that he paid it in a check for $100; that the check was subsequently presented to the Bank by some person, the amount drawn out and charged in his account, and the voucher, with others, returned to him in balancing his bank-book; thus showing, if his statement is believed, that the check was not only tendered, but, although declined at first, was ultimately received and used, and, therefore, accepted, and that, too, (a circumstance which, if true, would greatly aggravate the offence,) after ample time for reflection and change of purpose.

Does Waring, then,—for that is the next inquiry—indeed, it may be said to be the sole inquiry—speak the truth, or is he not only a participes criminis, which he admits, but at one and the same time a volunteer and a perjured witness?

That there was a check of the character and description mentioned by him, is proved by its production, and by the officer of the Bank. That it was tendered to the accused by Waring is equally certain; for the accused has proved by his brother's testimony, which he of course cannot question, that in an interview with Waring, shortly after the finding of the indictment, he, the accused, speaking of a check, said, among other things, "You know, Waring, that I told you to put it back in your pocket."

The offer, therefore, is established. And it may be proper here to say that such an "offer," merely unaccepted, is a felony in the person making it, and that "to entertain (if the fact were not any negotiator of a proposition for any such gift," is an offence in the eye of the law, equally criminal in the party to whom the offer is made.

Did the defendant then entertain the offer?

Waring swears that when he handed the check to the defendant, the latter said, "he did not wish to receive anything of the kind, and shoved it back—but he, Waring, replied that he would leave it with him, and he might come in at some future time if he thought fit, should the object not be accomplished;" to which the Alderman responded, that if the measure did not pass, he certainly would return the check, retaining it in his hand.

The defence, you will observe, assumes that Waring swores falsely, not only here, but before the Grand Jury. How, then,—for it was after the indictment—could the accused apply to this perjured man, then, already a perjured, for an affidavit to be used in this Court as a reliable statement on which to found an important motion—the motion to quash the indictment?

Mr. Brady desired to know if he would have a right to answer an argument addressed to the jury by the bench?

The Judge—Wait till the Court is through.

Mr. Brady—I shall certainly claim a right to answer that.

The Court—The whole testimony of the defendant's brother suggests matter for grave reflection. A party at the time under indictment goes with another, connected with him by the closest ties of blood, to the house of a witness whose testimony it was all-important to overthrow. No other individual is present; none is offered to be called in to guard the witness from possible misapprehension of his meaning or mis-statement of his language. Strong asseverations are made to him, and that at a time when his mind was greatly excited and confused; and his answers, and in some instances even his silence, are sought to be used as admissions of the truth of what was thus asserted to him; and as contradictions of his deliberately sworn statements here in open Court.

Such evidence, so obtained, it is obvious requires to be carefully weighed.

But how—admitting the interview to be ever so correctly reported—can one reconcile the unsworn statement of the accused on that occasion, "that he told Waring to put the check back in his pocket," with the fact that the check notwithstanding was presented at the Bank and paid? Did Waring, as requested, actually return it to his pocket and then make a tender of the same identical check to some more yielding official? He swears that he did not—and what evidence on that point is there to contradict his oath? If untrue, why was not the Cashier of the Mechanics' and Traders' Bank called to prove that he received the check from the Nassau Bank, and then the Cashier of the Nassau Bank to prove from whom he received it, and so back from step to step to the individual, whoever he might be, that first received it from the drawer? Why was not the partner of the accused—he it appears kept an account in the Nassau Bank—why was he not called, if such were the fact, to swear that he never saw the check and never deposited it in the Nassau Bank, or if he did, that he received it from some individual other than the accused, who, upon being named, could have been brought up to testify?

The statement of Waring, you will perceive, if false, was perfectly susceptible of contradiction. If the accused did not receive the check—a check, it will be observed, with such ear marks as readily identify it—if he did not receive it from Waring and keep it, and use it, somebody else did, that is certain, and this somebody, as we have been, was easily ascertained.

But Waring, it is said, has contradicted himself. That is true. You have heard the explanation which he gives, and which one of the members of the Grand Jury in part, at least, confirms. He was, when first examined, taken by surprise, sick and confused, and labouring under an anxious apprehension of legally criminating himself. After an opportunity to take counsel, being informed, and informed truly, that his testimony, whatever it might be, could not be used against him, he determined, seemingly, at least, as it struck the juror, to make a clean breast of it.

You will consider this explanation, and give it the weight to which, in your judgment, it may be entitled.

Again, it is said that the witness Waring, by his own showing, was a participator in the offence. That circumstance is calculated to weaken the force of his testimony, and to demand for it a rigid scrutiny. It does not disqualify him. On the contrary, the bribery act not only permits, but compels him, to testify, and it would be a most extraordinary inconsistency first to compel and then to disbelieve him, no matter what the character of his testimony. Besides, and that is a pertinent inquiry, what motive has the witness now to add perjury to bribery? He does not screen, but criminates himself; at least in character. He has no friend to serve, as it would seem, or enemy to punish. He was anxious—even importunate—as Mr. Meigham proves, that the prosecution should be stopped. He went before the Grand Jury as he came here, by the compulsory process of the law. He never revealed the story till he was compelled, and knows not how he came to be summoned.

There is no pretence that the accused—like Councilman McCahill—when the bribe was tendered, indignantly rejected the outrageous insult. All that he said—taking his own version, as stated in his brother's account of the interview after the indictment, when he sought to get an affidavit from Waring—was, "Waring, you knew I never took or agreed to take the check, and that there was no understanding between us on the subject; you knew I never saw it after I told you to put it back in your pocket." Nothing indignant in all this—nothing like the natural outbreak of offended virtue against a man who had dared sought to seduce him into a felony, and had afterwards perpetrated another felony to fasten it on him.

Does then the testimony of Mr. Hugh Herrick, admitting it to be entirely unbiassed by the natural, and I had almost said justifiable, influence of fraternal sympathy—does his testimony, viewing it in all its bearings, tend to destroy that of Waring, or to strengthen it? It is your province, gentlemen, and I may say it is in this case, if not already done, the principal labor to be performed by you, carefully, and with a single eye to the truth, to compare the statements of these two witnesses, in connection with the check produced and with the evidence of the officer of the bank on which it was drawn, and to deduce from each separately, and form altogether, such conclusions as in your judgment they may seem to warrant.

The case, gentlemen, is in your hands. You—and you alone—are the judges of the facts on which the result depends. The Court may comment, but it is for the Jury to decide. You will render, I am confident, a just verdict—just to the People, and just to the accused—taking care, as the law requires, to give to the latter the benefit of any reasonable doubt.

The Court then took up the points presented by the defence, as above, and charged all but the fifth, ninth, tenth, eleventh, twelfth and thirteenth.

Of three additional points which had been handed up, only the last, (claiming that if Waring was disbelieved the case for the prosecution failed,) was charged.

Mr. Brady rose, and excepted to His Honor's having expressed any opinion at all to the Jury on the questions of fact, on the ground that the defence was no request to examine him (the Judge,) of any fact, but the Jury, and that to them belonged exclusively the right of determining the facts. He excepted entirely to his Honor's expressing any opinion on the subject of Waring's being or not being a reluctant witness before the Grand Jury; and, if the District Attorney made the objection, in order to save time, he would specifically object to each and every opinion that the Court had expressed to the Jury about the facts of this case, in the course of the whole decision. He also excepted, specifically, to the refusal to charge any of their points which the Court had not charged; and also, excepted to such instructions of the Court as were inconsistent with the requests the defence had made.

Mr. Whiting wished further to except specifically to the refusal by the Court to charge the 11th and 13th points, on the ground that they did not apply to this case.

A brief conversation occurred between the Judge and Mr. Hart, a Juror, who has been suffering at night from intermittent neuralgia, and who was anxious to know how he was to be dealt with, in case the Jury were locked up for the night. His illness, he said, would preclude him from remaining in Court with the rest.

The Judge decline for the present to state what course would be determined on, and

The Jury retired at 5½ o'clock.

The Jury were discharged at 8½ o'clock. They could not agree, on a verdict, as they stood eight for not guilty, and four for guilty.

COMMENTS.—We have been requested to state that the name of one of the witnesses in the above case, and an abstract of whose testimony we gave in yesterday's TIMES, is not "Nathaniel W. Meehan," as our Reporter gave it from imperfect hearing, but "Thaddeus W. Meighan."

MATSELL'S NATIVITY.

THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN.

BRIGGS READY TO REPORT.

BUT THEY WON'T RECEIVE IT.

SAM PALE ABOUT THE GILLS.

Curtailed Tailpiece of the Report.

The Board of Aldermen met last night at the usual hour, the President, ISAAC O. BARKER, Esq., in the Chair. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read and approved, the Board proceeded to the business of the evening, which was of but little public importance. The report of the Committee relative to confirming the amount of assessment for flagging and setting curb and gutter stones in Eighty-third-street, from Avenue A to Third-avenue, was read, and gave rise to a prolonged debate, many members objecting to the manner in which the work was done.

THE GREAT MATSELL QUESTION.

Alderman BRIGGS presented a long report from the Police Investigation Committee.

"SQUEEZED."

Alderman VARIAN objected to its being received by the Board, as it was the last night of meeting for the present month, and a great deal of business remained to be transacted.

Alderman KELLY thought that the Report should be laid on the table until it was printed, so that they might all read it.

Alderman ELY wished to know if the Report was signed by a majority of the Committee, because, if it was not, it was no Report.

Alderman TUCKER had read fifty pages of the Report, and had not had time to read the rest. He had therefore, though one of the Committee, not signed his name. He wished the Report to be handed back to the Alderman, that he might have an opportunity of reading it, before he decided to sign it.

The Report was then handed back to Alderman BRIGGS, and after some further unimportant business, the Board adjourned to the first Monday in November.

Now, reader, take a breath, and we will say something more about the Briggs Report.

A great grief should fall upon our people. The Report was ready, but because it had only one name to it, they would not receive it. Shame upon all hands who, in matters of such desperate consequence, insisted upon a form. And so the thing goes over till after election, and Sam's best chance for sending all the candidates to the bottom is a gone opportunity!

But the Report itself was a smasher. We had one glimpse of it, from which we discovered that it is, when rolled up, about the size of a hat, and to bind it when printed, would require the hides of two large calves.

Knowing that in the crowded state of the columns of the Press universal, it would not be entirely convenient to get the whole of it in among the city items without crowding out some of the police news, Mr. BRANCH kindly undertook to condense it. This condensation would not occupy more than three or four columns. But as it was the struggle of the renowned condenser to get all the facts in, we find that he goes though the abstract very much like an eagle with his pinions tied by a tow-string to his legs. There is none of the inimitable Secretary about it—not a "Screech of the Alligator"—not a single howl of the wolf, that has frightened all pretensive aliens into fits,—not one touch of the hand that has lately so often "played upon the harp of a thousand strings—spirits of just men made perfect."

Very near the close, however, as the facts get thinned out, the genius of the noble Secretary springs almost clear of its trammels. From this point we accompany him:

THE TAILPIECE OF BRANCH'S ABSTRACT OF BRIGGS' REPORT.

Mr. Matsell swore before the Police Committee that he did not know where his father resided in Europe. His father died only ten years since, and his mother only three, who, or William, Mary or Susan apparently told him where they once lived in England. Moreover, being six years old at his immigration, he should remember nothing of the three months' voyage of the Perseus, the famine on board, the terrific storm which cast the Perseus on her beam ends, the bad reputation of some of the passengers, and the great excitement throughout the voyage caused by the strange conduct of two of the passengers. Mr Matsell, Chief of Police, also swore that his name was George Washington Matsell; but his own father's return in his Naturalization Report says that his son's name is George Matsell only, and the Brandon Register and affidavits say so—which leaves a questionable oath between the parties.

George Matsell swore he was born in 1811, which corresponds with the Naturalization Report of his father, with the Brandon Register, and with the American and English affidavits.

George Matsell, the Chief of Police, also swore before the Police Committee, that the only evidence he ever had of his place of nativity, was that his mother (who died only two or three years since) told him that he was born in America. Now, George Matsell, tailor, in his Naturalization Report, says that his son George (the present Chief of Police) was an alien of seven years old in the Spring of 1819, which made George, according to the simplest principles of subtraction, about six years old in the Autumn of 1817, when he arrived in the ship Perseus, with his father, in America. The question is then very naturally asked, How could George Matsell, the Chief of Police, (whom his own father says, in his Naturalization Report, was an alien of seven years old in 1819, have been born in America, as he says his mother told him, who herself arrived in America in 1817, when her son George was about six years old, and of foreign birth?

MELODIOUS HARMONY.

George Matsell, tailor, says in his Naturalization Report, that he was born in Walsingham, Norfolk County, which melodiously harmonizes with the Register of Brandon, one half of which town is in Norfolk and the other half in Suffolk County. Charles Farrow, Parish Clerk and the great Undertaker of Brandon, swore that he never knew nor heard of a "person or family named Matsell, except that of George Matsell, tailor;" and Mr. Branch could hear of none for two hundred miles around Brandon; nor could he find any of that name in the grave-yards of Brandon or vicinity, which marks the presumption that the race of Matsells became extinct in England at the emigration of George Matsell, tailor, in 1817. Joseph Sweet, of the Sunday Leader in this City, married Elizabeth Matsell, (three months old at her emigration,) and who resides in Forty-first-street, which is a minute's walk of the Crystal Palace. And what is most remarkable, Mr. Sweet has not a word in defence of Mr. Matsell, his Brother-in-law, but rather sympathizes with the Police Committee, which shows

THE MATSELL FAMILY NEARLY EXTINCT.

WHAT FRAUD MATSELL HAS PERPETRATED.

the integrity of the man. George (W.) Matsell, then, a British subject, has defrauded the citizens of New-York for a quarter of a century, in assuming the right of suffrage; and as a Custom House officer, as a Police Justice, and as Chief of Police during the past ten years, at whose inauguration into the above positions of trust and emolument, and high responsibility, he was compelled to swear that he was a citizen of the United States. He has, moreover, recently defied the Legislature, the Courts, the Corporation, and the people. He has sworn against his own father and against his own mother, when hardly cold in their graves. He has forged and sworn falsely as to his own name; he is an alien, and does not and dares not deny it before the Committee or elsewhere. He has misrepresented the habitation of his own sister into an imaginable fortress, least the will appear and convict him. He will not permit the subpœnas of Mr. Valentine to be served on his sister Mary, knowing, the instant she appears in the City Hall, that he will be forever branded with alienage and perjury, and will soon be on his journey to a zealous laboratorium of great and merited duration. He has bought City property in an unlimited extent, which is in open violation of the Charter, and for which alone he should be instantly ejected from office. He has monstrously bamboozled the people. He has, through the violation of common decorum, and by dishonorable strategem, intruded down through the Legislature by which he resides his post for life, palpably against the spirit of our institutions, and which wrongly interrupts the rights and other American citizens.

MONSTROUSLY BARGOONED THEM.

HE IS ABOVE SUSPICION.

He is the source of the [illegible] at primary and local elections, and destroyes, through brute force, and his police satellites, to elect merely all the Heads of Departments, Judiciary, &c., who in return are his abettors, and screen him in his present enormous criminality, and in every question of virtue against the American citizen.

In view of all this, and a volume of similar inquiry and infamy, the Police Committee respectfully and sincerely recommend for adoption the following preamble and resolution:

Whereas, The office of Chief of Police of the City of New-York is occupied by a British alien, (and he does not deny it,) and he has, therefore, never had the necessary qualifications to hold any civil office; and

Resolved, That the office of Chief of Police of the City of New-York is hereby declared vacant.

Wm. Curtis Noyes has publicly declared that Mr. Matsell can be discarded, (forsooth, by the Board of Aldermen or both branches of the Corporation, or by the Police Commissioners, if they are satisfied he is an alien. And Mr. Noyes has no superior in civil jurisprudence.

At a meeting of the Board of Aldermen, held April 26, 1855, the following preamble and resolution were adopted, viz:

Whereas, The Special Committee has been grossly insulted and their power defied by William Matsell, Mr. Matsell's chief clerk, therefore,

Resolved, That the Special Committee, consisting of Aldermen Briggs C. H. Tucker, and Hafferty, which was appointed to ascertain the truth of the case of George W Matsell's report, respecting the nativity, imprisonment, fine of pottemen, be and they are hereby empowered to investigate all frauds and corruptions in every branch of the Police Department; and also the manner in which the same is and has been conducted, in addition to the power they possess by a previous resolution of this Board.

WHAT THE COMMITTEE MAY DOUBT FOR ITS MONEY.

One of the first fruits, under the above resolution, was the payment of about $600 of arrest "dog-pound money" into the City Treasury, by Mr. Mackellar, Mr. Matsell's chief clerk. Mr. Mackellar was questioned one day what he had done with it, and he responded it on the next, to the high gratification of the Committee, and to the sorrow of Mackellar. Mr. Matsell was found to have had 108 conveyances of City property to himself and his friend Capt. Norris, of the Tenth Ward, from 1849 up to the letter S in 1856. Mr. Matsell, at this rate, would apparently soon monopolize a large portion of the City. "And the conveyance" of a solitary lot subjects him to impeachment.

Capt. Leonard, of the Second Ward, was charged with receiving money for obtaining police appointments. Capt. Bowyer was charged with receiving pay as a public policeman and as a Crystal Palace policeman at the same time, and that Mr. Matsell indorsed the bills with an oath. The integrity of Capt. Norris was also arraigned before the Committee.

THE OLD TALE.

Thomas Mindler, Nicholas Sangrist, Capt. Norris, Mr. Mackellar, Mr. Matsell and others, were charged with robbing the funeral pall of Henry Clay, of some miserable broadcloth, when his sacred remains passed through this City on his way to its silent and eternal repose at Ashland. Mr. Matsell is said to have had two talmas from the pall of the modern Roman. He is also said to have appropriated some public oil-cloth to the decoration of his private abode. Efforts were made to ascertain where and when the stolen property was sold, but in vain. Also the final disposition of stolen property. But Matsell, Mackellar, McCann and Webster were incredibly abusive and contumacious.

NO CONTEMPT INTENDED.

Judges Woodruff and Ingraham sustained them, and hence no information could be obtained, and the Committee were utterly foiled. Judge Woodruff protected the contumacious witnesses on the ground that they were not served with the last original order of attachment by Judge Daly, although the order was read to the contumacious witnesses before the Committee. Judge Daly has imitated Aristides throughout the severe and protracted contest, and deserves the cordial thanks of all meritorious citizens, for his efforts to sustain the first legitimate contumacious attachment, without which subpœnas are worthless, and government itself a perfect nullity.

HOW ARE THE REPORT IS.

The testimony elicited, and the legal proceedings under the fraud and corruption resolution, would make a large volume, but as the report is already voluminous, the Committee will take leave of the subject for the present, with the earnest hope that they will be permitted to continue their labors, and until they have made the contumacious witnesses answer the questions already propounded to them, and thus establish the precedent that officials especially of what be compelled to respect the Committees of the Common Council, and not be permitted to insult them with impunity. In the absence of this there can be no security from a wide-spread corruption and demoralization, and no protection whatever to the great industrious and virtuous classes.

"CHILDREN'S AID SOCIETY."

Incidents.

To the Editor of the New-York Daily Times:

Your readers, amid all the excitements of war and politics, may still have an ear for the little histories always going on under the surface of grand events—stories of poverty, of the children of the friendless and abandoned, who are leading their own unique life, far down near the foundations of society, or who are just aided to start on something better and more hopeful.

Journal of Newsboys' Lodging-House, July 18, 1855.

THE WILD IRISH BOY.

THOMAS BUTLER, from Carlow in the Green Isle, came from the office of the Children's Aid Society this evening to have, as he expressed it, "six good pennyorth's of sleep in the Newsboys' Lodging House." He never could have this at home; that is, at his step-father's house. "My owld mother, d'ye see," said THOMAS, "has got her third husband—my own father died when I was a bit av a gossoon, about the size of a walkin' stick. The whole av them"—here THOMAS stretched out his hands in the narration—"the whole av them wor better to me than my stepfather that now is." THOMAS seemed to have got an idea that his mother had been a kind of female Bluebeard, and wish to a dozen husbands, so much had the unkindness of one multiplied their personalities. "Her second man was as good to me as the father that borned me, but he died of the black cholera.—the sorra be on it!—and the craythers of childhern he had by my mother went along wid him. Troth, I was most killed out an' out when they put him into the coffin wid a pillow of straw under his head. 'Twas the sorraful day to me anyhow. This bonnet—she has now astruck me as often as I have fingers and toes. I got so ashamed by him intirely that I didn't like to be undher one roof wid him; so I worked round, shoveled coal for the quality in the big avenue, and carried iron in a smithy, and run of errands for the traybors."

"And who sent you to the office of the Children's Aid Society?"

"Why, then, I'll tell you how it was: I was shoveling snow ov a day last Winter—clearing a carriage-way for a gentleman—and I wor very cowld intirely—blowing my fingers to keep them warm, when a gintleman av me, I'm sure he was a gintleman by his heart as well as in his eyes, I'll be bail. He spoke to me for a good while; though it was very cold. I feel like he if it was in my heart yet. Well he towld me to come to the office, and I kem; and Mr. M. has a heart for me, too, and will get me a situation with some farmer in the country, wid God's blessing I may get along, and be out av the way av getting struck by him—by my stepfather, you know."

THOMAS, before his renovation in the bathroom of the Newsboys, and before he had doffed his Celtic costume, was quite a character to look at. His straw hat, almost crownless, was placed rather carelessly, as it had fallen by accident, on a thick shock of hair, uncombed and disentangled for months, eyes gaping; his pants were barely fit for looking at, and the coat had been divested of one half of the tail, and the other part was suspended by a thread, and hung dangling against his thighs. His countenance, though not ugly, had something at times very simple in the expression. On the stage, so attired, and with such a figure, he would appear to be eccentric.

"How did you lose the tail of your coat, THOMAS?"

"Why then, faith, 'tis myself can't tell. I dunno whether 'twas the dog as did it, (looking over his shoulder as if in search of some imaginary animal,) or whether it was the nail in the wall, or whether it was blowed down; so, d'ye see, the t'other end of the tail is gone altogether."

Mr. VAN METER was taking some boys with him to the West—hard boys some of them, too, as the event proved, and he became interested in THOMAS' story—but after a little conversation with him he became puzzled.

"I don't know what I can do with him," said Mr. VAN METER. "He is extremely stupid, and no one will take him—a thought strikes me. I have received a letter from home, and by it I have learned sad news. My child is very ill, and my wife's time is consequently a good deal employed. It will be a good thing if I take THOMAS into my own family."

THE NEWSBOYS ON THE TAKING OF SEBASTOPOL.

Though the Newsboys do not appear to be influenced by any political principle, in their opinions about the way in the Crimea, they debate the siege of Sebastopol in their own way very often.

"Say," said Barney, with all the dignity of a captain among them, "I don't go in for taking Sebastopol. Extras wouldn't sell well after, d'ye see. Let the Russian get whipt, and what will become of our trade?"

"Well," said Cigars, "if Sebastopol is taken, we'll have another Loss of the Arctic day of it. Oh! wasn't that a time!" "The last bombardier," said Patty, "gave me three extra pieces at the Nassau—and these shillings I paid as I owed. The death of Lord Raglan wasn't worth an oyster-pie."

☞ "The Emperor Nick's was a better affair," said Patty. "Yes, sir," said Paddy Moore. "Let me see; the death of the Emperor Nicks put seventy-six cents in the bank, and gave me a new pair of pants as good as second-hand." "One battle," said the Yank, lifting up his eyes from his book, "is better than twenty deaths. Why don't they blow up a ship or a fortress—I dunno that we have much in that way at all, as we read in the life of PAUL JONES here." "Well, said Barney, "I guess there's no PAUL JONES among 'em. Give me a look at that, Yank, when you get through with it. I want to see how PAUL did those things."

And so the conversation was diverted into another channel.

SEPT. 2.—PATTY AS THE WANDERING MENDICANT.

As soon as the library was opened by Mr. TRACY, the boys flew to the books with the same avidity as on other nights. One or two only who looked fatigued, did not read, and of these a strange boy complained that he was heavy with the fever and ague, which he had caught in a canal in New-Jersey. Patty read and joked obscenely. Now he was pretending and dancing on one leg, the next moment lounging and reading. Shouldering a large bag of books which they on a farm, he stalked up to the table, and in a distinct tone, like a beggar at an inn door, asked Mr. TRACY if he could have lodging for the night and he gave unanimous to the beggar's petition and blessing for the benediction pronounced, so characteristically, that it made us all laugh heartily. He was inimitable. He limped as if he had pain in his bosom, and stooped like a man habitually careworn from bearing the burden of a beggar's wallet. "I had for my dinner of the Nassau," said Patty "seven pieces of cakes, two oyster pies, clam soup, bean and molasses, a cup of coffee, half a glass of lemonade."

THE "YANK" ON "NEWSPAPER STATIC."

July 31—Yank, though not often garrulous, can gossip at intervals in a very entertaining manner. He related a good deal about newspaper stands and their owners this evening. The Yank is tolerably versed in these details, and his descriptive power is considerable. About the circulation of Harper's Magazine he gave us some information, the immense sale of which, by the wholesale dealers, surprised us not a little. The newsboys make a very good trade of it; they sell the Magazine at twenty cents a number, and have five cents profit on every number of which they dispose. "Little BILLY ATTY, the newsboy," said Yank, "is such a favorite at HARPER's, that he gets the Magazine before those who take a thousand copies. The owner of the stand at the Post-Office thinks it a good thing. He is rich, I tell you; he wouldn't sell his stand for five hundred dollars; on a Saturday he makes fifteen dollars—sells a hundred Heralds and as many Times. He sails a great number to California; you see he has the novels handy, and he is right at hand to the Post-Office at all hours. He sells a considerable lot of books, too; but Harper is his best selling one; that goes better than well, I guess. There isn't a man in New-York, as owns a stand, can compete with this man, but the chap no keeps the stand at the Astor House. He pays nothing for it, but keeps the waiters and barkeepers on his hands—he furnishes them with papers, d'ye see; and not one of us newsboys dare show his nose 6-top of the steps, not to mention the bar. I just a wont, as like, one day, and one of those Sheagits came down on me like a streak of lightning. He caught me by the breeches, and twirled me round like a humming top. He made me get down quicker than I came up, I guess. He doesn't sell the Times, but he sell the night for that day to another for one hundred dollars. To any man who buys a privilege of him, it comes pretty high, I tell you."

Harper's Magazine was the stock in trade of several of the boys to-day. We can overhear them talking of the sale and profit made thereby. One made six shillings; another threw a quarter on the table, with the independent chink of a successful trader, and said, "I owe a shilling since last night—take it out of that. I'm a going to put some dinner in the tank," as Mr. TRACY says; the winter is a comin' on. Harper's is better than extras to-day."

Our most important enterprise is still the sending these vagabonds or deserted children to homes in the country. We have now hundreds of letters from these poor creatures, so from their employers, in all parts of the country. The success is wonderful. We have sent some 1,600 children to good homes; and the changes wrought in the filthy, lousy, abandoned, ignorant girls and boys, who have would have been poor of the City, are the most encouraging and inspiriting to all engaged in the work.

It is right that the public should know our difficulties as well as our results. We depend entirely on private subscriptions and donations. At this time our treasury has hardly $50. Our appeals have always met with a quick response, and we expect now to be sustained. Moneys intended for us can be sent to the office, No. 11 Clinton Hall, Astor-place, or the Metropolitan Bank, addressed to the Treasurer of the Children's Aid Society. C. L. B.

Dutch Reformed Synod—Thursday Morning's Sittings.

The subject of the admission of the North Carolinian Classis was resumed. Several members having spoken, Rev. Dr. Howe returned to the argument. He observed among other things, that the selling of Joseph into Egypt was a great sin, but great good resulted from it. So the stealing of human beings from Africa had brought them under the influence of Christian civilization.

Dr. HOWE, Rev. Mr. PRINCE, and others, having spoken, Rev. Dr. BETHUNE defined his views more closely. Though he agreed to an extent with Dr. Howe, and would not exclude a slaveholder from the Church, he wished to know whether in the event of this proposed union he should be at liberty to preach to a Southern audience that when Christ comes in his glory every man shall be free? He should like to know more about Carolinian Church discipline; he did not wish to preach Street Abolitionism in a Southern pulpit;

New-York Daily Times.

NEW-YORK, FRIDAY, OCT. 26.

JOB PRINTING.

We are now fully prepared to execute all kinds of Print-ing—PLAIN and ORNAMENTAL, in the VERY BEST STYLE and at LOW RATES. Country Merchants who desire Blank Bills or Checkers of any kind, put up in a neat and elegant style, may rely upon entire satisfaction.

Orders left at our office will be promptly attended to.

RAYMOND, HARPER, & CO.

☞ THE NEW-YORK DAILY TIMES is served in the City and vicinity for ONE SHILLING a week. Single Copies Two Cents. Mail Subscribers SIX DOLLARS a year.

The SEMI-WEEKLY TIMES, containing all the reading matter of the Daily, published Tuesday and Friday, is mailed at THREE DOLLARS a year.

The WEEKLY TIMES, published Saturday, is mailed at ONE DOLLAR a year for single Copies. TWENTY-FIVE Copies for TWENTY Dollars, to one address.

The TIMES FOR CALIFORNIA is published on the departure of every Mail steamer. Price, in wrappers, 6 cents for single copies.

The DAILY TIMES has a regular circulation of nearly 40,000, and as a medium for business and general advertising is not surpassed by any City journal.

Terms, invariably Cash in Advance.

Publication Office, No. 128 Nassau-street, corner of Beekman.

The Fate of a Family.

It is gravely rumored in Paris—and the report transmitted to London, seems to excite no surprise—that Prince NAPOLEON is to be presently united in holy matrimony with the Princess Royal of England, the Lady ALICE. There is no hint of disparity in the match to throw doubt on the prognostication. It seems to be granted that all legal and constitutional obstacles may be made to yield to reasons of State. To the Imperial Dynasty of France such an event is, perhaps, highly desirable. In the royal line of England, however reluctant, there is no prevalent objection, no veto power, to bar any union that commends itself to the Crown advisers. And for the alliance between the two nations, a matrimonial alliance of the kind would prove a better bond to unite the two nations, than those which now threaten to relax with the stress of the present conflict. The rumor is, therefore, very far from intrinsically absurd; and thus obtaining currency at a moment when an heir to the French throne is anticipated, gathers even a show of probability.

But that such a project should be entertained, even without immediate prospect of fruition, is a sufficiently note-worthy sign of the times. It marks a prodigious advance, a fundamental change, in the opinions and policy of England. Thirty-five years ago a prophetic intimation of the bare possibility of such a thing would have convulsed the inveterately Anti-Gallican nature of John Bull with horror, equaled only by the terrors of Popery itself. Parliaments could have been found willing to thunder the penalties of high treason at his head, who should suggest the admixture of one drop of Corsican blood with the sluggish lymph of the GUELPHS. The ministry that had assisted at the final overthrow of the BONAPARTES was then in power. NAPOLEON, the head of the most remarkable house in history, after a vain appeal to British hospitality and generosity, was a captive at Longwood—the victim of the paltry and ever-disgraceful persecutions of his jailer, HUDSON LOW, the worthy instrument of a most unworthy policy. The desertion and prostitution of his wife; perpetual separation from his only child; the exile of his family, the ruin that pursued his friends; the infidelity of those whose very social existence was due to his keen penetration and generous recognition of merit; the vain result of a life-long, feverish, inextinguishable ambition; and, worst of all, that solitude which left an unresting, untiring mind to prey on the past, and on itself, until the ancient fable of Prometheus was realized in modern fact: these were but grand elements of misfortune, suffering and sorrow, while minor ones had each its separate and poignant sting. Alone, unfriended and uncomforted, there was no past but of disappointment; no present but of incessant torture within, and of petty annoyance without; no future but a dark, unfrequented, gloomy path, ending in the unhonored tomb of an exile. That all hope of a future restoration of his family to power had abandoned him, his prediction that Europe, in half a century, would be either Republican or Cossack, is fair evidence. Pointing to that victim of British prejudice and revenge, had one appeared and foretold the events of to-day, the probability is he would have been promptly exiled, not to St. Helena, but to some rigorous ward in Bedlam.

Indeed, it is hardly possible to imagine the result, had the spirit of prophecy descended upon the men who then constituted the Government. The Prince Regent—not the less the first gentleman of Europe for having refused that asylum to a fallen foe, which a Fejee Chief must have granted—would have presided—bowigged, dyed, perfumed, enveloped, as represented by LAWRENCE on canvas, by MOORE in verse, and by DICKENS in prose—at that council, whose deliberations should have been so strangely enlightened. There would have been Lord Chancellor ELDON, of Tory idolatry and historical infamy; there would have been that shrewd, taciturn, gouty old intriguer, CHAS. JENKINSON, the impersonation of Tory management and Tory ideas; there would have been the clever and versatile CASTLEREAGH, who, as CORBETT took such delight in repeating, cut his throat at North Cray; there would have been the acute and mercurial VANSITTART; the smooth, courtly, serviceable SIDMOUTH. Then there, no band of conspirators against liberty and right was ever more venomous, daring, vindictive, unprincipled; no Council of Ten at Venice, no Chamber of the Inquisition at Seville, no Committee of Safety at the Tuileries, was so unrelenting in its war upon opposing opinions. They embodied the aristocratic element of the British system. In them it was triumphant over the people, chiefly in the event of the long Continental wars, which the masses, deceived by prejudices deliberately excited, and by slanders officially uttered and circulated, had sustained with untiring patience, but to their own most abject subjugation. They had crushed, and only awaited the result of their acutely contrived torments upon the upstart offender against the rights of legitimacy. Let us suppose them, at the moment our glance through the past reaches the blue chamber at the Carlton Palace, to be engaged in the perusal of the latest of those gratifying reports, wherein the custodian of the doomed man detailed the decay of his physical powers, the fretful energy of his mind, lashed and stung by insolent sub-jailors, and the hopeful prospect of a speedy solution of the merciless experiment in the death of the illustrious subject. At that moment had the announcement been made that in little more than a quarter of a century, the then existing alliance with Russia against the BONAPARTES, should be replaced by an alliance with the BONAPARTES against Russia; that the relics of their dying victim, restored to France, should enjoy the sanctity of a shrine; that to have been a nephew of NAPOLEON BONAPARTE should raise a man to the throne of France, who should raise France to the pinnacle of national grandeur; that the astuteness of that man's policy, and the superior lustre of his arms, should reduce England to the subordinate rank and influence of a mere auxiliary, and make "Waterloo" a forbidden word, save under breath; and that another nephew of the same extinguished upstart should claim the hand of her, who might one day sit on the throne of Great Britain; and that the posterity of old CHARLES BONAPARTE, the village lawyer of Corsica, should eventually wear the crown of GEORGE III.; had such, we say, been the tale of the revelator, we can only suppose a disdainful laugh, and a strait-jacket would have been his thanks.

To believe such a prophecy demanded a subversion of prejudices rooted in the mould of ages; that the natural enemy should become the bosom friend; that the oppressed, scattered, and impoverished kinsman of a State prisoner, should in less than a generation dictate the politics of Europe, and grasp confidently at universal dominion. And yet to-day we live in the realization of the prophecy; the strangest part of it has been reduced to fact; and what is unaccomplished needs but the fiat of LOUIS NAPOLEON to make it as real as the rest. In the plenitude of his influence over his allies, that extraordinary man has but to will it, and the brood of the "Corsican Monster," may yet rule "perfide Albion." Talk of compensation, of an overruling Providence, of revolution, of romance—history has no illustration of either that can rival this.

How far the Royalty of England may be benefited by the suggested transfusion of French blood is a question we leave to physiologists. The leaven of German stolidity would be wisely corrected; and certainly the Teutonic element predominates too exclusively in the British blood royal. A substitute for its saturnine qualities may be found in the mercurial activity of the Franco-Italian, and thus fresh vitality obtained. Politicians will likewise decide whether his Imperial Highness will have to conform with the acts of succession by turning Protestant, or whether the laws of England will yield with its prejudices, and admit marriage with a Roman Catholic. Speculators may conjecture a variety of extraordinary results to flow from such a union. But let the catastrophe and its effect be what they may, the past, and the chapter now enacting and nearing conclusion, afford lessons upon the mutability of human fortune, and the vanity of national prejudices, and the prejudices o rank, which all men may ponder with advantage.

According to the confessions of the Chevalier WYKOFF that diplomatic gentleman was once engaged in negotiating a marriage between Prince NAPOLEON and one of our own countrywomen, and it may, after all, turn out, that the rumored alliance of the BONAPARTES and GUELPHS, is only a canard of the fertile imagination of our scheming countryman.

The Panic in Wall-street.

Panics in Wall-street are among the great phenomena of the moral world; the rise, culmination and subsidence of these financial earthquakes which topple down stocks, prostrate credit, distract bulls and bears, paralyze confidence, and engulf fortunes, are as mysterious and unexplainable as the origin of the cholera or the yellow fever. They come, like the wind, no one can tell whither, and then disappear as tornadoes subside, into a calm, leaving no evidence of their existence but prostrate houses and uprooted trees. It would be a great blessing to the commercial world if some Maury of the Stock Exchange would publish a theory and a chart on the subject of financial panics. In the present crude condition of financial science, these phenomena cause enormous mischiefs from the lack of well-digested observations by which their recurrence might be predicted and their consequences guarded against. Ever since the arrival of the Atlantic, the panic which has just spent its force upon the heads of the denizens of Wall-street has been brewing; but no one has been able to assign any satisfactory cause for it, or to predict the extent of the damage which it may inflict. So far as we have been able to judge from those most learned in commercial affairs, this panic has been occasioned by the remarkable condition of prosperity which all the great interests of the country,—the shipping, manufacturing, agricultural and mercantile,—now enjoy. This high state of prosperity, the healthy condition of our Banks, the reduction of our foreign indebtedness, the abundant harvests, the activity of trade, the superabounding precious metal, and the increasing foreign demand for our breadstuffs appear to be the chief causes of the panic. Men have deliberately and tremblingly argued themselves into the belief that we should be brought to the verge of bankruptcy and ruin if the Bank of England or the Bank of France should suspend specie payments, though the possibility of such an event did not appear to have been entertained, according to our last advices, either in London or Paris. But, if such an event were to occur, it would be because England and France had to use their specie in paying for breadstuffs; and the only effect it would be likely to have upon this country would be to greatly enhance the value of everything, by causing a vast and unwieldly accumulation of specie, and enabling us to pay off our foreign indebtedness and depreciated Exchanges. All these considerations have worked together since the arrival of the Atlantic, when the intelligence was received of the Bank of England having put up the rate of discount to 5½ per cent., to cause the panic which has been producing such disastrous consequences to Stock speculators during the past three or four days. It is too serious a subject to treat with levity; but, to one standing outside of the influences of "the Street," the panic seems marvelously like the nursery story of Chicken Little, in which that timid fowl created a consternation in the barn-yard by proclaiming that the sky was falling, because a rose leaf had fallen on its tail.

Wall-street panics are local in their effects, happily, and, notwithstanding the great tumble in stocks, the prices of all our great staple products, excepting cotton, have advanced on the strength of the foreign news, and there does not seem to be any apprehension of a disastrous turn of affairs among the mercantile classes. Though exchanges may be deranged by the war, and great commotions effected in Europe in consequence of the present condition of affairs, yet the effect produced upon our own commerce must be very temporary, if at all unfavorable. On the arrival of the Africa's mails, the precise character of the European difficulties will be better understood, and a few days of cool reflection will be sufficient to restore confidence, and allay the excitement which the speculators of the Stock Exchange have been thrown into, by the apprehension of evil, rather than by the actual existence of any disturbing element in the commercial world.

Where the Blame Lies.

If a statement of Police Captain TURNBULL be correct, and our belief that it is so is confirmed by reference to our own police reports, there have been repeated attempts to bring the keepers of the gambling hells, of Broadway, and the tenants of Mercer-street, to punishment. The offenders have been arrested; they have been carried before the magistrate, and held to answer; the faro bankers, whose profits are enormous, have been held to answer in $1,000 each, upon their own recognizances; and we are yet without record of one of them having his trial, notwithstanding our apparatus of Mayor, Prosecuting Attorney, Grand Jury, and the rest, who are presumed by that sanguine creature, the Law, to complete the otherwise useless work of the Police. Small men, negroes at a game of "all-fours" for "drinks all round," have been tried, and now contribute to the industrial resources of Blackwell's Island. But the giant offenders—the bold dealers, who traffic in ruin at wholesale—run at large, and find no punishment in the law. Very clearly, either the Mayor or the Prosecuting Attorney, or both, are at fault gravely, and criminally at fault in the matter, if, as we believe, the Police have repeatedly placed the criminals in their hands, and they have shielded them from the punishment they so thoroughly deserve.

How far the Mayor is to be held responsible for this shameless complicity with crime, we may easily ascertain by reading the evidence in the cases now pending against delinquent officials. To secure their indictment, no solicitude, no labor, no importunity, exhausted his perseverance; with his motive, whether personal, or not, we have at present nothing to do. It is sufficient that an alleged reception of a hundred dollars as a bribe, is regarded by Mayor WOOD as so gross an offence against social order as to require the most exemplary punishment, and to command his utmost exertions in promoting its due infliction. Who can doubt that with one-half these pains, the gambling swindlers of our great thoroughfares, engaged daily in the commission of crime, which carries ruin and despair to thousands, and whose guilt may be substantiated by hundreds of witnesses, might have been severely punished, and their resorts closed! Why, when they have been dragged before the Mayor, have they been discharged, and all further action suppressed? Why have they not been indicted; or being indicted, why have they not been brought to trial? Why are the witnesses not mustered? Why are the papers suppressed?

The fault, we repeat, rests, in this one particular, not with the Police; if they have arrested one such wrong-doer, and the Mayor has declined to have him punished, the Police have been taught, by their highest authority, the vanity of all such troublesome tasks.

Political Scandal.

The death of ROBERT H. MORRIS, who has been so long identified with the political movements in this City, and who became very conspicuous at one time by his connection with that scandalous episode in our local politics known as the "Glentworth affair," has given occasion for the revival, by some of our cotemporaries, of a piece of political scandal which would, otherwise, have been forgotten. No one was seriously damaged by the affair; but Mr. MORRIS was indebted to it for much of the good fortune which afterwards befell him. Not that his conduct was specially entitled to great rewards, but, as he was proscribed by the Whigs, who were then in power, he was taken up by the Democrats in the spirit of opposition, and was elected to the Mayoralty, and on Mr. POLK's accession to the Presidency, was appointed Postmaster of this City. With the exception of JONATHAN D. STEVENSON, who is in California, all the parties implicated in the Glentworth or pipe-laying affair, are still residents of this City, and no good purpose can be effected by the revival of a scandal which party feeling magnified into greater importance than it justly merited. The heat and passion of political warfare give undue importance to very trivial events, and when they have passed away we look back upon them with astonishment that they should ever have been the cause of such angry excitements and fierce contentions. The Glentworth affair was one of these events, and those who hear of it now for the first time can have but little idea of the tremendous commotion it once occasioned, and the important results which were expected to be caused by it. But, with the exception of the accidental honor it brought to Judge MORRIS, it passed off, and left not a mark behind.

Result of the First Indictment.

Alderman HERRICK, who enjoys the distinction of being the first member of our Common Council who has been tried for bribery, is placed in a rather equivocal position by the failure of the Jury to render a verdict. They could not agree, and, after two hours and a half of deliberation they were dismissed. We fear that the other indictments will come to a similar end, and that the hangers-on about the City Hall will take heart again; and we shall be thrown once more upon the mercy of the officials who have so long mismanaged our Corporation affairs; an indictment by the Grand Jury will have no particular terror for a Corporation culprit, if it is found that juries cannot agree on a verdict.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Mr. Dallas for the Presidency—Alarm of Mr. Buchanan's Friends—Injured Innocence—The Demands of Cuba—Senor Almonte and the Mexican Presidency—The Mails, &c.

Special Correspondence of the N. Y. Daily Times.

WASHINGTON, Tuesday, Oct. 24, 1855.

The friends of Hon. GEORGE M. DALLAS for the Presidency are moving steadily, silently and cautiously, in his behalf; and already the movement is far more formidable than the friends of rival candidates suppose. Prudent and skillful politicians are laying the wires in each section of the Union; and every measure calculated to secure success, which can be initiated at this early day, is being availed of. The friends of Mr. BUCHANAN, however, have taken the alarm, and are endeavoring to get him home again early as possible, to command his own forces in person.

A BUCHANAN PILGRIMAGE.

Mr. BUCHANAN's friends have been relying, with a good deal of confidence, upon his Ostend Manifesto, to secure him the aid of Mr. SOULE and his coterie; but it has recently been discovered that these are likely to lend their efforts to aid the Dallas cause; and Senator SLIDELL, of Louisiana, has gone on a pilgrimage to that State, it is said, with a view to heading off the Dallas movement if possible. In this the present prospect is that he will be disappointed. Another object of his Southern trip is said to be to prevent the consummation of a negotiation for the sale of the N. O. Delta to J. L. SIGUR, its former proprietor, who is bitterly hostile to the Senator, and is likely also to lead the Dallas forces in that section. I am informed, however, that the bargain for the transfer of the Delta has been concluded. The game of the Presidency is becoming daily more and more complicated, as you will perceive. Among the prominent supporters of Mr. DALLAS is A. DUDLEY MANN, Esq., late Assistant Secretary of State.

AN INJURED INNOCENT.

We have been all astounded here by a telegraphic announcement of one of your cotemporaries, that Mr. CRAMPTON attributes "the attempt to convict him of a violation of the Neutrality laws" to "a conspiracy of foreigners to embroil the two Governments," and that "at the proper time he will show such to be the case." I take it the British Minister would plead "guilty" to any charge short of highway robbery, rather than write himself so complete an ass as the dispatch quoted would make him. The evidence of STROBEL, and the confession of HERTZ, are too thoroughly supported by oral and documentary collateral proof to admit of questioning, and Mr. CRAMPTON has too much sense, under such circumstances, to attempt to play off the injured innocent. Furthermore, if the "proper time" for showing up the "conspiracy" has not yet arrived, it probably never will. The publication of the conclusions of Mr. CUSHING's very sound opinion, in regard to Mr. CRAMPTON's case, certainly gives it official consequence enough to put Her Majesty's representative upon his defense, if he has any: but in fact, he makes none, and will attempt none.

COMITY DON'T DEMAND IT.

I noticed, by the way, in a respectable New-York journal, an editorial criticism upon the trial of HERTZ at Philadelphia, which denounced as unkind and discourteous the refusal of the Court to permit letters from the British Consuls, in regard to the case before it, to be read. The article carried upon its face satisfactory evidence that it was not written by either of the Editors of the journal; and it was probably inserted to gratify some friend of Queen VIC's, without careful scrutiny—for surely no respectable journalist would wittingly lend his editorial columns to support a claim in behalf of a foreign agent such as could not be maintained in behalf of the President of the United States: not even the President can offer his evidence, either written or oral, in any case before our Courts, except he takes the witness-stand, and submits to just such a cross-examination as John Doe is subjected to. Surely international comity demands for foreign agents no privileges in our Courts which our Chief Magistrate cannot enjoy.

SENOR ALMONTE AND THE MEXICAN PRESIDENCY.

Señor ALMONTE, the Mexican Minister here, has not been recalled, nor does there seem any prospect that he will be. Nevertheless, immediately upon SANTA ANA's abdication he began his preparations for returning to Mexico, and it is understood he will leave us in a few days. The fact is, he aspires to the Presidency; and really, of all the men most prominent in the political circles of his distracted country, there are none who stand higher than he, either in point of ability, experience, executive skill, or military rank. He is at the head of the Generals of Brigade in the Mexican army, and was a prominent and influential man in Mexican affairs before most of those who are struggling for the Presidency were known. Nor is he in disgrace as SANTA ANA's friend, for he was not his friend, having been sent to Washington, not because of the Dictator's love for him, but because his banishment to "honorable exile" was the safest mode of keeping him out of the way.

AMERICAN AID AND COMFORT.

In his ambitious schemes, ALMONTE will doubtless be aided by the MARQUESES, GARAYS, ASPINWALLS, and others, who have large moneyed schemes suspended between Mexico and the United States. How convenient it would be for the assignees of the three millions indemnity, for instance, to help ALMONTE to the Presidency by aid of money loaned, and influence exerted, on the condition that, when he reaches the Executive Chair, he shall recognise SANTA ANA's assignments, and so secure the trembling assignees the proceeds of their reckless speculation.

MAIL IRREGULARITIES.

Another failure of the Northern mail occurred to-night, as it does quite regularly now about three times a week. It certainly is remarkable that such irregularities are so frequent upon a route only two hundred and thirty miles long, and directly under the Postmaster General's eye. Where's JOHNNY CAMPBELL's Route Agent? We appeal from the Chief to him.

S.

Mr. Meagher at the Academy of Music.

Some three thousand people assembled last night in the Fourteenth-street Academy of Music, to hear Mr. THOMAS F. MEAGHER's lecture on the Influence of Science on the Welfare of Society.

Among the gentlemen whom we noticed on the stage besides the Committee of Management of the Mechanics' Institute, for whose benefit Mr. THOMAS FRANCIS MEAGHER delivered his lecture gratuitously, were Hon. GEORGE BANCROFT and PETER COOPER. At 8 o'clock, the President, WILLIAM HILBE, introduced the lecturer to the audience, who received him with much enthusiasm.

After the cheering had subsided, and the Secretary, Mr. CHARLES H. DELEVAN, had read a letter from the Hon. EDWARD EVERETT, apologizing for his absence, Mr. MEAGHER commenced his lecture by adverting, in eloquent terms, on the benefits of education to man, using the well-known arguments brought forward in Paley's Evidences, to show that man, in his primitive state, is the weakest and the most defenseless of all animals. But by that powerful instrument, guided by reason, he is enabled to tame the savage lion and the tiger, make the elephant, the horse and the ox subservient to his domestic purposes, and, in fact, makes all creation yield to his almighty empire.

He then, in forcible language, contrasted practical with theoretical and scientific knowledge, showing that though man, in the early periods of the world, were contented with rude practical manipulations, disconnected with the more modern lights of science, that yet the civilization of the present day, aided by a knowledge of the metals, chemistry, electricity, galvanism and Voltaism, brought about astounding results which gave an impetus to the onward progress of the four great nations of the world. He entered into particular examples from the above subjects, exemplifying his views, and concluded by a fine apostrophe to science.

After the lecturer had resumed his seat, an old lady rose from one of the front benches, and said she entirely disapproved of Mr. MEAGHER's view of the Science, and expressed her opinion that if he were permitted to drag the dead from their graves, and make them undergo all kinds of contortions, his next step would be to demolish churches and uproot religion. Having given expression to this conceit, she walked off with an air of offended dignity.

DEATH OF HON. JUDGE MORRIS.

Resolutions Passed—Meeting of the Bar.

In yesterday's paper we briefly announced the death of Hon. ROBERT H. MORRIS, of the Supreme Court. He died on Wednesday, at the residence of his father-in-law, in Astoria. His illness was very brief. He was a spectator at the commencement of the trial of Alderman HERRICK, which was closed yesterday. Mr. MORRIS has been an invalid for some time, and on Tuesday he was confined to the house, but thought he should not have a sick term. He remarked to a friend present that he must hasten and recover, as he should be very busy next month, for he expected he should have to try BAKER, and the other persons connected with the Poole murder. On Wednesday, however, he was taken much worse, and lost almost the entire use of his voice. He continued, however, in his chair until about 12 o'clock, when suddenly his head fell back, and he expired without a groan. The cause of his death was the rupture of a blood vessel. His funeral will take place at Astoria, on Saturday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, when his friends and relatives are invited to attend. We are requested to state that the steamer Ravenswood will leave Peck Slip at 1 o'clock, and land at Astor's in time for the funeral.

Mr. MORRIS was born in Bridge-street in this City in 1806. When about fifteen his father moved to Hudson, where he obtained in the Academy of that city such an education as it could give him. He then entered upon the study of the law in the office of KILLIAN MILLER of Hudson, and when admitted to the Bar commenced practice at Johnston in Columbia County. He received an appointment as Justice of the Peace about the same time.

In 1837 he returned to this City and opened a law office, in partnership with D. E. WHEELER, Esq. Mr. MORRIS was elected to the State Legislature three consecutive terms. In 1839 he was elected to the office of Recorder of this City, when, in 1841, in consequence of his conduct in the Glentworth frauds, he was removed from office, and F. A. TALLMADGE appointed in his place.

Notwithstanding this misfortune, Mr. MORRIS was elected not three months after his expulsion from the Recorder's seat, to the office of Mayor of New-York, to which station he was reelected twice. In 1844 he was appointed Postmaster by Mr. Polk, and was also, in 1845, elected a member of the Constitutional Convention. In 1850 he was elected to the office of Judge of the Supreme Court.

Judge MORRIS was an able and efficient Judge, the ill-natured remarks of one of our evening journals to the contrary notwithstanding. He was an invalid, it is true, but until within a few months of his death he accomplished as much business as any Judge on the Bench. If any person will look through the Minutes of the Court, they will find that Judge MORRIS was far from neglecting his duty, but on the contrary there was no person more ready and willing to work, or who worked harder or longer than he. His loss will be deeply felt.

In the Supreme Court Circuit, Hon. Justices COWLES, MITCHELL and CLERKE being on the bench.

Hon. JOHN W. EDMONDS announced to the Court the death of Mr. Justice MORRIS, and offered the following motions:

Moved, That a Committee be appointed to make arrangements for a general meeting of the Bar, to take into consideration their bereavement arising from the sudden death of Mr. Justice MORRIS.

Moved, That the Court, from respect to his memory, adjourn.

The following Committee were appointed: Hon. John W. Edmonds, D. E. Wheeler, Charles O'Conor, Wm. C. Noyes, J. R. Whiting, Esqrs. The Court then adjourned until this morning at 10 A. M.

A meeting of the Bar will be held at the General Term room of the Supreme Court to-morrow at 10 A. M. By order of the Committee.

☞ The Softs in mass meeting at Tammany Hall last evening, indorsed FRANK PIERCE, the Nebraska bill and HARRY HOWARD, and had a free fight. Read the report in another part of this paper.

CITY POLITICS.

☞ The Liquor Dealers' Convention of the Sixth Senatorial District met last evening and indorsed the nomination of Thomas J. Mundy, (Democrat,) for Senator from that District. The first ballot stood—Thomas J. Mundy, 14; Erastus Brooks, 4.

We learn that the Liquor Dealers' Convention of the Fourth Senatorial District have indorsed the nomination of Mark Spencer for Senator.

The Liquor Dealers of the Third District have not selected any Senatorial candidate.

☞ The Liquor Dealers of the Eighth Ward, on Tuesday, nominated for Assembly, William B. Aiken; for Alderman, Albert W. Smith; for Councilman Seventeenth District, Mr. Cornell; Eighteenth District, W. P. Hilliard; Nineteenth District, R. H. Ellis; for Assessor, Robert Lynn.

☞ The German papers are very merry, and still very indignant, at the meeting of the Maintriists on Wednesday evening. They declare the whole to have been a farce and a humbug. The Daily News, on the other hand, is in ecstacies at the nomination, but especially at the treat which Mr. Mel. gave the Delegates at Florence's after the adjournment.

☞ Mr. Wilson Small, Soft and Half-Shell candidate for Senator in the Fourth District, was indorsed on Wednesday evening by a German meeting in the Fifteenth Ward.

☞ The Seventh Ward Republican Club hold meetings every evening, at the corner of Rutgers and Madison streets, and will do so until after election.

☞ Dr. Julius Fraenkel and Moritz Ettheiler (both Germans) are the Soft candidates for School Trustees in the Tenth Ward.

RICHMOND COUNTY POLITICS.

The Republican Nominating Convention met at Richmond County Hall, 23d inst, and made the following nominations for County officers:

County Judge—H. B. Metcalf.
County Clerk—Israel Oakley.
Member of Assembly—Minthorne Tompkins.
Sheriff—Talbot Butler.
Superintendent of the Poor—D. L. Clarkson.
Justice of Sessions—Eugene Kinsam.
Coroners—John B. Giles and George L. Quirk.

All the above nominations were unanimously made, and will be elected.

George W. Bushnell was appointed delegate to the Judicial Convention, and Hermon B. Cropsey, Minthorne Tompkins, and John T. Dicesy were appointed Delegates to the Senatorial Convention.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

CLOAKS AND TALMAS.—VELVET, MOIRE ANTIQUE, Satin and Cloth of all the latest Paris styles. Also, a choice lot of Gray Beaver Talmas, richly trimmed at very low prices. S. & M. E. TOWLE & CO., Columbian Hall, No. 281 Grand-st.

FRENCH MERINOS.—TEN CASES LUPIN'S SUPERFINE Merinos, just received from auction, comprising every color and shade, at 37 per yard. S. & M. E. TOWLE & CO., Columbian Hall, No. 281 Grand-st.

LYONS BLACK SILK VELVETS—JUST RECEIVED from auction, a large stock, all widths and at low prices. S. & M. E. TOWLE & CO., Columbian Hall, No. 281 Grand-st.

GREAT BARGAINS IN CARPETINGS.—WE HAVE now in store a large stock of Fall importations, comprising Velvet, Tapestry, Brussels, Three-ply and Ingrain Carpeting, Floor Oil-cloths, &c., which we are offering at very low rates for cash. Rich Brussels 75 and 87½ per yard. SMITH & LOUGHERRY, No. 464 Broadway, near Grand-st.

CARPETING AND OIL CLOTHS.—A COMPLETE stock of Velvet and Tapestry Brussels, Tapestry, Ingrain and Floor Oil Cloth. For sale low for CASH. BAILY & BRO'S., No. 634 Pearl-st.

AGAIN ENLARGED
THE SUNDAY MERCURY,
Of October 28, will be
THE LARGEST PAPER
IN THE WORLD
SOLD AT THE LOW PRICE OF
THREE CENTS PER COPY.
NEW STORY—NEW ATTRACTION.
LEONORA; A TALE OF HUMAN PASSION,
Dedicated to the Ladies of New-York
INSIDE OUT;
OR, THREE YEARS IN THE CUSTOM HOUSE.
By JOHN SMITH, Jr., of Astoria.
DON'T FAIL TO READ BOTH.

BARGAINS IN CARPETINGS.
Good Brussels, 56 cents per yard.
PETERSON & HUMPHREY,
No. 279 Broadway.

CARPETS
HEAVY ENGLISH SUPERFINE
62 per yard.
PETERSON & HUMPHREY, No. 279 Broadway.

BLANKETS
ENGLISH BLANKETS
(Large size, 94 25 per pair.
PETERSON & HUMPHREY, No. 279 Broadway.

HATS, CAPS AND FURS.—WEST END EMPORIUM, No. 128 Canal-st. Fall and Winter styles now ready. Every description of Youths' and Children's Caps; Ladies' Beaver and Felt Bonnets. A splendid variety of Furs. J. W. KELLOGG.

CARPETS! CARPETS!! CARPETS!!!
Superb Medallion Velvet Carpets, from the Paris Exhibition, ENGLISH BRUSSELS, 75 per yard.
50,000 yards
INGRAIN, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7c. and 62 per yard, at
HIRAM ANDERSON'S, No. 80 Bowery.

BRILLIANT SUCCESS.—EMINENT TESTIMONY.—GREATEST RESULTS ON RECORD.—THE ONLY CURE FOR PALSY AND RHEUMATISM.—Hon. John Williamson, of Huntingdon, says: I certify that my wife was greatly afflicted and unable to walk, and that she was cured of most instantly by using Prof. C. DeGrath & Co.'s "Electric Oil." I do believe it indelible for Rheumatism, and cheerfully recommend it to all.
JOHN WILLIAMSON,
Attorney at Law, Huntingdon.

Read what the persons there say of such cures, and the testimonial of the people where it is all known. Dr. Samuel Welchans, of Lancaster, Penn., (see the local papers where it is known,) says, after giving the Oil his professional care in trial with his own hand, viz.:
LANCASTER, Oct. 4, 1855.
MESSRS. C DEGRATH & Co., Philadelphia: I have tested your "Electric Oil," and know it is a great blessing. Please send me per Express, any amount of $12, at once, and draw on me at sight for same. Yours truly,
SAMUEL WELCHENS, Druggist,
No. 604 North 2d-st., Philadelphia.

MILTON, Oct. 3, 1855.
MESSRS. DEGRATH & Co., Philadelphia: Your Oil has performed several cures of Rheumatism. We are confined on $50 worth more. Please to let us know how to use it for Fever and Ague. Yours truly,
GOODMAN & MOORY.

HARRISBURG, Penn., Oct. 3, 1855.
GENTS.: We have but a few bottles left, and must have more "Electric Oil." People come night and ten miles to get it daily. Wishing you success, as your Oil may be put within the reach of every family in the world, we remain yours, A. & H. A. HOBBIDB.

Prof. DeGrath & Co., are constantly receiving many such letters as the following:
GENTS.: I thought it would be a benefit to many suffering, to make known my case. I used your Oil a short time since, for the cure of a bone felon, which, by constant application, three times, all pain was removed. I was very lame, but is now as well as ever. The Oil acted like magic on me. Very respectfully, F. PLUMMER.

Ask Andrew Quinlan, Esq., Trenton, N. J. cured his mother. Ask Henry James, Morrisown, N. J. cured his rheumatism. Ask Mathias Bonnell, do., N. J. cured him, and be sure to ask Mr. Joseph Hunting, of Chestnut Hill, what he has seen it do. He is one of the oldest and best citizens, and says, "it cured a severe colic in 5 minutes; also, rheumatism and a felon." It will cure colic, winds, every other other ready falls. It cures hemorrhage of the bowels, tetter, ulcers, felons, &c. It cures all the complaints of the world. Always cures headache, in from 5 to 20 minutes. In fact it is an unequaled Medicine, both for external and internal use, and is carefully prepared from innocent and pleasant ingredients, by A. H. DATTY, Chemist, and has proved to be invaluable even to children.

None genuine, unless signed with a pen, thus: DEGRATH & Co. Countersigned, A. H. SMITH.

Only office, No 2 South 9th-st., three doors south of Chestnut, above and near the famous Mason Factory.

BEWARE.—By reading Harrisburg papers, it will be seen that one man has been locked up for using the name of our Oil. C DEG. & Co.

Price 50c., 75c., 75c and $1; six large bottles for $5, and warranted to cure Rheumatism and Nervous Pains. Sold at manufacturers' prices by BARNES & PARK, No. 366 Broadway, corner of Duane-st.

GREAT FIRE IN BROOKLYN.—IN ANSWER TO the statement of Mr. E. T. BRADY, Superintendent of Hooker & Brother's Mills, which appeared on Thursday morning, we answer the affidavit of Mr. A. J. Harrington, the point at issue before the public, who are the most interested in the matter, is, was the safe recovered from the backward papers of Hooker & Brother, or Wilder's Patent Safe," or "Herring's Patent Safe." We claim it was WILDER'S PATENT, as proved to be the case with the safes that preserved the books, papers and money of Messrs. Carrington & Dowdney, of Vesey st., New-York; Messrs. J. M. Fatchild & Co., of Fulton-st., New-York; Messrs. Falconer, Plummer & Co., of Petersburg, Va., and Messrs. Bacon & Brothers, of Simsbury, Conn., all of which were claimed by S. C. Herring to be Herring's patent safes, and proved as conclusively as the WILDER'S PATENT SALAMANDER.
E. G. WILDER & CO.,
Patentees and Manufacturers of Wilder's Patent Salamander Safes,
Depôt No 128 Water-st., near Wall-st., New-York.

NEW-YORK, Oct. 15, 1855.—I hereby certify that on the afternoon of the 12th inst., I called at the place where the recent fire took place in Brooklyn, for the purpose of ascertaining the mark on the safe that saved the books and papers of Messrs. Hooker & Brother. I there met a person in charge who gave the name of Mr. A. J. Harrington, who knew my business. He replied distinctly and clearly, twice, that the plate on the safe was marked "Wilder's Patent." A. J. HARRINGTON.
Sworn to before me this 16th day of October, 1855.
M. O. EVERETT, Commissioner of Deeds.

THE "EXCELSIOR" EXCITEMENT.—IT COULD scarcely have been believed, had not the fact been so demonstrated, that the introduction of any new style of hat would produce the furore caused by GENIN'S Excelsior. No not hat ever manufactured, either at home or abroad, can compare with it. The easy, light and eminently beautiful color, as well as unique form, excites universal admiration. Every attempt to imitate it has as far proved abortive. Orders for the Excelsior pour in from the country, where it is as popular as in the metropolis. It is hoped that the arrangements which have now been made to supply the demand will be earlier prevent any delay in the supply of customers. For sale, wholesale and retail, by GENIN, No 214 Broadway,
Opposite St. Paul's Church.

STEARNS & MARVIN'S
WILDER PATENT SALAMANDER SAFES,
Thirteen years in use and have never failed to preserve their contents when in the ravages of fire. These safes are secured by Brannan's La Boite Lock, which is proof against powder and burglars. For sale by
STEARNS & MARVIN,
No. 166 Water-st., New-York.

JUST AS WE PREDICTED.—THE RATE OF INTEREST has gone up in Europe. The Bank of England is pressed for specie. The war is draining the coffers of that institution. The reaction is tremendous in its effects upon this country. Everything has gone up, except the prices of KNOX'S elegant hats, at No. 212 Broadway, and corner of Broadway and Fulton-st.

HERRING'S PATENT CHAMPION FIRE AND BURGLAR-proof Safes, with Hall's patent non-conductor lock. Both received prize medals at the World's Fair, Lond. 1851, and Crystal Palace, New-York 1853-'54. SILAS C. HERRING & Co., Nos. 125, 127 and 129 Water-st., New-York.

WIGS, WIGS, WIGS.
BATCHELOR'S Wigs and Toupees are the best, in elegance and variety, all in the known world. His perfection of practical science and beauty, combined the great desideratum, ease and durability. Also BATCHELOR'S Genuine Molecule Cream, for preserving and ornamenting the hair. BATCHELOR, No. 233 Broadway.

CRISTADORO'S HAIR DYE, WIGS AND TOUPEES stand prominent above all competition. A suite of elegant private rooms for applying his famous dye, the most standard article of its kind throughout the world

SPECIAL NOTICES.

☞ Wholesale Lynch Council.—This distinguished council is thoroughly relieved by DR. HOULINTON'S ASTHMA AND WHOOPING COUGH REMEDY. It cures in one night, and can be been to children with perfect safety. A few drops at bed-time quiet the tough old adult, and a few doses cure entirely. Sold by A. COMSTAM & CO., No. 102 Broadway, and by all Druggists.

☞ Rose Blossoms for the Complexion, and eradicating all tan, pimples, and freckles from the face, use the BALM OF THOUSAND FLOWERS. PERRIGO & CO., Druggists-Square, Proprietors. For sale by C. H. PERRIGO, Broadway, and BURNTON, No. 10 Astor House, and No. 102 Chestnut-st., Philadelphia.

☞ Parsons & Co.—Flushing, near New-York, offer for sale a large stock and variety of FRUIT and ORNAMENTAL TREES, SHRUBS, ROSES, VINES, EXOTIC PLANTS, &c. For Catalogues apply by mail or at No. 19 Vesey-st.

☞ WIM Cherry Bark and Tar, by an ingenious combination with a few other simples, effect an the extraordinary antidotes known for consumption of the lungs. Dr. WISTAR, in his BALSAM OF WILD CHERRY, has produced a remedy of untold value.

☞ Mercantile Library Association.—The Board of Directors have the pleasure to announce that Mr. WM. M. THACKERAY will deliver a course of Four Lectures on the Four Georges of England, and society during their reigns, in Rev. Mr. Chapin's Church, No. 842 Broadway, near Grand-st., on MONDAY and THURSDAY EVENINGS of each week, commencing at 8 o'clock, viz.:

THURSDAY, Nov. 3, George First.
MONDAY, Nov. 7, George Second.
THURSDAY, Nov. 10, George Third.
MONDAY, Nov. 14, George Fourth.

Course Ticket to Members.....$1 00
Course Ticket to Non-Members.....2 00
Single Admission.....75 cts.

Course Tickets (with reserved seats) can be obtained at the Book of the Library.

A limited number of Single Admission Tickets can be had at the Library Rooms, or (unless previously disposed of) at the door.

A. H. TEMPSON,
JOHN GERRAR,
WM. H. WICKHAM, } Lecture Committee.

☞ Crystal Palace.—FAIR OF THE AMERICAN INSTITUTE.—Open day and evening.—THIS DAY (Friday) the BANDALLS 1st AND 2d BOYS will parade in the Palace, commencing at 4 o'clock. Mow-Hawks and their band will visit the Fair in the evening. The POULTRY SHOW is open. Nine fire engines will be tested on WEDNESDAY next, by throwing water upon the Hydrostatic Table Cots (the Artist's Observatory).

PROMENADE CONCERT, BY DODWORTH, THIS EVENING.

PROGRAMME.

1. Pravocato March, Mulnaer.
2. Overture from "Alchemico Scudella".....Weber.
3. Polka—Polka, "La Fille du Regiment".....Donizetti.
4. Tentonia Polka.....Freising.
5. Le Bouquet National, "The Rose, the Thistle and the Shamrock."
6. Grand Chorus.....Hirschmann.
7. Les Rosalis.....Hanon.
8. Ballade, Waltz.....Strauss.
9. Arie from "Robert Bruce".....Rossini.
10. Arie from "Ballo in Ohsonnia".....Donizetti.
11. Galopade.....Rehmer.

☞ Wakefield Engineering Stoves Association, No. 2.—All Members in arrears on their payments of late, are hereby notified that if the same is not paid by the 20th inst., their shares will be forfeited, and they will be no longer considered Members of the Association. Members desirous of paying previous to the above date, can do so at the residence of the Secretary, No. 151 Varick-st. By Order of the Association.

J. ANDREW HANDSCHUGH, Secretary.

☞ Church of the Puritans, Union-square.—Mr. WILLIAM ROY, a Delegate of the Protestant Society of Geneva, Switzerland, will give an interesting sermon on Sunday EVENING, Oct. 23, at 7½ o'clock. The public are cordially invited to be present.

☞ To Advertisers.—A few select advertisements will be admitted in the Spanish edition of Rachel's plays, to be sold in Havana, and comprising from twenty to twenty thousand a piece. For terms, &c., apply to BAKER & GODWIN, Times Buildings.

POLITICAL.

TWENTY-FIRST WARD MUNICIPAL REFORM NOMINATIONS.—At a meeting of citizens of the XXIst Ward, called in pursuance of the recommendation of the Central Committee, of which Peter Cooper is Chairman, held at Tammany's Hall, No. 372 6th-st., on Wednesday evening, 19th Oct. 1853, the following ticket, was unanimously nominated:

Assembly, { Dist. LIV.....JOHN WHEEWELL.
Dist. LV.....CHAS. H. HARWELL.
Assessor.....EDWARD S. YELLOWS.
Supervisor.....{ ISAAC N. HERRICK, LEWIS S. THOMAS.
Trustees.....{ HENRY M. SCHIEFFELIN, JAMES BROOKS, REV. J. J. ATTERBURY, FRANCIS L. HARRIS, JEREMIAH V. LOCKWOOD.
Constables.....JOHN ALBY.

Inspectors of Election—1st District, Thomas O. Davis, Moses Dickenson. 2d Dist 1st, Wm. H. Kirby, William H. Williams. 2d Dist. 2d, Milton J. Reeves, Daniel Gilchrist. 3rd District, Cornelius J. Miller, Frederick Smith.

The following resolutions were adopted with entire unanimity:

Resolved, That the honorable contract between the constituent of our representative in the Common Council, and those members from other Wards, who have brought contrast and reproach on their constituents by adhesion against the laws for which some of them stand arraigned at the bar of justice, vindicates the course we have pursued since the third was formed, of making independent nominations for our ward, and we now, at the eve of a new period, nominate only to elect men of ability and unblemished character to manage our local affairs.

Resolved, That our honorable Alderman, GEORGE W. VARIAN, has discharged the duties of his trust in a manner that reflects honor upon him as the peer of any other man of all parties, and we are proud to rank him among that noble minority of true Reformers in the Board of Aldermen, who have waged an unequal but most gallant contest against the combined forces of fraud and corruption.

Resolved, That JOHN WEBBER and CHARLES H. MAXWELL have proved themselves true friends of the people, "members of the Board of Counsellors, and are among the most active and efficient members in that body. Their votes have uniformly been given on the side of honesty and right, and we will use all honorable means to promote their re-election.

Resolved, That the Reform County Ticket headed by that most faithful public officer, the Hon. AZARIAH C. FLAGG, merits and shall receive our hearty and energetic support, and we trust the party ridden people of this City will no longer be the victims of the combination of factions, the necessity of choosing heads of departments, whose antecedents warrant the belief that they will redeem the gross abuses which have reflected such deep disgrace on the fair fame of the City.

GEORGE GREER, Chairman.

Board Representative, Thomas G. Smith, Elias H. Herrick } Vice-Chairmen.
Lewis S. Thomas, George J. Byrd, } Secretaries.

REGULAR DEMOCRATIC WHIG NOMINATIONS FOR THE XXIst WARD.

For Alderman—CUMMINGS H. TUCKER.

For Assembly—
1st District—JAMES T. COUENHOVEN.
2d District—JOHN V. GRIDLEY.
3d District—DANIEL D. COWDEN.
For Assessor—FRANCIS M. CURTY.
For Constables—DANIEL HUCKINS, JOHN GARBUTT.
For School Commissioner—JAMES M. SHERARD.
For Inspector—JOHN T. WILLIAMS.
For Trustee—OLIVER H. LEE, ELEAZER JOHNSON, JAMES REEVE.

Inspectors of Election.
1—James Andrews, Jr., John McKinnonia.
2—Samuel E. Adams, Frank in Green.
3—Wm. H. Peabody, Wm. Z. Rowland.
4—Welcome H. Robbs, James Kearney.
George Boyd, George F. Lane.
6—Gideon Taylor, Gideon W. White.

By order of the Charter Convention.

JOHN WILLIAMS, Chairman.
JAMES KEARNEY, Secretary.

SILVERNER WARD WHIG NOMINATIONS.
For Alderman—SAMUEL DELAMATER.
For Councilmen.
Forty-second District—HENRY JENKINS.
Forty-third District—AUGUSTUS C. BOOHAEM.
Forty-fifth District—WILLIAM H. BULL.
Forty-fifth District—CHARLES S. WATROUS.
For Assessor—EDWARD BERRIAN.
For Constables—CORNELIUS S. CHICHESTER, WM. JACKSON.
For Commissioner Common Schools—JOHN DELAMATER.
For Inspector Common Schools—EDWIN SMITH.
For Trustee Common Schools—S. C. WANDELL, WM. GOOD.

By order of the Whig Ward Committee.

ABRAM PEARCE, Chairman.
WM. GOOD, T. CHRISTY, Jr., } Secretaries.

THE SEVENTH WARD REPUBLICAN CLUB—Will meet at the corner of Rutgers and Madison sts., EVERY EVENING, until after the election.

JOS. B. CLOSE, President.
ROBT. D. HICKS, Secretary.

PUBLIC MEETINGS.

EMERSON GUARDS.—The members of the Emerson Guards will meet for regular drill at Mozart's Hall, No. 128 Spring-st., on SATURDAY EVENING, at 7½ o'clock. Each and every member will be promptly on hand. The Company will proceed to Mott Haven on Wednesday morning, Oct. 31, for Target Practice and other Services having guests will assemble at the office of the United States Hotel, at 8½ o'clock A. M., on the morning of the day specified. By order,

D. E. GAVIT, Commandant.
JOHN MCKENNIS, Acting Orderly.

NOTICE TO THE BAR.—A meeting of the members of the Bar, on occasion of the death of Judge Monell, will be held at the General Term Room of the Supreme Court on SATURDAY next, at 10 A. M. By order of the Committee of Arrangements.

J. W. EDMONDS, Chairman.

SUITS COMMENCED AGAINST INFRINGERS! HYATT'S PATENT LIGHTS.

75 cents for an ILLUMINATING VAULT COVER.
ROOF, SKYLIGHT and AREA LIGHTS, 75 cents per foot.
At HYATT'S Illuminating Works, 130 West Broadway.

COGNAC AND GRAPE OIL.—Warranted high flavor of the best in market. Essences, Otard and Hennessey, peach, cherry, apple brandies, Holland gin, Scotch whisky, port wine; coloring and flavoring oils, wintergreen, peppermint, sassafras, 5 over and bitter almonds, metals, and magnetic powders, homeopathic chemicals, for sale by Dr. T. FEUCHTWANGER, No. 20 Maiden-lane.

WHISKERS OR MOUSTACHES—Produced in six weeks by ONGUENT, which will not stain or injure the skin. $1 a bottle. Sent to any part of the country. R. G. GRAHAM, No. 308 Broadway; SPALDING, No. 27 Tremont-row, Boston; BRIGGS, No. 37 State-st.; Albany; HAYES, No. 176 Fulton-st., Brooklyn; SIMERS, No. 63 North 3d-st., Philadelphia.

THE PUBLIC ARE RESPECTFULLY informed that Mr. HAWKINS is no longer the Agent for Mr. Wm. Wheeler, and will not be in any way connected with him in the management of his Electro-Chemical Baths, which are in successful operation under the personal superintendence of the inventor, at No. 200 4th-av., New-York.

WANTED.

SITUATIONS WANTED—By a Protestant English woman, as nurse and plain cook; a Scotch maid, by another, as nurse, cook, or cook, washer and ironer, or would not an been dress; by another, as chamber maid and fine washer, or chamber maid and waiter, or chamber maid and nurse; by another, as nurse, or nurse and seamstress. All could Protestant women, having the best of City and country references. No objections to the country. Call or address No. 29 2d-av., Bible House, for two days.

SITUATION WANTED—By a Protestant English man, to superintend a farm and take charge of horses, a good postmark, and capable of keeping accounts in a factory, or where any number of men are employed, having seven years' experience in conducting an establishment where character and capability was fully tested; understands the care and management of cattle in general, and breeding of horses and the training is fully understood by the subscriber; no objection to go south or West. Address INDUSTRY, this office, for one week.

SITUATION WANTED—By a most respectable middle aged woman, as nurse, one who can take charge of a baby from its birth, or would take care of small children, and who will be found confidential and a capable person; has served in the capacity for many years, and whose character will be found most satisfactory from a highly respectable family at present in town; has no objection to the country. Call at the store No. 62 Maiden-lane, between 9th and 10th sts., for two days.

SITUATION WANTED—By an experienced, competent and highly respectable woman, as good cook and pastry cook, that fully understands her business; is a first-rate baker, and would a seat in washing and ironing, in a thoroughly competent nurse. Has the very best of City references, and will be found most willing and cheerful in her business. Apply at No. 19 Tillary-st., Brooklyn, to-day or to-morrow.

SITUATIONS WANTED—By two respectable and competent Protestant young women; one a first-rate pastry cook, can do all kind of cooking, soups, jellies, &c.; the other a neat nurse and seamstress, or waitress and chambermaid. Both are highly recommended. No objections to the country. Apply at No 271 Bowery, this day or to-morrow.

SITUATIONS WANTED—As cook and to wash and iron, or to do general domestic work in the City or country, by a very experienced girl, with good City references; and as seamstress, or as nurse and seamstress by a competent young woman, who is a nice hand at children's clothing, shirt making, &c. Call at No. 72 6th-av., in the book store.

SITUATION WANTED—By three American young women; one as cook, washer and ironer, or to do general housework; one as chamber-maid and waiter; the other as nurse and seam stress. Also, by a German young woman as nurse and seamstress, or chambermaid and waiter. They have the best of City references. Apply at No. 7 11th-st., near Broadway.

SITUATION WANTED—By a highly respectable, intelligent and trustworthy Protestant English writer, who is well experienced in everything pertaining to his business. His personal and written references for honesty, sobriety and attention, will prove him to be worthy the notice of any employer requiring such a person. Apply at No. 271 Bowery until engaged.

SITUATION WANTED—By a young woman, as seamstress, in a private family; she can cut and fit ladies' dresses, all kinds of family sewing; if not satisfied will go out by the day. The advertiser can show unexceptionable references from her last place. Call, or address a note to SEAMSTRESS, No. 260 28th-st., between 1st and 2d avs. Apply for one week.

SITUATIONS WANTED—By two very experienced well recommended girls, who wish to be together, one as a first class cook and to help so laundress in a private family; the other as chambermaid and waiter or as chambermaid and seamstress. Call at No. 72 6th av., in the bookstore.

SITUATION WANTED—By a respectable young woman, in a small private family, as cook or chambermaid; is a good plain cook, and a fine-rate washer and ironer; can give the best of City reference. Apply at No. 4½ Spring-st., front house, second floor, back room. Can be seen for two days, if not engaged.

SITUATION WANTED—By a well-recommended young woman of experience as cook, washer and ironer, or would do housework. Is a good baker of bread, and understands milk and butter. No objection to the country. Is thoroughly acquainted with City and country work. Call at No. 223 Bowery.

SITUATION WANTED.—A young woman, accustomed to sewing and the care of children desires a situation as seamstress or nurse. She can give good references from her last employer and others. Inquire at No. 122 Congress-st., South Brooklyn.

SITUATION WANTED—By a young woman, as chambermaid and waiter, or chamber maid and assist in washing and ironing, or waiting in a small family; has been eight years in her last place. Call at No. 145 6th-av., between 16th and 17th sts., to-day.

SITUATION WANTED—By an experienced washer and polisher, with some first-class house; has a thorough knowledge of the furniture business; has managed a large business. Address G. E., Times Office, stating where an interview may be had.

SITUATION WANTED—By a young woman as chambermaid and waiter; or chambermaid and fine washer and ironing or waiting alone. Good City references can be given. Call at No. 121 East 26th-st., between 2d and 3d ave., 2d floor. Can be seen for two days.

SITUATION WANTED—By a respectable Protestant young woman, as cook, and to assist in the washing and ironing; is a superior baker. Apply at No. 318 1st-av., near 20th st. Good City reference from her last place. Can be seen for two days.

SITUATION WANTED—By a respectable young woman, as chambermaid and waiter, or assist in washing and ironing, to take care of children and plain sewing; good City reference from her last place. Call at No. 204 7th-av., between 20th and 30th sts.

SITUATION WANTED—By a respectable young woman, as good plain cook, washer and ironer; understands baking; no objection to do the work of a small private family; good reference. Call at No. 122 Elizabeth-st., room No. 3, first floor. Can be seen for two days.

SITUATION WANTED—By a young girl as cook; some who is competent in her business; she would assist in the washing and ironing, if required. Call at her present place, where she will remain until suited. No. 170 East 19th-st.

SITUATION WANTED—By a young colored man of the highest character, as waiter, in a private boarding house, or as porter in a store. Can give the best of City reference. Address P., Times Office, for four days.

SITUATION WANTED—By a respectable young woman, as chambermaid or seamstress. Can give unexceptionable City references. Address or apply at No. 96 East 16th-st.

SITUATION WANTED—By a respectable woman, as good cook; four years and a half in her last place. No objection to the country. Call at No. 44 Hamilton-st.

WET NURSE.—A highly respectable Protestant woman wishes to meet with a good family that has a baby to wet nurse; has lost her own baby. Can be recommended by the doctor that waited on her; and the best of City references. Can be seen for two days at No. 64 10th-st., between 6th and 7th ave.

A TEACHER OF FRENCH, SPANISH AND DRAWING WANTED IMMEDIATELY.—A young man, a native of France or Spain, or educated in those countries so as to speak their language fluently and grammatically, and able to express himself correctly in English, is wanted for a well-established institution about one hundred miles (by railway) from New-York. It is also desired that he should be able to teach Drawing. Applicants must be well recommended. Salary moderate and situation pleasant. Apply to H. J. SCHMIDT, at No. 223 West 23d-st., between the hours of 3½ and 4 P. M.

SCHOOL TEACHER WANTED.—Wanted a person to take charge of a boys' classical school, in Elizabeth, N. J., in connection with Christ Church. The applicant must be a communicant of the Church, capable of fitting boys for college, and should possess a knowledge of vocal music. A candidate for holy orders would be preferred. The salary is good. Address Rev. E. A. HOFFMANN, Elizabeth, N. J.

TEACHER WANTED—For year 1854, in a female institution at the South; a gentleman fully competent to teach the French language and instrumental and vocal, both individually and in classes. Apply to J. W. FENN, No. 113 Broadway; or address Rev. J. S. R. LEGARE, Orangeburgh, S. C.

A YOUNG LADY—(Teacher of Music)—Desires to make an arrangement with some genteel private family, by which she can give instruction upon the piano-forte and in singing in exchange for the comforts of a home. Address INSTRUCTRESS, Times Office. References exchanged.

GOVERNESS.—A young lady wishes the situation as Governess in a family, to teach the English branches, rudiments of French, Music and Latin. Can teach drawing and painting in water colors. Would prefer to go south. Address Miss FOSTER, Box No. 285 Bridgeport, Conn. References exchanged.

TO CHRISTIAN FAMILIES.—A widower, without a home, and having been noticed to leave his situation as clerk, would be happy to place two of his children in pious families—an ingenious and sensible boy, over 11 years, and an affectionate little girl, 9 years. Both are well-trained in the religion of the Bible, and respectable in appearance. Reference of the highest order. Address A. B., Box 2,036.

TEACHER.—A lady, experienced in teaching, wishes to make an engagement in a private family, to teach the English branches and rudiments of music. Best of references given and required. Address K. D. M., this office.

A GOOD CHANCE.—Wanted, a few young men, landsmen; also, coopers, blacksmiths, cook and steward, and boatsteers, for whaling voyages. All clothing furnished for the voyage. Inquire at the office of the Apollo, No 97 West-st., corner of Cedar-st., up stairs, opposite Pier No. 14, North River.

TO STRAW MANUFACTURERS.—Situation wanted as forewoman by a young lady of considerable experience in the sewing or wiring departments; best of references can be given. Address F. A., this office.

COACHMAN WANTS A SITUATION.—Is a good groom and understands his business perfectly in all its branches; is of temperate habits and a steady driver; has a practical knowledge of gardening; has no objection to any location, and will give satisfactory reference. Address J. E., Times office, for two days.

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN WANTED—To learn a beautiful art that pays from $4 to $6 a day profit; and is suitable for either City or country; is taught in two hours at a low rate. Apply to Professor STEVENS & CO., No 44 Hudson-st.

THE "LINDEN HARP" IS SELLING RAPIDLY.—Single copies sent, post paid, to any address, for nine stamps. More agents wanted. Address, with stamp, C. M. THAYER, Middletown, Conn.

COACHMAN AND COOK WANTED—In a gentleman's family; both must be first-class. Englishers preferred. Apply at No. 149 Grand-st.

TEN GIRLS WANTED—To work on coats, at No. 66 Chambers-st., up stairs.

PROTESTANT AND OTHER FEMALE SERVANTS—Can be obtained at the Ladies' Protestant Employment Society's Office, No. 7 Cortlandt-st.

JOHN YOUNG, Manager.

PORTABLE CONGRESS WATER; OR SARATOGA SALT.—This valuable salt, prepared by one of the first chemists in Philadelphia, Mr. Hodgson, will be found very valuable for travelers, as it is very portable, and can be used when it would be impossible to be at the Water itself. It is made from a careful and exact analysis, and one teaspoonful in a pint of water represents exactly a pint of Congress Water. Sold by HEGEMAN, CLARK & CO., Nos. 165, 273, 511 and 706 Broadway, and by druggists' generally.

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

READ
THE OLD HOMESTEAD.
YOU WILL LIKE IT!

From the Boston Post.

As a literary work superior to "Fashion and Famine."

From the Day Book.

Superior in pathetic interest.

From the Boston Traveller.

We have read it with delight.

From the New-York Daily Times.

Mary Fuller is a creation of which any living author might well be proud.

THE OLD HOMESTEAD,
BY MRS. ANN S. STEPHENS,
Author of "Fashion and Famine."
IS JUST PUBLISHED,
And is received with even greater
APPROBATION
Than the author's previous work.
The orders for it have already nearly exhausted the first supply of
FIFTEEN THOUSAND COPIES.
EXTRACTS FROM NOTICES OF THE PRESS ALREADY RECEIVED.

From the Boston Post.

Many portions are intensely interesting.

From the Boston Traveller.

Its tone is eminently religious.

From the New-York Daily News.

The author's fame will rest on this volume.

From the New-York Express.

Dickens has never surpassed some of its descriptions of local scenes.

From the New-York Daily Times.

Seldom have we had a more truthful, a more charming glimpse of rural life. In parts it is highly dramatic; and all its aim is pure and lofty. Mary Fuller is a creation of which any living author might be proud.

From the Columbian Enterprise.

The story is touchingly sweet, full of that humanity which springs from well-improved experience. It attracts even more by its appeal to the better feelings of our nature, than by the enchanting interest of the narrative.

From the Pennsylvanian.

This is one of the best works of the gifted authoress. The scenes of domestic life are all drawn with such force as to leave an unfailing impression upon the mind of the reader, that they are vivid realities.

From the Detroit Evening Tribune.

The simple, glowing force of the style and straightforward narrative enhance the breathless interest of the story. There are charming pictures of country life in the mountains, and several characters, each one of which might form the staple of a novel. The apple-gathering and cornhusking frolic, with other scenes on the farm, are pictures containing a world of hearty life, and will be richly enjoyed by all who remember the good old times.

From the Detroit Advertiser.

The reader is fain to laugh as well as to weep, with the pages of the "Old Homestead" before him. There is a charm emanating almost to magic in the writings of Mrs. Stephens which claims the attention and delights the heart. She will find readers in abundance wherever the language is spoken.

From the Boston Olive Branch.

Many of the scenes are laid in the humble walks of life, and all the author's fine descriptive powers are brought to bear upon them. The comfortless room where the girl watcher waits for her dying father—where they meet at last in his death-hour, and part forever; the simple but cheerful home of Chester; the long night at Bellevue; the solemn burial, with only those two lonely children mourners; and the exquisite picture of life at the Old Homestead—all show the tenderness of the woman, combined with the skill of the artist.

In one vol., 12mo. Price $1 25.

BUNCE & BROTHER, Publishers,
No. 126 Nassau-st.

READ
THE OLD HOMESTEAD.
YOU WILL LIKE IT!

JOHN BROUGHAM'S BOOK,
A BASKET OF CHIPS.
THIRD EDITION READY THIS DAY.

The trade who have been unable for the last few days to obtain supplies of the above work are informed that the third edition is now ready for delivery.

THIS HUMOROUS AND DELIGHTFUL VOLUME is a success most decidedly. All who read it are highly pleased with its brilliant and varied contents.

From the Boston Evening Gazette.

The incarnation of genial wit, of true good feeling, of sound common sense and honest human nature, is John Brougham. Whatever has his initials appended to it we read with a deal of pleasure, for well we know that this "J. B." is "sly, sir—devilish sly," and that no base metal ever comes from the crucible of his brain. Mr. John Brougham is not only "a fellow of infinite jest and humor," but one of brains, of sense, and humanity. His pen is caustic, but polished, and his writings show a deal of knowledge of the world. Not only as a humorous writer does he excel, but his serious tales have a pathos and an interest fully equal to the merits of his lighter compositions.

In 1 vol., 12mo. Price $1 25.

BUNCE & BROTHER,
Publishers, No 126 Nassau-st., New-York.

READ
THE OLD HOMESTEAD.
YOU WILL LIKE IT!

MR. LONGFELLOW'S NEW POEM.
On SATURDAY, Nov. 10,
TICKNOR & FIELDS
WILL PUBLISH:
I.
THE SONG OF HIAWATHA.
BY HENRY W. LONGFELLOW.
One volume 12mo, 230 pages. Price $1.

ALSO, ON THE SAME DAY:
CURIOUS STORIES ABOUT FAIRIES
AND
OTHER FUNNY PEOPLE.
A charming book for children. Illustrated by Billings. Price 75 cents.

READ
THE OLD HOMESTEAD.
YOU WILL LIKE IT!

NEARLY READY.
I.
TWO NEW VOLUMES OF DE QUINCEY'S WRITINGS prepared by himself, containing Narratives and Political Economy, with a Memoir of the "Opium Eater," by Griffiths.
II.
SELECTIONS FROM THE WRITINGS OF DE QUINCEY.
III.
MEN AND WOMEN, a new volume by Robert Browning.
IV.
POINTS OF DIFFERENCE BETWEEN THE OLD AND NEW CHRISTIAN CHURCHES.

LIVE AND LET LIVE, a Mechanic's Story, by Charles Reade, author of "Peg Woffington," &c.

TICKNOR & FIELDS, Publishers.

READ
THE OLD HOMESTEAD.
YOU WILL LIKE IT!

NEW BOOKS—JUST PUBLISHED.
DR. BALL'S RAMBLES IN EASTERN ASIA. 12mo. $1 25.
CARRIE EMERSON. By Mrs. C. A. HATHEN. 12mo. $1.
KATE STANTON—A Page from Real Life. 12mo. $1.
YOU KNOW WHOM; OR, OUR SCHOOL AT FRENSONVILLE. 18mo.
EMILY'S LAY AND OTHER POEMS. 18mo.
SUSE ANCHOR. (Second edition.) 12mo.
HISTORY OF THE HEN FEVER. (Third edition.) 12mo. $1.
JAMES FRENCH & CO., Boston,

READ
THE OLD HOMESTEAD.
YOU WILL LIKE IT!

THE POETRY OF GERMANY.
BY ALFRED BASKERVILLE.
Consisting of Selections from upwards of Seventy of the most celebrated Poets, translated into ENGLISH VERSE,
With the original text on the opposite page.
SECOND EDITION—REDUCED PRICE.
A most beautiful volume of nearly 700 pages; just issued again, in cloth extra, for $1 50. The Trade supplied by
F. W. CHRISTERN,
Foreign Bookseller and Importer, No. 766 Broadway.

READ
THE OLD HOMESTEAD.
YOU WILL LIKE IT!

ALMACK'S,
A NOVEL OF ENGLISH FASHIONABLE LIFE.

This is a reprint of a work that has created the greatest excitement in fashionable circles in England. In this country it will be read with similar interest, since fashionable coteries possess in all countries the same distinctive features. It abounds with wit, humor and fancy, and the plot is admirably constructed. A large edition is now ready, but those who are desirous of procuring a copy should apply immediately, to

H. LONG & BROTHER,
No. 121 Nassau-st. Price 50 cents.

READ
THE OLD HOMESTEAD.
YOU WILL LIKE IT!

MYLNE'S ENGLISH GRAMMAR,
EDITED BY J. F. GIBSON, NEW-YORK.
For sale by Messrs. MILLER, No. 448 Broadway, New-York.
Price 25 cts.

It is the clearest, best arranged, and most satisfactory exposition of the elements and principles of grammar we have ever seen, and we predict will become a standard school book.—Tuckerman.

READ
THE OLD HOMESTEAD.
YOU WILL LIKE IT!

NEW MUSIC.—Specimens copies gratis to music teachers and purchasers. Just issued, the three following truly beautiful pieces composed by Julius Metz. The "Golden Dream Schottische," "Riverdale Schottische," "Sweet Part with Thee," (song), 25c.; and "Bobolink Polka," by Metz, 25c. The above four pieces will be mailed free for $1. H. B.—Report's music for sale at the lowest possible prices.

COOK & BRO., No. 343 Broadway.

READ
THE OLD HOMESTEAD.
YOU WILL LIKE IT!

NEW PUBLICATIONS.

READ
THE OLD HOMESTEAD.
YOU WILL LIKE IT!

GET IT AND READ IT.
"THE WATCHMAN;"
An Interesting and Moral Tale of Domestic Life.
A COMPANION TO "THE LAMPLIGHTER."
Published in one volume, cloth, 400 pages.

Another edition of 2,000 of this popular novel is now ready. It is needless to eulogize it; the fact that notwithstanding the thousands that have been sold, orders still come in so fast as they can be filled, is proof sufficient of its merit and the favor it has found in the eyes of the public. It has been dramatized, and one polka and two beautiful songs have been set to music, the idea being suggested by the novel.

READ THESE NOTICES OF THE PRESS.

From the Daily Journal.

This is a good book—one of that class calculated to entertain the interest and to leave a wholesome impression behind; one that we would willingly place in the hands of our wife, sister, any dear female relative, confident that they would benefit by its perusal. Can we award it any higher praise. From the Atlas.

The "Watchman" merits the praise it has received from all who have read it. It abounds in incident and adventure, and while it interests the reader it points to a wholesome moral. The author possesses a brilliant imagination, and has devoted his or her talents to a good purpose.

From the Weekly Register.

The "Watchman" is a work of surpassing interest and extraordinary beauty. Many a gentle heart will sympathize with poor Joseph Garter and Ellen's sorrows, and will follow the destitute orphan boy, Henry Sa'by, in all his adventures, glorying in the rewarded desire to do well, which eventually led to his success. From the Democrat.

There is a pathos and beauty of style in the early chapters of this story which will lure the reader on to the end in spite of himself. From the Republican.

This is a charming story. The characters are forcibly drawn; it will provoke many a smile, and draw tears of sympathy from many eyes. From the Herald

Never did a tale abound in so many beautiful images, and artistically drawn pictures of the home. There are passages in the volume equalling in stirring incident and exquisite pathos anything we have ever read. No one will fail to read the book through who reads the first chapter. It requires no gift of prophecy to predict its immense success.

Price for the complete work, handsomely bound in one volume, cloth, is

ONE DOLLAR.

Copies of the above work will be sent to any person, to any part of the United States, per first mail, free of postage, on his remitting $1 to the publisher, in a letter post-paid.

H. LONG & BRO., Publishers, No. 121 Nassau-st.

READ
THE OLD HOMESTEAD.
YOU WILL LIKE IT!

ABBOTT'S ROARYHEAD AND M'DONNER.
HARPER & BROTHERS,
No. 327—329 Pearl-st., (Franklin-square,)
PUBLISH THIS MORNING,
HOARYHEAD AND M'DONNER.
BY JACOB ABBOTT.
Very greatly improved. With numerous Engravings. 12mo, muslin. Price $1.

THE YOUNG CHRISTIAN SERIES.
BY JACOB ABBOTT. Very greatly improved and enlarged. With numerous Engravings. Complete in 4 vols. 12mo, Muslin, $1 each. The Volumes may be obtained separately.

THE YOUNG CHRISTIAN. THE WAY TO DO GOOD.
THE CORNER STONE. HOARYHEAD AND M'DONNER.

The present edition of ABBOTT'S YOUNG CHRISTIAN SERIES is issued in a style of uncommon neatness, and is illustrated with numerous spirited and beautiful engravings. It is superfluous to speak of the rare merits of Mr. ABBOTT'S writings on the subject of practical religion. Their extensive circulation not only in our own country, but in England, Scotland, Ireland, France, Germany, Holland, India, and at various missionary stations throughout the globe, evinces the excellence of their plan, and the felicity with which it has been executed. In unfolding the different topics which he takes in hand, Mr. ABBOTT reasons clearly, concisely, and to the point, but the severity of the argument is always relieved by a singular variety and beauty of illustration. It is this admirable combination of discussion with incident that invests his writings with an almost equal charm for readers of every diversity of age and culture.

READ
THE OLD HOMESTEAD.
YOU WILL LIKE IT!

A BRILLIANT NEW NOVEL.
FRANK HILTON,
OR, THE QUEEN'S OWN;
A companion to "Harry Lorrequer," &c.
Price 50 cents.

From the London Athenæum.

A reader on the look-out for a novel, crammed full of incident, excitement, and the wildest adventure, will find in "Frank Hilton" what he desires. It is clever—some of the descriptions of Eastern and desert scenes are even beautiful—but the incidents are too wonderful and too rapid to give them much chance of being relished on the first perusal. The story is built up like a castle in the clouds—the impossibilities are bridged over with all the smoothness of a dream.

The reader is carried on breathless to the end of the book, and will feel sorry when it comes to a close

READ
THE OLD HOMESTEAD.
YOU WILL LIKE IT!

DR DORAN'S NEW WORK.
WILL BE PUBLISHED ON SATURDAY, OCT. 22.
TABLE TRAITS,
WITH SOMETHING ON THEM.
BY DR. DORAN,
Author of "Habits and Men," &c. 12mo; cloth, $1 25.

From the London Times.

Nearly every page contains something amusing, and you may shut the book in the middle and open it again after a twelvemonth's interval without at all compromising its power of affording enjoyment.

Just published:
HABITS AND MEN; with Remnants of Record touching the makers of both. By Dr DORAN, Author of "Table Traits," &c. 12mo; cloth, $1.

Nearly ready:
THE QUEENS OF ENGLAND OF THE HOUSE OF HANOVER (the Wives of the four George.) By Dr. DORAN, Author of "Habits and Men," &c. 2 vols, 12mo; cloth, $2.
SIMMS' NEW REVOLUTIONARY TALE.
On SATURDAY Nov 5:
THE FORAYERS; OR, THE RAID OF THE DOG-DAYS. A Tale of the Revolution. By Wm. GILLMORE SIMMS. Author of the "Partisan, Guy Rivers." With Illustrations by DALLEY. 12mo; cloth, $1 25.

J. S. REDFIELD, No 34 Beekman-st.

READ
THE OLD HOMESTEAD.
YOU WILL LIKE IT!

HEAR THE NEW MUSIC BEFORE YOU PURCHASE.—We sell, weekly, hundreds of the following pieces by playing them for our customers: "Golden Drop Schottische," 25 cents; "Riverdale Schottische," 25 cents; "May Flower Schottische," 25 cents; "Three Bells Polka," 50 cents; "Rachel Polka," 25 cents. Songs: "Spare my heart from drawing ole," 25 cents; "I'm mission all along, Hattie," 25 cents. $1 25 worth of music mailed free for $1.

COOK & BRO., No. 343 Broadway

READ
THE OLD HOMESTEAD.
YOU WILL LIKE IT!

JUST PUBLISHED—AN ESSAY ON THE TREATMENT AND CURE OF SEXUAL DEBILITY, SPERMATORRHŒA, PREMATURE DECAY, AND OTHER INFIRMITIES OF YOUTH AND MATURITY. Will be sent gratis and postpaid on the receipt of two stamps, by Dr. B. DE LAMEY, No. 17 Lispenard-st., New-York.

READ
THE OLD HOMESTEAD.
YOU WILL LIKE IT!

FREE-LOVE ADVOCATE—A new weekly paper—organ of the "Free-Lovers"—first number published Saturday, and for sale by all newsboys and news dealers. Single copies, three cents. One dollar a year, in advance. Address "Free-Love Advocate" Office, Broadway Bells, No. 596 Broadway, New-York.

READ
THE OLD HOMESTEAD.
YOU WILL LIKE IT!

NEW AND EXTENSIVE JOB PRINTING OFFICE.
NEW TYPE AND STEAM PRESSES, AND EVERY REQUISITE FOR EXECUTING ALL KINDS OF PLAIN AND ORNAMENTAL PRINTING
SUCH AS

BOOKS,	CIRCULARS,
PAMPHLETS,	CARDS,
CHECKS,	BILL HEADS,
NOTES,	HAND-BILLS,
RECEIPTS,	LABELS,
STORE BILLS,	SHOW BILLS,

And all kinds of MERCANTILE PRINTING at the LOWEST CASH PRICE.

Orders left at the office of this paper promptly attended to

BEADS
OF
EVERY DESCRIPTION,
FOR SALE BY
M. P. BROWN,
No. 166 Pearl-st., New-York.

JOHN C. BERGH,
COMMISSIONER OF DEEDS FOR NEW-YORK, AND COMMISSIONER FOR NEW-JERSEY, MICHIGAN, WISCONSIN AND RHODE ISLAND,
No. 69 Barclay-st., corner of College-place.

THE NORTH AND SOUTH AIRLINE COMPANY, PHILADELPHIA
PACKAGE EXPRESS,
No. 15 Beaver-st.

THROWING GOODS AWAY.—Must be disposed of, $12,000 worth of boots and shoes, selling off 20 per cent below cost to close the business; must be sold before 15th November, at the Franklin boot and shoe store, No. 419 Broadway, corner Canal-st.

DRY GOODS.

SILKS! SILKS!!
BOWEN, McNAMEE & CO.,
NEW-YORK,
Inv

Address of the Whig State Convention, Held Oct. 23, in New-York City, to the Whig Electors of the State of New-York.

The voice of the Whig Party is once more heard in the Empire State, and this time it gives no uncertain sound. We know what we are, and where we are; what we believe, and what we intend to practice. And being disembarrassed of all outside pressure and relieved from all internal discord, we come boldly before our fellow-citizens of the Union to declare, without fear or favor, without reserve or dissimulation, the principles by which, as a political party, we are determined henceforth to be governed. We are, comparatively, weak in number. Our organization has been stolen from us. Many good men have left us for a season. Hundreds of our "rank and file" have been led away from us by a feverish eagerness for greater agitation and more sectional feeling than the conservatism and nationality of the Whig Party permitted. And some have sought elsewhere the rewards that glittered more temptingly beneath the motto, "To the victors belong the spoils."

Such, fellow Whigs, was this morning the gloomy picture of our present position. But touched by the vivid eloquence of our presiding officer this afternoon, the cloud that has so long lowered over our destiny, seemed, for the first time this many a day, to be cleft in twain, and the star of hope gently beamed through the opening vista. Dead, defunct, a thing that was but is not, have our political foes long declared us to be, but this day we echo the dying words of our immortal WEBSTER, and proudly and tranquilly say, "We yet live." Live, to meet our enemies in the gate! Live, to confound the traitors, and to punish the treachery, that by the suddenness and subtlety of the attack for a few weeks humbled us in the dust! Live, to proclaim in clearer and steadier voice than ever, our undying devotion to true, conservative, national, unmixed and unscrambled Whig principles.

The Whigs of the State of New-York have no sympathy for, and can form no fellowship with, any party that openly assails, or insidiously seeks to undermine, the stability of the Union. The great Whig heart has but one impulse. It beats ever, and beats warmly, and beats unchangeably, to the sweet but inspiring music of that noble sentiment, "Liberty and Union, now and forever, one and inseparable." The Whig Party, therefore, can never be a sectional party. With our own heart-enshrined HENRY CLAY, we "knew no North, no South, no East, no West." Nor can we connive at the attempts to perpetuate a ceaseless, agitating hostility, ostensibly directed against an "institution" but practically operating upon fellow-citizens entitled, equally with ourselves, to have the sole and complete management of their affairs. And yet we are not, we cannot be—indifferent to the great cause of human freedom. We believe Slavery to be a sore misfortune, a great social evil. We deplore its existence and deprecate the enlargement of its area. As citizens of a Free State, we have given hostages, that by all honorable and legitimate and constitutional means we will maintain freedom and perpetuate and extend its triumphs. But we are fellow-citizens with the men of the South. The great blessings of our Government—the deathless principles of the Declaration of Independence—are their birthright as well as ours; and the Whigs of the Empire State can never be a party to any attempt to deprive them of those rights. As we would not do this by violence, or by direct legislation, so neither would we do it by means of combinations furtively designed to shut them out of constitutional privileges which they enjoy in common with ourselves, and we scorn, by ceaseless agitation and assault, to destroy the value to them of constitutional guards over life, liberty and property, which are common to us all. We do not approve of Slavery. We cannot be brought to approve of it. But neither can we forget that the broad ægis of constitutional right is ever the South as well as the North. We will mind our own business, and let theirs alone. We will respect their rights, for we should belie our principles as Whigs, were we to interfere with any State's sovereignty or institutions, but we cannot be willing or unconcerned parties to the extension of Slavery.

Asserting as we do, in common with our fellow-citizens in all the Free States, under the wrong done to us by the repeal of the Missouri Compromise, we reaffirm our abhorrence of that gross violation of a sacred compact, which was conceived and entered into in a spirit of conciliation and mutual forbearance, and has been acquiesced in for more than thirty years by all parties, North and South. By such acquiescence, as well as by the integrity of those entering into it, that compromise had acquired in some degree the force of a constitutional enactment. The compact has been violated; the instrument that secured that territory to Freedom has been destroyed. But we hold the South to the maintenance of its spirit and essence, and shall not fail to insist before the Federal Legislature that we are entitled to that only compensation for the wrong which it is yet in their power to give us.

As Whigs, we reiterate our ardent attachment and devotion to the Constitution of the Union, and our readiness to concede all that it requires of us, as well as to claim all that it concedes to us. We are a constitutional party, as that Constitution was understood and expounded by him who sleeps in a cold but not unhonored grave at Marshfield. We know no political law higher than the Constitution; but we can adapt ourselves to no standard lower than that honored instrument. The Constitution is our platform—the Constitution in its spirit as well as in its letter. Whom the Constitution accounts citizens, we account citizens, and will in good faith treat them as such. Of that liberty of conscience and right of religious creed and worship, which the Constitution secures to every man, we will neither ask nor attempt to rob any man. And we can no more sympathize with men who would deprive the individual of his dearest civil and political rights than we can with the party that combines to deprive our fellow-citizens of the South of their constitutional rights.

Inflexible in their devotion to the Constitution and the Union, the Whigs of the Empire State reaffirm these great cardinal principles, which, rising from that firm basis, formed their political platform in the palmiest days of the party's history, so far as those principles, and the measures by which they were illustrated, are still matters of conflicting opinion and policy between organized parties. Perhaps no feature of the proposed policy of Fusion exhibits grosser dishonesty and contempt of public opinion in the State of New-York, than the selection of candidates for the Canal Board. In the resolutions which accompany this address we have fully expressed our opinion of the total unfitness of the nominations on the Fusion or Republican ticket, with the unabated conviction which as Whigs we entertain of the necessity of completing the enlargement of the Erie Canal as an article of commerce and a bond of national union.

There are many and important reasons, fellow Whigs, why we deem it expedient, at the present time, to do no more than thus solemnly reaffirm our party's principles. With those principles for his guide, every Whig will be well able to judge for himself for whom he can in his vote at the ballot-box. It would do giving the Whigs of New-York more credit for meekness under insult than would be complimentary to their manhood, to suppose that any of them will vote for the nominees of those who have humiliated and betrayed us. We cannot thus kiss the hand that smote us. But we are not prepared to substitute a ticket of our own. The men who betrayed us were careful to appoint their Convention so late that we could not probably recover from the blow in time to rally for the conflict of the Fall election. It would be utterly impossible to form our ticket, organize committees, circulate the necessary information to the remoter portions of the State, and make such other arrangements as would be necessary to secure a degree of success worthy of the men whom we should be disposed to put in nomination. At present, therefore, we recommend our fellow Whigs throughout the State to vote as they deem meet in accordance with those principles which they hold are for the interest of the State—principles the very reverse of those held by the Fusionists—principles that have been asserted and maintained from the Executive Chair of this great State by WASHINGTON HUNT and HAMILTON FISH, and once held to, so far as State policy is concerned, by a gentleman who, unfortunately, was accounted a Whig Senator. And now, we are the Whig Party of the State of New-York. We have avowed our principles. We have openly proclaimed what we propose to do, and what we propose to leave undone. We have no concealment. We know no fear. By the principles we have avowed, we are prepared to abide. We are Whigs, and nothing else; nothing less and nothing more; all that our betrayers and other enemies say to the contrary, notwithstanding; our banner is unfurled—our hearts throb to bear it on to victory. And the time for action will soon come. In the meantime let us cherish and foster those internal feelings—that real unity of heart and purpose, which the time of tribulation has so signally and gratifyingly elicited. Above all, let us take the Union into our hearts, and enshrine it in our best and warmest affections. While those who have gone out from among us, revel in sectionalism, let us set our faces as flint against such treasonable sentiments, and love, and defend, and maintain that blessed and glorious Union that has made us what we are. Every political association, every cherished memory, prompts us to this course. We cannot speak of a single leader of the Whig hosts whose very name is not a synonyme of a patriotism that grasped the whole confederacy in his warm and generous embrace. Does not one who only loved his country better than the Whig party—whose name is a household word that cannot be spoken without awakening emotion, too big for human utterance—whose very memory, ever and anon, thrills across the chords of our affections, and stirs them with a feeling almost too deep and holy for a merely political attachment—whose words so often roused us as with the blast of a clarion, and anon soothed us with the silvery softness of their matchless melody, and whose now we can scarcely name without tears of blended gratitude and sorrow—does not HENRY CLAY, our heart's political idol, lie calmly pillowed in a Southern grave? Does not he, whose words were thunderbolts, whose tones, nervous, condensed axioms are our watchwords to this day—the intellectual giant, who, standing by the Constitution, dauntless and unmoved, seemed the embodiment of the majesty of republican freedom—does not DANIEL WEBSTER, the Whig of the Bay State and of the Union, lie calmly cushioned in a Northern tomb? The sods of our common country form their couch and their covering, and one sky encomposes their last resting-place. And as they sleep their last sleep that knows no waking, let us draw near, and catching the spirit that animated them, swear on that united grave fealty to the Union, the whole Union, and the Union forever.

THE FORTY WHO FELL.—Professor TYLER enumerates the names of forty physicians who perished at Norfolk and Portsmouth since the 6th of July, as follows: Sylvester, Constable, Hudson, Sylvester, Jr., Higginge, Briggs, Upshur, Tunstall, Selden, Burns, Trugion, Parker, Levett, Walters, Thompson, Fiveas, Roth, Hache, Dillord, Gooch, Howle, Gelbardt, Blow, Jackson; De Becane, Obermuller, Decapry, Hunter, Rifell, Overyerst, Bierson, Handy, Cole, Moore, Rizet, Smith, Marshall, Craven and Berry.

Winchester, the Missing Aeronaut.

The Cincinnati Times of Saturday, furnishes the following as a probable clue to the fate of this gentleman:

We have obtained what may perhaps be considered a clue to the awful mystery in which the fate of Mr. WINCHESTER, the daring Norwalk aeronaut, is enveloped. A reliable gentleman of this city, in business on Main-street, informs us that on the day succeeding the ascension of Mr. WINCHESTER, from Norwalk, Ohio, a customer entering his store, remarked, "Have you seen the balloon?" Replying in the negative, the gentleman stepped to the door, and looking in a south-westerly direction, perceived what at first appeared to be a balloon.

At the first glance it appeared to be very diminutive, but gradually it dilated and appeared in the shape of a huge bird with expanded wings, apparently 30 feet across. Changing again from that form it reassumed the shape of a balloon. A strongly magnifying telescope being procured, it was fixed upon the floating object, and many persons who had now assembled to to gaze at the mysterious aerial stranger, agreed in the opinion that it was a balloon, and consurred in the belief that it was a wreck.

The gentlemen from whom we obtain the above information, states that about 150 persons were witnesses of the phenomenon. The information is certainly very vague, and to be sure it casts the painful mystery into a darker shadow, yet it may eventually lead to information that will remove the suspense that now oppresses the friends of the venturesome aerial navigator.

Shocking Railroad Accident in Vermont.

A correspondent of the Boston Journal, writing from West Randolph, Vt., on the 25th of October, says:

"A most shocking accident occurred on the Vermont Central Railroad, at our depot, last evening. At about 7 o'clock, as two or three cattle trains from the North were stopping here together, in the hurry and bustle of switching off, changing cars, &c., the conductor of one of the trains in running beside the cars towards the engine, tripped at a cattle-guard and fell backward, with his head directly upon one of the rails; a wheel of the moving train passed directly over the unfortunate man before he had time to move, and the larger part of his head was completely severed from his body; one arm was also run over; the lifeless trunk that remained was a most horrid spectacle to behold. The name of the deceased was JOSIAH WILSON. He was about 30 years of age, and a resident of Brockfield, where he leaves a young wife to mourn his untimely end."

DOMESTIC FEUDS.—Strange revelations are occasionally made by prosecutions instituted before our police magistrates, prompted at times by the most unworthy motives. A brother and sister, each the head of large families, had a trivial difference recently, and a bitter animosity took the place of former friendly feelings. The sister instituted a suit against her brother, charging him with cohabiting with a woman not his wife, while his wife was living in another State. Upon the hearing, it was proved that the accused came to this city eleven years since, and for the last ten years has been living with a female originally employed by him as a domestic, by whom he had a large family of children, which were growing up in harmony with other children, the fruit of his first marriage. The accused always acknowledged his present companion as his wife, invariably introducing her as such to his friends. She was respected by all her neighbors for her correct conduct and lady-like deportment, the real facts of the case not being known. The legal wife had, in all this time, never molested her husband, and does not appear to have sanctioned the present prosecution. The suit instituted by the sister has given rise to much gossip in the neighborhood in which the parties reside, and this strange family secret is now the general topic of conversation. There are but few who approve of the conduct of the sister, in commencing a prosecution at this late day, after allowing the crime to go unrebuked for a period of ten years. At the hearing of the case, both parties appeared by counsel. It was argued by the prosecuting attorney that the prisoner must be held to bail for trial on the charge of adultery, while the counsel for the defence contended that such a suit could not be sustained; that if any crime had been committed, it was bigamy, and not adultery. The Alderman has the case under consideration.—Philadelphia Ledger.

FIRE-DAMP EXPLOSION.—The slope of Messrs. TYSON & Co., near Llewellyn, Schuylkill County, Pa., was again the scene of a very serious and fatal accident on Saturday last. An incautious workman, with an open light, ignited the fire-damp, and produced a tremendous explosion, killing one man almost instantly, and seriously wounding and burning several others. The fire thus produced set fire to some of the timber, which, in a few minutes after, caused another explosion, still greater than the first, but, in consequence of the previous escape of the men, no injury was done except to the mine itself. The men at the mouth of the slope were knocked down by the force of the roaring tempest, and their mounhs, ears and eyes, were generally filled with coal, sand and dust.

THE CRANBERRY CURE OF ERYSIPELAS.—The New-Haven Palladium records another case of the complete cure of erysipelas by the simple application of raw cranberries pounded fine. The patient was a young lady, one side of whose face had become so swollen and inflamed that the eye had become closed and the pain excessive. A poultice of cranberries was applied, and, after several changes, the pain ceased, the inflammation subsided, and, in the course of a couple of days, every vestige of the disease had disappeared.

YELLOW FEVER AT THE SOUTH.—There have been two frosts at Vicksburg and Natchez, Miss., and the yellow fever is rapidly abating. At Memphis, Tenn., for the three days previous to the 15th instant, there were about 20 deaths.

MARKET REPORTS.

Markets....Carefully reported for the N. Y. Daily Times.

THURSDAY, Oct. 25—6 P. M.

ASHES—Have not varied.

COFFEE—The market remains very quiet, parties disagreeing about prices. We have no important sales to report.

COTTON—Is quite dull and heavy. Some demand ex lists at ½c. ⅌ lb. lower rates than those current prior to the receipt of the steamer's news,—but factors refuse to sell at such figures. Hence, the inactivity.

FLOUR AND MEAL—State and Western are still very actively sought after by home dealers, shippers, and speculators and bring even higher prices. The sales since our last amount to over 23,400 bbls., here and to arrive soon, mostly at rates within the annexed range:

Ordinary State	8 75 @ 8 81½
Straight State	8 81½@ 8 87½
Favorite and Extra State	8 87½@ 9 00
Mixed Western	8 75 @ 8 81½
Common to good Indiana and Michigan	8 81½@ 9 00
Fancy Michigan	9 00 @ 9 25
Common to Good Ohio	8 87½@ 9 12½
Fancy Ohio	9 12½@ 9 37½
Extra Ohio	9 25 @10 25
Extra Indiana and Michigan	9 25 @10 25
Fancy Genesee	9 00 @ 9 25
Extra Genesee	9 50 @11 25

Canadian is still improving—sales have been made of 800 bbls. superfine to best extra, at $8 87½@$10 ⅌ bbl. Southern is also doing better—there having been 1,500 bbls taken, at $9@$10 75 for mixed to extra, ⅌ bbl. Rye Flour continues rare and quiet at $6 25@$7 50 for fine and superfine, ⅌ bbl. Corn Meal salable and steady, at $4 75 for Jersey; $4 81½ for Baltimore, and $4 87½@$5 for Brandywine, ⅌ bbl.

GRAIN—Wheat is more inquired for by home dealers and shippers, at improved quotations. The sales, since our last, reach about 74,000 bushels, including Canadian White (somewhat nominal) at $2 10@$2 15; Western Red and Mixed, at $1 90@$2 05, the latter for very choice; and Southern Red at $1 95 ⅌ bushel. Rye is in better demand, but at easier prices,—sales having been reported of 11,000 bushels at from $1 31½@$1 37½ ⅌ bushel,—the latter an extreme rate. Barley is still unaltered. Oats remain in light supply and fair request, at 48c @50c. for Western, and 46c.@48c. for State ⅌ bushel. Corn is attracting more attention and is advancing,—the transactions since our last comprising 64,000 bushels, chiefly Western Mixed, at 95c @96c. ⅌ bushel.

HAY—300 bales River found buyers at old rates.

HOPS—New are more inquired for, and are worth 11c.@14c. ⅌ lb. Old have not varied.

IRON—Scotch Pig is retailing at $36 50@$37, usual credit, ⅌ ton; but other kinds are without variation.

LATHS—Are unchanged.

LEAD—Seems quiet at old figures.

LIME—Rockland is in slack request, but is pretty firmly held.

MOLASSES—There have been 350 bbls. New-Orleans sold, in lots, at 37c.@38c., mostly at 37c. ⅌ gallon.

NAVAL STORES—Tar and Turpentine appear as last noticed. Resin is in fair demand, and is firm at $1 67½@$1 70 for common ⅌ 310 lbs., delivered; and $2 25@$4 62½ for No. 1 and white, ⅌ 280 lbs.

OILS—Holders are still asking very high prices for Whale and Sperm, which limits transactions therein. Red Oil is quiet and nominal. There is a fair inquiry for Olive, which is steady. Linseed is dull and heavy, at 90c. for large, and 91c.@93c. for small parcels, ⅌ gallon. Lard Oil is unchanged.

PROVISIONS—Pork is depressed and declining—sales having been reported to-day of 800 bbls., in lots, at $23 50@$23 62½ for Mess, and $20 87½@$21 for Prime, ⅌ bbl. No change of any moment has occurred in Cut Meats or Bacon. Lard is less active, but firm—there having been taken 700 bbls., chiefly at 11½c.@12½c. ⅌ lb. Beef is rare and needed—sales having been made of 230 bbls., in lots, at $11 50@$12 for country Prime, $12c @$14 for do. Mess; $15@$16 50 for extra State and Vermont; and $17@$17 50 for repacked Mess ⅌ bbl. Prime Mess Beef continues dull and heavy, with small sales at from $20@$24 ⅌ tierce. Beef Hams are dull and heavy, at $17@$18. Butter is freely taken at 14c.@18c. for Ohio, 19c.@23c. for common to very good State, and 23c. @25c. for prime and choice do. ⅌ lb. Cheese sells at 9c @10½c. ⅌ lb.

RICE—About 80 trcs. have been sold since our last, at former rates.

SOAP—Is scarce and wanted, at full prices.

SUGARS—The sales since our last have been confined to 320 hhds. Cuba, &c., in lots, at 9½c.@7½c. ⅌ lb.—indicating a dull and heavy market.

TALLOW—We heard that 10,000 lbs. prime found buyers at 12½@12¾c. ⅌ lb.

WHISKY—Sales were reported of 240 bbls. Ohio and Prison, at 41c.@41½c. ⅌ gallon.

FREIGHTS—In the absence of the steamer's mails, there was some disagreement among operators regarding rates, and the engagements were light, mostly within our old range.

BOARDING.

BOARDING.—Two pleasant parlors to let, with full or partial board. A bedroom adjoining each if desired. Terms moderate. References exchanged. Apply at No. 194 West 18th-st., near 6th-av.

BOARDING.—Gentlemen and their wives, also single gentlemen, may obtain fine rooms and good board by applying at No. 43 Union-square, corner of East 17th-st. References exchanged.

BOARDING.—A young gentleman wishes to obtain board in the vicinity of 14th-st., and Broadway, in a private family, with the privilege of the bath. Address T. H., Daily Times Office.

BOARDING.—Suites of handsomely furnished rooms to let, on second and third floors, to families, with private table if preferred. House first class, and conveniently located, at No. 145 8th-st., near Broadway.

BOARDING.—No 13 Beach-st., near St. John's Park, furnished rooms with board for gentlemen and their wives; also for single gentlemen.

BOARD IN BROOKLYN.—Two gentlemen may be accommodated with Board in a small private family, where they will find the comforts of a home. Pleasant rooms, location good, convenient to two ferries and the cars. Terms moderate. References exchanged. For further particulars address TAYLOR, Times Office.

BOARDING.—To let, a suite of elegant rooms, furnished or unfurnished, to one or two gentlemen, with partial board if desired. House has all of the modern improvements. Small and private family accommodations good. Apply at No. 37 Bleecker-st.

BOARD ON BROOKLYN HEIGHTS.—A gentleman and his wife can find a handsomely furnished room at No 38 Willow-st., three minutes' walk from Wall-st. and Fulton Ferries.

BOARD IN BROOKLYN.—Near Wall-st. and South Ferries, a gentleman and wife and a few single gentlemen can be accommodated with board and furnished rooms, on the 2d floor. Apply at No. 120 Hicks-st.

A GENTLEMAN OF STEADY HABITS—Can secure a large-sized, nicely-furnished front room with gas, grate, pantries and use of bath, on the second floor of a genteel house. Only a few gentlemen taken. Location west of Broadway, below Bleecker-st. Price $4 per week in advance, or $7 with partial board. Use of a fine piano if desired. Address Mrs. ALBRO, Times Office.

ROOM TO LET—On the first floor, with pantries attached, to one or two single gentlemen, or a gentleman and his wife, by a widow lady. Residence, No. 13 Renwick-st., between Spring and Canal sts. Can be seen for one week.

PARLOR AND BEDROOM WANTED—By a gentleman, with breakfast and dinner, to be served in his own rooms. Liberal prices will be paid for thoroughness. Situation between 4th and 23d sts. Address Box No. 3,168 Post-Office.

A NEW ENGLAND FAMILY—With one child, in an convenient location, 20th-st., near 4th-st., having genteel apartments, would furnish a gentleman and wife with the comforts of a domestic home. References given and required. Address G. P., at this office.

A GENTLEMAN AND WIFE—Can be accommodated with a third story parlor and bedroom adjoining, or an extension room on the first floor, with board. Also a few rooms for single gentlemen at Nos. 38 and 84 East 23d-st.

NO. 141 NINTH-STREET, THIRD DOOR EAST OF BROADWAY.—Handsome furnished rooms, in suites or single, with breakfast, if required. Also, at No. 6 College-place.

FURNISHED ROOMS TO LET—Without board. Apply at No. 17 Howard-st.

A FRONT ROOM AND BEDROOM—In the third story to let with board. Also a room for a single gentleman. Inquire at No. 176 West 14th-st.

LOST AND FOUND.

$15,000 REWARD—On the 17th of September last, two boxes were delivered at the office of the American Express Company, in Dubuque, Iowa, by a carriage from the United States Land Office. Said boxes, on their arrival at the Sub-Treasury in New-York, were found to contain buckshot of the size of 140 to the pound, and pressed balls of the size of 100 to the pound to the amount of 174 pounds in weight, and 28 pounds of sheet lead, No. 4. The boxes were made of white pine, one inch thick, dove-tailed at the corners, about 20½ inches long, 24 inches wide, and 42 inches deep, inside measurement. The bottom of one of the boxes was of hemlock. They were strapped once around the middle with one inch hoop iron. It is claimed by the Assistant Treasurer, at Dubuque, that the boxes each contained gold coin to the amount of $28,000. They were marked with cards addressed to the "Assistant Treasurer, U. S., New-York," which cards are admitted by the Deputy Assistant Treasurer, to be genuine.

Now, therefore, for the purpose of discovering how this fraud was committed, and bringing to justice the perpetrators thereof, the American Express Company will pay $10,000 for the recovery of the money, or in that proportion for any part of it, and $5,000 for the arrest and conviction of the offenders; and they will pay liberally for information relative to the making of said boxes, the furnishing of such lead balls, shot, &c., &c., &c. All communications should be addressed to the subscribers.

WELLS, BUTTERFIELD & CO., New-York.
LIVINGSTON, FARGO & CO., Buffalo,
Proprietors of the American Express Co.

BUFFALO, Oct 3, 1855.

$250 REWARD.—Taken, since yesterday afternoon, from the Mechanics' Bank, a tin box, marked V. J. M. & G., containing valuable papers, among others the following bonds:—Town of Newark, Ohio, No. 1; Portsmouth City, Ohio, Nos. 49, 50; City of Newport, Ohio, No 2; Franklin county, Ohio, Nos. 42, 43; City of Columbus, Ohio, No. 39; Ashuelot Railroad, Nos. 18, 27; Rutland and Washington Railroad, Nos. 101, 122; Cleveland and Pittsburg Railroad, Nos. 520, 521, 434; New-York and Erie Railroad, Nos. 1,044, 1,397, 3,027; Ohio and Pennsylvania Railroad, Nos. 288, 700, 490, 691; Columbus and Xenia Railroad, Nos. 56, 57; Dauphin and Susquehanna Coal Company, No. 144; City of Nashville, Nos. 400, 401; Bourbon County, Kentucky, Nos. 1, 13; Milwaukee City, No. 134; Pennsylvania Coal Company, Nos. 1, 2; New and Salem Railroad, Nos. 1,089; Evansville and Illinois Railroad, Nos. 77, 78, 79, 48, 49, 204; Buffalo and New-York City Railroad, Nos. 143 67, 68; Michigan Central Railroad, 2,738, 4,148, 3,129; Mason and W. Railroad, Nos. 261; Rochester, Lockport and Niagara Falls Railroad, No. 51, 52; Lake Erie and Wabash and St Louis Railroad, Nos. 288, 186; Eaton and Hamilton Railroad, Nos. 79, 194; Hudson River Railroad. The payment of all of which has been stopped. The above rewards will be paid on delivering the box, with its contents, with JAMES HAGGERTON, No. 60 Wall-st., and no questions asked.

New-York, Oct. 12, 1855.

$50 REWARD.—Stolen on Monday evening, at the Bowery Theatre, a WALLET containing about $200 in bills and a promissory note for 146 93, dated Oct. 5, 1855, at sixty days, payable at the Bank of Pelham, to E. Roach. It was stolen from the pantaloons pocket of a produce dealer. $50 reward will be paid for the recovery of the money, and $10 for the note, by applying to JOHN CONGER, No. 138 Bank-st., New-York.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A NEW THING ENTIRELY.—THE MOST ASTONISHING PERFORMANCE HEARD OF! BARRELS, FIRKINS, KEGS, AND THE WHOLE COOPER FAMILY MADE AND FINISHED WITHOUT A JOINT, PERFECT, AIR-TIGHT, AND SMOOTH, HOOPS TO VARNISH, ENTIRELY BY MACHINE!—One Machine with the tools used to perform the work, is a patent, for which we have received gold and silver medals, at State diplomas, and last, though not least, the first and ONLY premium on keg and barrel machinery, by Jury D, at the Crystal Palace.

It takes the timber to the bolt, saws the staves, jointing with the grain, cuts them all of equal length, planes both inside and outside perfectly smooth, raises the quality of the timber, joints them in a perfect manner, hollows, leaves its proper proportion of bilge, according to the stave, be it wide or narrow, howells, cuts the croze, turns the head, and prepares the barrel or keg for the hoops, all complete, in a manner so perfect, complete and rapid, that we challenge the world to produce a barrel, firkin or keg than our Machines make at the rate of three hundred per day, to the single set—to which we invite the particular attention of all who choose to give it a close inspection.

We manufacture with our Machine, articles of the Barrel family, from the smallest White Lead Keg to the largest Crak in general use—all of which can be warranted to hold the most subtle fluids, or be adapted to the packing of dry goods. In fact, the machine cannot make an imperfect article, except the defect is exclusively in the timber.

We have a shop at Elmira, New-York, directly on the line of the New-York and Erie Railroad, and the Erie and Niagara Falls Railroad, five minutes' walk from the depot, where any persons who wish can witness the operation of these Machines, and test to their perfect satisfaction every branch of the work. We feel the greatest pleasure in exhibiting to such everything connected with the work.

Persons desirous of purchasing the right and machines for any location now unsold, can obtain any information in relation thereto by applying to us through the mail. There are but few of the States remaining unsold; still, if any will be referred to the present owners, most of whom are without doubt, hold for disposal desirable locations in their respective Territories. It is conceded by all persons who have examined this machine, that it surpasses everything that has been or can be invented for the same purpose, and must entirely supersede all hand coopering. Shaving and heading saws on hand.

ELMIRA, N. Y.
Elmira Barrel Machine Manufacturing Company.
M. H. FERRIS, Agent.

WATCHES! WATCHES!!—The subscribers will sell subscriptions of Gold and Silver Watches, at rates lower than any house in the City.
FINE GOLD LEPINE WATCHES, 4 holes jewelled.
BEAUTIFUL ENAMELLED LADIES' WATCHES.
SPLENDID ENAMELLED LADIES' WATCHES, with diamonds in centre.
GOLD DETACHED LEVERS, full jewelled.
GOLD ENAMELLED HUNTING WATCHES.
GOLD DETACHED LEVERS, for Ladies, rich enamelled cases.
FINE GOLD HUNTING LEPINES, for Ladies.
FINE GOLD HUNTING DETACHED LEVERS.
SPLENDID LEVER WATCHES for Ladies.
RICH WATCHES, which wind up and set by the pendant.
REAL JULES JURGENSEN WATCHES, perfect time-keepers.
REAL COOPER WATCHES, Duplex and Lever.
INDEPENDENT SECOND AND QUARTER SECOND WATCHES, for timing horses.
SPLENDID GOLD POCKET CHRONOMETERS, perfect time-keepers.
WATCHES, which run eight days with one winding.
RICH MAGIC WATCHES for Ladies and Gentlemen, which change into three different Watches.
GOLD ENGLISH PATENT LEVERS.
GOLD HUNTING CASE ENGLISH PATENT LEVERS.
SILVER ENGLISH PATENT LEVERS.
SILVER DETACHED LEVERS.
SILVER LEPINE WATCHES.
SPLENDID GOLD and SILVER ENGLISH PATENT LEVERS, made by E. J. Tobias, and other makers.
VERY FINE DUPLEX WATCHES, made by T. P. Cooper, Werner, and all celebrated makers.

Watches Cleaned and repaired in the best manner, at much less than the usual prices. All Watches warranted to keep good time. GEO. C. ALLEN, Importer, Wholesale and Retail, No. 11 Wall-st., second door from Broadway.

KINDLING-WOOD—S. HARRISON & CO'S steam factory, No. 250 West 24th-st., best Virginia pine, per load, delivered, $3 25; oak, $3 50; cord, $4; per cart, 62 cents; hickory, per load, $5; per barrel, $1 25. Interior qualities at less price. Orders per post attended to.

CHAS. STARR, JR. & CO.—No. 111 Fulton-st., manufacturers of and dealers in Alcohol, Camphene and Burning Fluid; also, Lamps and Burners of all kinds.

INSTRUCTION.

THREE CLASSICAL SCHOOLS—Boys prepared for Business, Mercantile life, or College, in Three Hours of Daily Tuition. Reduced Rates for the class, divided into two departments, and taught the best twenty boys each. The session beginning with the middle of October embraces the most important branches of a thorough education, viz., Reading and Elocution, Penmanship, Arithmetic, Mental and Mathematics, Algebra, Latin, Greek, Book-keeping, Geography and Manual of Arms. The schools opened are designed to have quite unusual purposes for the comfort and health of the pupils. Parents who desire their sons both to be instructed and to accomplish something, are invited to call at the school. There are now several vacancies.

READING INSTITUTE—READING, WAITSFIELD COUNTY, CONN.—The 11th term of this Institution will commence on WEDNESDAY, Nov. 7. We refer to the following gentlemen: Hon. Thomas A. Emmet, No. 18 Park-row; Hon. R. Tyler, No. 257 Broadway; J. Gay, Chief Engineer of U. S. N., Navy Yard, N. Y.; R. Washington, M. D., No. 251 8th-av.; Jacob Sharp, Esq., No. 260 West 26th-st. Catalogues may be obtained of Range & Brother, No. 13 Park-row; and R. W. Benedict, No. 1 Wall-st.

D. SANDFORD, Principal.

DANBURY'S SCIENTIFIC AND MILITARY INSTITUTE, CONNECTICUT.—ELIAS S. SCHENCK and Rev. J. H. VAN COURT, Associate Principals. Gymnastics and fencing daily. All the preparatory and college studies carefully taught. Circulars of an interview may be had by applying to Wm. Hall & Sons, No. 289 Broadway. Terms, $115 for the Winter Term, commencing Monday, Nov. 5.

BELLPORT CLASSICAL INSTITUTE—Commencement its next term on TUESDAY, Oct 30. Parents and guardians desiring a good family school for their children, in a very pleasant and healthful location, will find this worthy of their attention. Its location is on Long Island, on the Great South Bay, about 60 miles by Railroad, from Brooklyn. Catalogues have been published, and may be obtained at Appletons' No. 346 Broadway, and Wm. Kevan, Esq., No. 116 Water-st., New-York; and W. Raynor, Bellport. Bellport, L. I., Oct. 3, 1855.

MOUNT PROSPECT INSTITUTE, WEST BLOOMFIELD, N. J.—In a delightful and healthy location, prepares young gentlemen for business, College or the University. A new session will commence on Nov. 1. For circulars and references, apply to the U. S. SCHOOL Agency, No. 298 Broadway; H. WESTERMAN & CO., No. 289 Broadway; L. W. SCHMIDT, No. 193 William-st., or the Principal. AUG. F. NITCHY.

INSTRUCTION IN MUSIC AND FRENCH.—A young Parisian lady, who speaks English fluently, is desirous of obtaining pupils who wish to acquire a knowledge of the above branches. She will give lessons at their residence, and at such times as may be agreeable. Address or apply at S. C. HERRING'S, No. 103 5th-av., between 12 and 5 o'clock, where full particulars may be had.

THE MISSES DANFORTH—Having removed their boarding and day school to No. 12 West 13th-st., six doors west of 5th-av., will be ready to receive pupils on the 13th of September. A limited number of pupils will be received to board in the families of the Misses Danforth. Circulars may be obtained at CROWEN'S Bookstore, No. 609 Broadway, or at their residence.

THE ADVERTISER TAKES FOUR BOYS Under 11 years of age into his family to educate at home with his own. Terms $156 per annum. Inquiries from parents desiring to place a son in the country under happy home influences and judicious training, will be forwarded if addressed to Box No. 346 Post Office, Hartford, Conn.

MOUNT WASHINGTON COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE, No. 218 4th-st., on Washington-square (entrance No. 188 Macdougal-st.), opens its Thirteenth Scholastic Year on MONDAY, Sept. 10. Pupils from seven years of age and upward are received in the Junior, Middle and Senior Departments.

CLARKE & FANNING, Principals.

PRESCOTT SEMINARY, TARRYTOWN, N. Y.—BOARDING AND DAY SCHOOL FOR YOUNG LADIES.—Will open on MONDAY, Nov. 5. Circulars may be obtained at the book stores of Mr. T. CROWEN, No. 609 Broadway, corner of 4th-st., or by addressing Mrs. ELIZA S. SHAW, Principal, Tarrytown, N. Y.

PAULDING INSTITUTE—A boarding school for boys, at Tarrytown, N. Y. Winter term will commence on Monday, Nov 5. Circulars at T. J. CROWEN'S, No. 609; STANFORD & SWORDS', No 637 Broadway; and at CLARK, AUSTIN & SMITH'S, No. 3 Park-row, N. Y.

WM. G. WESTON, Principal.

BANCROFT INSTITUTE—No 820 Broadway, French, Classical and English School for boys, is now open. Also, Mme HARRISON'S Juvenile French School.

BENJAMIN HARRISON, B. A., Principal.

Circulars may be had at KETCHUM, ROGERS & BEMENT, No. 48 William-st.

ITALIAN LANGUAGE.—M. FOGGINI, who had long experience in teaching this language, is now ready to give lessons to pupils in classes or singly, or in schools. References highly respectable. Address No. 87 M.-st., between 12th and 13th sts.

SCHOOL FOR YOUNG LADIES—CEDAR GLEN, SING SING, N. Y.—Miss FOSTER, Principal.—Terms, $150 a year. References—D. P. Bacon, Esq., No. 228 4th-st.; Thomas Smull, Esq., No. 5 Ferry-st., New-York.

MISS SNOW—Respectfully informs her friends and the public that her day and boarding-school for young ladies will reopen on MONDAY, Sept. 3, at No. 47 West 12th-st.

MRS. MACAULEY'S BOARDING AND DAY SCHOOL FOR YOUNG LADIES, No. 43 East 21st-st., will reopen on THURSDAY, Sept. 13.

MRS. J. T. BENEDICT'S BOARDING AND DAY SCHOOL, FOR YOUNG LADIES—Reopened Sept. 17, at No 4 West 27th-st., 2d door from 5th-av.

DANIEL P. BACON'S SELECT SCHOOL FOR BOYS—No. 228 4th-st. There are vacancies in the Primary Department.

FRENCH AND CLASSICAL INSTITUTE—For YOUNG GENTLEMEN, No. 49 East 24th st., (formerly H. Peugnet's school.) ELIE CHARLIER.

DANCING.

A. DODWORTH'S DANCING ACADEMIES, NEW-YORK, No. 806 Broadway, opposite Eleventh-st. BROOKLYN, No. 137 Montague-place, near Court-st.

Mr. DODWORTH has the honor of announcing that the classes for ladies and gentlemen at his Academies in New-York and Brooklyn are now open for the season. Circulars containing terms, &c., can be obtained at either of the Academies.

Mr. DODWORTH has the pleasure of informing his friends that, agreeably to their repeated solicitations to establish a Dancing Academy in Brooklyn on the plan so successful in New-York, he has erected a spacious building combining every convenience that could be suggested by many years' experience, and in every way adapted to the healthful exercise to which it will be devoted. The location is one of the most accessible in Brooklyn, the Court-st., Fulton and Myrtle-av. railroads meeting at the head of Montague-place, but a few steps from the Academy. Services exclusively for pupils and parents.

DANCING ACADEMY.—No. 811 Broadway.—J. DAMIRAOLE, the only accomplished teacher of the modern dances, has the honor to inform his friends and the public that his Academy is open every day for lessons, from 10 A. M. to 10 P. M., and for practice from 3 to 5 and 7½ to 10 P. M

AUCTION SALES.

SHERIF DRAPER, Auctioneer.

BY SHERIF DRAPER.—Office No. 6 Pine-st., corner Nassau, FRIDAY, Oct. 26, at 12 o'clock, at the Exchange, [illegible] Michigan Southern and Northern Indiana Railroad Company [illegible] Michigan Southern and Northern Indiana Railroad Company [illegible] Michigan Southern and Northern Indiana Railroad Company

New-York Daily Times.

IMPORTANT FROM TEXAS.

Battle between the Texas Rangers and Mexicans and Indians.

THE RANGERS VICTOR OUS.

We copy the following extra, issued from the office of the Galveston Gaz. ette:

By the arrival of the steamship Louisiana from Indianola, this morning, we have received from a San Antonio friend the following highly important and exciting intelligence and address from the gallant Captain CALLAHAN. The Rubicon has been crossed, and American blood has again flowed on the soil of Mexico—American troops are again fortified on the west bank of the Rio Grande, menaced by a combination of Indians, Mexicans and renegade negroes, and appeal to their countrymen for reinforcements to aid in comprehending what they have so nobly begun, a complete extermination and extinguishment of the relentless murderers of our women and children—the entire overthrow of our Seminoles, Lipans, and their renegade Negro and Mexican allies, who have for two years used the neutral line of the Rio Grande as a shield, a wall of protection, in their bloody forays upon, and retreats from, our frontiers. They must be routed, unmitigated, before life and property on the frontier of Texas are safe.

By special advices, we learn that Capt. HENRY E. MCCULLOCH and others are raising volunteers to join CALLAHAN. We have neither time nor space to extend our remarks.

Young WILLIS JONES, whose death we observe with heartfelt sorrow, was the son of our esteemed friend, Hon. WILLIAM H. JONES, whose overseer (Mr. LAWTON) was recently murdered by these same Indians, who was mainly instrumental in inducing Gov. PEASE to call Captain CALLAHAN into the service, and whose voice of warning has for months been heard through the press of this State.

Mr. EUSTACE BENTON, another of the slain, was the son of Capt. MAT. BENTON, a nephew of Col. THOMAS H. BENTON.

Mr. CLOPTON, another of those who fell, we suppose to have been the gallant WM. A. CLOPTON, of Webberville, one of the bitter prisoners, but we not positive.—[Bastrop Gazette.

CAPTAIN CALLAHAN'S ADDRESS TO THE PEOPLE of TEXAS—THE BATTLE!

EAGLE PASS, Thursday, Oct. 4, 1855.

FELLOW-CITIZENS: As commander of the expedition which recently departed from your midst, to destroy the encampment of the Lipan Indians, and to exterminate the warriors of that tribe of savages, I deem it my duty to report to you my progress, actions and success.

On the 24th of September, I was joined on the Leona by two companies of volunteers, under Captains WM. R. HENRY, of San Antonio, and NAT. BENTON, of Seguin; and proceeding by regular marches from that place after the Indians, arrived on the 29th of September on the Rio Grande, at the mouth of the Los Moras. Here I learned that it was a most impossible to follow the savages further, on account of the high water in the Rio Grande. Waiting but a few days for the high waters to subside, to no purpose, I determined to march down to Eagle Pass, about thirty miles distant, and cross the river if I could, and proceed directly to the camp of the Indians, which was situated about thirty-five miles west of the river, near the city of San Fernando.

Having arrived at the town of Eagle Pass, I received from the Alcade of Piedras Negras, opposite said town, and from the citizens of the Rio Grande generally, the warmest assurances of aid and support, by both men and means, in my efforts to serve our common country, as well on that of our republican neighbors, by the destruction of a band of savage outlaws, which has long infested our frontier, murdering our wives and children and depredating upon our property.

On the 1st inst. I crossed my men—part at this town and part a few miles below, on a sort of ford, which, on account of high water, we had great difficulty in swimming our horses. On the 3d I resumed my march onward to the Indian encampment, at the head of 111 rangers and volunteers. At noon we encamped on a small stream ten miles west of the Rio Grande, where we refreshed ourselves and horses. Up to this time the Mexican authorities and citizens had shown us much kindness, and evinced their good wishes as to the success of the expedition, and even volunteered to enlist under me, but none were received.

After resting it an hour or two, we marched on towards San Fernando, beyond which were the Indian camps. Having proceeded some ten miles along the highway to the city, over a widely extended prairie, about three in the afternoon, while marching leisurely along, we descried three horsemen approaching us from a mot of timber about a mile to the northward. At first these men were not noticed, we supposing them to be Mexican herdsmen—but on their approaching within two hundred yards of us, we discovered them to be Indian chieftains, ready dressed and painted for battle; and they were evidently striving to decoy us from our position.

Forming my men in a line along the road, I waited for the enemy to begin the battle—for by this time large numbers of them had emerged from the timber, seemingly with the intention of attacking us; they soon spread out in front of us, and to our right and left, to the amount of several hundred horsemen, and commenced to fire upon us. About this time one of our men fired on a chief, about two hundred yards distant, and broke a leg of his horse. Perceiving that the enemy, composed of both Indians and Mexicans, were trying to outflank us, I ordered my men to charge, which was executed in fine style, and thirty of the enemy were slain.

Whilst making our charge, the left flank of the enemy which extended for near a half mile, came in on our rear and opened on us a very severe fire, during which four of our gallant men were killed. The front and right flank on which we charged, after a galling fire, fled before us, leaving us in possession of the position which it was our object and determination to gain. Then we discovered that our enemy numbered some six or seven hundred, as all their footmen were concealed in the timber, and had not advanced in view on the prairie. My man formed in a strong position beneath the bank of a small creek, on which the enemy had been encamped and their whole force coming up against us, we continued the battle for about three hours, when they fled in the direction of San Fernando, leaving, as we heard this evening, some eighty-five killed, and with the loss of one hundred wounded. This we learn from some Mexicans who were engaged in the battle, and from other sources since my report to his Excellency, Hon. E. M. PEASE.

The same Mexicans have also informed me that the actual number of our enemy was 750 men. After the retreat of the enemy, which was about dark, we, supposing that they would come on us again before day with large reinforcements, fell back to the Rio Grande, where we would be safe from any number of men and any quantity of artillery they might bring against us.

Approaching the town of Piedras Negras about sunrise, we took possession of it, and now occupy a position opposite Eagle Pass, on the west bank of the Rio Grande.

The men who were killed of my command are W. H. CLOPTON and AUGUST SMITH, of my company Rangers. WILLIS JONES, of Captain HENRY'S company, and H. R. HOLLAND, of Captain BENTON'S company of Volunteers. The men wounded are JOHN GARDNER, dangerously, of Captain HENRY'S company, Captain NAT. BENTON, slightly, and 1st Lieutenant HENRY B. KING, slightly.

PATTON, slightly, and EUSTACE BENTON, mortally, of my company.

It becomes me to say that Captains HENRY and BENTON demeaned themselves gallantly throughout the conflict, and it gives me much pleasure to remark that to them is attributed in a great degree the success of the action.

Adjutant WILLIAM A. PIPES conducted himself with admirable coolness, and gallantly won for himself a character as a soldier of good nerve. I overlooked the omission of the name of Adjutant PIPES in my report to Gov. PEASE, and am glad to correct the error here.

Of Lieutenants WM. KYLE and WM. TOM, of my company, and Lieuts. BROWN and HOUSTON TOM, of Capt. HENRY'S company, and HENRY B. KING and CHARLEY BENTON, of Capt. BENTON'S company, all I can say is, they acted as men should act during the engagement. My men—rangers and volunteers—conducted themselves with commendable bravery during the entire action, with two exceptions, who ingloriously fled from the battle field and crossed the Rio Grande before they stopped.

I am now occupying the town of Piedras Negras, opposite Eagle Pass, and intend to hold the position until reinforced from the settlements. The Mexicans have treacherously betrayed us by pretending to favor our expedition against the Lipans, and attempting to draw us into a snare at our late battle-ground, which would have succeeded but for the bravery of my men against overwhelming odds.

I informed the prominent men of this place this morning that we did not come here to fight the Mexicans, but to wish and exterminate the Indians, and that we do not desire to fight them, although they have killed and wounded several of our best men. I have told them that they must deliver up to us the Indians, otherwise the Texans will make them responsible for the murder of their wives and children, and the depredations upon their property. It is now clear that they continue with and protect the Indians. I have tried to explain to them the injustice of their course, and have advised them that we will invade their country and burn the last of their towns, if they continued to protect and fraternize with this band of outlaws, whose hands are still reeking in the blood of innocent women and children, who have recently fallen on the soil of Texas, beneath the tomahawks of relentless savages. We succeeded taxes of their property until we found them fighting side by side with the Indians, whose demoniac hands are still wet with the blood of Texas women and children. And we have since troubled nothing save what was necessary for our own support and safety. Had we supposed the Mexicans would have united with the Indians against us, we would never have crossed into their country with our number of men—but we are now here, and intend to hold a footing until something is accomplished. The Mexicans must either deliver to us our Indian enemies, or abide the consequences that will hereafter result to them from the perfidy which has already been exerted.

Fellow-citizens of Texas, we want you to come to our aid. It is for you, your wives and children, that we have already exposed our lives, and are still determined to fight. It is for you, as our friends, neighbors, and countrymen, that some of us have fallen and others yet bleed. It is for you that we have come here to shed our blood and sell our lives, and we ask you if your brethren shall be slain by Mexicans and savages paltily without any effort on your part for vengeance.

We are well fortified here, with means for our protection, and have support on hand enough to shield us from destruction till we receive reinforcements. We have brought all our wounded with us, and they are well cared for at the hospital at Eagle Pass. Our dead shall be brought in, and receive decent interment on American soil. We are in hourly expectation of an attack from a thousand Mexicans and Indians, but we can whip them. Again, I call on you for assistance for the sake of your individual protection and that of your common country. The Indians say they are determined to kill as they go, and they cross the Rio Grande for your settlements almost weekly. If they are not exterminated, any hour may ring the death-knell of some of your kindred and friends.

There will be no safety for your frontier settlements hereafter. The Seminoles, Muscaleroes and Lipans, are all determined to scourge Texas with blood and outrage, so long as they remain unchastised. We forget all these tribes yesterday, and, as we learn, the celebrated Seminole Chieftain WILD CAT.

Men of the frontier! come then and help us. Let none come but those who will and can fight. If you come, come quickly; and come well prepared.

J. H. CALLAHAN.

Another Terrible Storm on Lake Michigan.

Wreck of Several Vessels and Loss of Life.

A very heavy gale from the North-East sprung up during Saturday night, and raged with great violence, till Sunday morning. The propeller Alleghany, with a large cargo of goods bound for this port, came into our bay, during the height of the gale, and seeing no light in the Harbor Pier anchored under the lee of the North Point. Here, she rolled out her smoke-pipe, and though with shelter ahead, commenced dragging. As she was disabled by the loss of her smoke-pipe, she could not use her steam, and continued to drag till she went ashore, a short distance north of the wreck of the Schoolcraft. The tremendous sea lifted her far up towards the beach, and she lay yesterday within 100 feet of the shore, and her hold full of water and the sea making a clear breach over her. She will go to pieces. A part of her cargo will be saved in a damaged condition.

The schooner Forster, belonging to Mr. ELDERS, of this city, with 60,000 feet of lumber, capsized off this point, the crew escaping to the shore in a small boat. The schooner Rover is high and dry near the Government pier. The propeller Omer Pasha and one or two vessels are aground between the piers, but will be got off without damage. The propeller Niagara got in, all right, just before the gale commenced.

The Alleghany belongs to the American Transportation Company, and is uninsured. The goods, we presume, were fully insured, in this city and in Eastern Companies. The extent of the loss is not yet fully known, but it must necessarily be heavy—say $75,000, upwards.

ASHORE.

The following vessels are ashore at this port:

Schooners Rover, near South Pier; J. P. Forster, near North Point; Harvest, near North Point; Orleans, South Government Pier; brig Julia Dean reported ashore near Skillagalee.

FLOATING OFF.

The schooner Norway, schooner Emma and bark Quebec were laying off at anchor riding out the gale and doing well. The Norway had thrown her deck load of lumber and spars overboard.

LOSS OF SCHOONER ORLEANS.

This vessel went ashore south of the Government Pier about 2 P. M. on Sunday. Capt. J. DOUGLASS, CHARLES BRONCK, first mate, and a man whose name we could not learn, were drowned in trying to reach the shore. A boat from one of the revenue lying near, was manned by Capt. E. S. STONE, Capt. MCKITRICK of the Hope, OLE THOMPSON, WM. YOUNG of the Tyrant, and Capt HARVEY of the Globe, and the lives of the rest of the crew and those on board, six in number, saved. It was a gallant and daring act, and nobly performed.

One of the men on the Perseverance had his leg broken in trying to save the lives of those lost on the Orleans. This man is a poor sailor, and depends upon his labor to support himself and family, and he is disabled by this accident, and our citizens should subscribe and make up a sum to provide for Winter. Let it be done at once.

Had the life-boat been on hand as it ought to have been, instead of being locked up at least a mile from the vicinity of any danger, the lives of those men could have been saved; and we would suggest that hereafter it be put where it will be serviceable and under the control of men who can man and use it as intended.

VESSELS IN PORT.

The following vessels came safely into port during Saturday night and Sunday in the midst of the gale:

Schooners Indus, Lark, Rainbow, Toledo, Perseverance, Wild Rover, Transit, Syracuse.

Brigs Arabian, Globe.

Propellers Niagara, Bradbury, Edith.

The propeller Bradbury came in contact with schooner Rainbow, after getting inside the piers, and carried away her forward upper cabin. During the gale, Saturday night, she was obliged to throw overboard a lot of iron, &c, on her decks, consigned to Sheboygan.

The schooner Orleans belonged to Chicago, and was loaded with timber for our harbor improvements, and shingles and shingle bolts for Chicago.

It was a wild night on the Lake, and we fear that we shall hear of other disasters.

NAVAL.

Launch of the U. S. Steamship Wabash.

In noticing the launch of the United States steamship Wabash from the Navy Yard, Philadelphia, on Wednesday last, the Pennsylvanian gives the following description of the vessel:

"The beauty of the hull and its apparent strength, was the subject of general remark—extreme length, over all, is three hundred and one-and-a-half feet; between perpendiculars, two hundred and sixty-two-and-a-half feet; from knight-head to taffrail, two hundred and eighty-four feet four inches; at the load line, two hundred and seventy-one feet; and the tread of her keel is two hundred and fifty-nine feet long; the extreme breadth of beam is fifty-one feet four inches, and her depth of hold, from the gun deck, is twenty-six feet two and a-half inches; and from the spar-deck, thirty-two feet seven inches. She measures three thousand two hundred tons. Her armament will consist of forty guns, of the following calibre: two twelve-inch guns on her spar deck, working on pivots, one on her quarter-deck, and the other forward. She will also carry fourteen eight-inch guns on her spar-deck, and twenty-four nine-inch guns on her gun-deck.

Her machinery is in a forward state, at the Southwark foundry of Messrs. MERRICK & SON. It consists of two engines, with horizontal cylinders, each being seventy-two inches in diameter, each piston having a stroke of three feet, working directly on the shaft of the propeller, so as to effect fifty revolutions of the wheel per minute. The propeller is to be of brass, seventeen feet four inches in diameter, with a pitch of twenty-three feet. It is to be a true screw, with two heads, and will weigh about 20,000 lbs. The engines are designed as auxiliary to the sails, and the propeller is, therefore, to be so arranged that it can be hoisted out of the water, so that the progress of the ship when under sail, will not be impeded by the wheel dragging along through the water. A compartment is therefore provided within the body of the stern to contain the propeller when not required. The boilers are four in number, upon a plan patented by D. B. MARTIN, the Engineer-in-Chief of the United States Navy. They are 11 feet high, 13½ feet wide, and 15 feet long, each having five furnaces, with grates seven feet long. The interior is furnished with horizontal brass tubes, 3 inches in diameter, and 3½ feet long, and there are 1,300 tubes in each boiler, making a grand total of 5,400 tubes. These tubes are manufactured for the purpose, by the American Brass Tube Works of Boston. The boilers are to be placed athwart the vessel, occupying a space of 31 feet wide by 30 long, including sufficient space for the fire-room. This will leave about 10 feet on either side of the coal bunkers. There will be a single smoke stack, 8 feet in diameter, and 50 feet high, made on the telescopic principle, so that the height can be reduced to 30 feet. The keel of the Wabash was laid on the 13th of October, 1854, so that her construction has occupied but little over a year."

Later from Tampico.

By the arrival of the schooner Star, Capt. GAMMON, at New-Orleans, we have been placed in possession of intelligence from Tampico to the 4th inst.

Capt. GAMMON reports that the British brig Faithful, of Liverpool, bound from Tampico to Continescolcos in ballast, took fire on the 6th ult., when just outside of the Tampico bar, and was entirely destroyed. Fortunately no lives were lost by the catastrophe.

Capt. GAMMON reports that the schooner Wing of the Wind, Capt. PEARSALL, from New-York, was outside Tampico bar, bound in, on the 4th inst.

A new paper, entitled the Tamaulipeco, has been started in Tampico. In its issue of the 30th, it announces that on the previous day Gen. JUAN B. TRAZONIS took possession of the military command of the place. Certainly, it says, no one has ever performed that thorny and delicate duty under more ominous, more critical, more difficult, and more exceptional circumstances than those which presented them to him. Yet, without an established Government to recognize, and which might put an end to such disorder and anarchy as were prevailing, toward about at venture like a bark without compass or rudder, the situation of affairs, the Tamaulipeco says, could not be more sad or more desperate than it was. There being no plan to adopt, the Republic was converted, it says, into a field of strife, and divided into fractions or sections; and everybody was assuming command according to his situation and the resources he could count on. To rescue the place from the effects of such a state of affairs as this, every effort of all good citizens would be requisite. It is to be remembered, however, that this was written sometime previously to the intelligence which we have received from the capital of Vera Cruz, announcing the election of ALVAREZ to the Presidency, and his appointment of a Ministry.

From the papers of the 16th, we learn that some few citizens had been taking it upon themselves to endeavor to abrogate the Ceballos tariff which had been declared in force under the plan of Ayutla, and otherwise to assume authority not conferred upon them by the citizens. The latter accordingly called upon the City Council to meet and take steps to prevent these proceedings. The Council, however, did not meet and gave the citizens reason to lose all confidence in them. The citizens then held a meeting themselves and proceeded to remove the objectionable members of the existing Council, and appoint others who immediately entered upon their duties.

Many acts of lawlessness are recorded, but none of any such important results as to call for a notice at our hands; and it is to be hoped that by this time matters are looking a little more satisfactory for the citizens of the place.

☞ Three eminent poets have new volumes in the press of THOMPSON & PETERS, which will be given to the public next month. LONGFELLOW'S Song of Hiawatha, in nearly printed, and will occupy a paper. The author of Festus has sent over his new book, and that is nearly ready also. It contains three long poems, and their titles are: "The Mystic," "A Spiritual Legend," and "A Fairy Tale." ROBERT BROWNING'S new volume of poems has been christened Men and Women, and that is also on the eve of publication.

[Advertisement.]

☞ Churches, manufactories and families requiring a steady, powerful and economical light,

THAT CANNOT EXPLODE,

at one-fourth of the expense of candles or burning fluid, are invited to examine and test my

PATENT FOUNTAIN LAMPS

and

FOUNTAIN OIL.

Every student and economist should have one.

MATTHEW VANDERBEDOF,

No. 20 Frankfort-street.

[Advertisement.]

☞ RICHARDSON & BOYNTON'S Warming and Ventilating Warehouse, No. 374 Broadway. The special attention of the trade and others is invited to our assortment of heating and ventilating apparatus, comprising every variety of the latest and most improved patterns of furnaces, ranges, registers, ventilators, &c., including five sizes of BOYNTON'S Self-Cleaning Furnaces, an entirely new article, worthy the attention of these interests.

[Advertisement.]

RANKIN'S OLD STAND,

No. 104 Bowery.

HOSIERY AND UNDER-GARMENTS,

WARM, DURABLE AND ELASTIC.

Those wanting the best goods at the lowest prices will buy of the importers and manufacturers,

A. RANKIN & Co., No. 104 Bowery.

Established in 1843.

[Advertisement.]

WHERE IT A BOOK—The thousands sold season after season would astonish the reading public; as it is RAY'S stocking knit Undergarments the wonder season, because of their excellence of material, beauty of styles, superiority of make, and lowness of price.

JAMES E. RAY, Manufacturer and Importer of Merino, Woolen and Electrical Silk Undergarments and Hosiery, No. 108 Bowery, near Grand-street.

[Advertisement.]

"Virtue is amiable, mild, serene,— Without, all beauty, and all peace within."

☞ So shall it be with every man who wears one of these soft, warm, elastic stocking-knit undergarments. Sold wholesale and retail at McLAUGHLIN'S Shirt and Furnishing store, No. 232 Greenwich-street, corner of Chambers street. Undergarments of every description, gloves, &c.

[Advertisement.]

☞ In order to become general favorites your goods must not only be the best, but also the cheapest in the market, such are RAY'S unrivaled Stocking Knit Merino, Woolen, and Silk Undergarments for ladies', gentlemen's and children's wear. Call, examine, purchase and enjoy. RAY'S Family Stocking Knit Undergarments Manufactory, No. 108 Bowery, near Grand street.

Teachers' Association.

The City teachers will hold their monthly meeting for October on Saturday evening, in the Hall of the Board of Education. A report will be presented by the Library Committee, and an essay read by WM. T. GRAFF, Esq., late Principal of Ward School No. 17. The subject, Is Teaching a Science? will also be discussed.

[Advertisement.]

☞ HOLLOWAY'S PILLS are famous in cases of termination of blood to the head, and save the lives of thousands who suffer from dyspepsia, liver complaints and bilos. Sold at the manufactories, 80 Maiden-lane, New-York, and 244 Strand, London, and by all druggists, at 25 cents, 62½ cents, and $1 per box or pot.

[Advertisement.]

THE NEW PEN AND PENCIL CASE (LOWNE'S Patent,) lately issued by WILMARTH, No. 44 Maiden Lane, is fast superseding the use of all others. Its beauty and durability, as well as its convenience and simplicity, will commend it to the trade, while the mechanical ingenuity displayed in its invention is well worthy an examination.

[Advertisement.]

CHANDELIERS.—The attention of buyers is solicited to our stock of Gas Fixtures, at the Warerooms, Nos. 85 and 87 John-st. Our designs are entirely new and original, and well worthy of examination by the trade. MITCHELL, BAILEY & Co., Manufacturers.

[Advertisement.]

R. J. STAFFORD'S OLIVE TAR.—Pain cannot exist where this great electrical remedy is applied.

Sold at 50 cents a bottle by all druggists, and at the Company's Dépôt, Nos. 22 and 24 New-street.

[Advertisement.]

PURDY'S NATIONAL THEATRE.—To-night, Mr. J. R. SCOTT is to appear at this house as "Don Cæsar de Bazan." The drama of "Ireland as it is," and pantomime of "Magic Pills," making up the entertainment.

[Advertisement.]

☞ A beautiful complexion and a perfumed breath may both be acquired by using the "Balm of Thousand Flowers." As a dentifrice it has no parallel. Price only fifty cents. For sale by all druggists.

[Advertisement.]

EVANS' CLOTHING WAREHOUSE, Nos. 66 AND 68 FULTON-STREET.—Fashionable dress and frock coats, $8; blue dress coats, $8; splendid black cloth Shanghai overcoats, $12; ribbed Beaver overcoats, $5; Cassimere pants, $3 upwards, &c., &c.

[Advertisement.]

READ

THE OLD HOMESTEAD,

YOU WILL LIKE IT!

[Advertisement.]

☞ HYATT'S Patent Lights, No. 120 West Broadway, New-York. See advertisement on fifth page.

[Advertisement.]

BLAKE'S PATENT FIRE-PROOF PAINT, No. 119 Pearl-street. See advertisement in another column.

MARRIED

In this City, on Thursday, Oct. 25, at No. 7 West 31st-st., by Rev. Dr. Adams, WILLIAM BREMNER, of Alcester, Eng., to HARRIET L. HARRACE, of this City.

In Harlem, on Wednesday, Oct. 24, at the Dutch Reformed Church, by Rev. J. O. Reynolds, THEODORE MAGE, Esq., to Miss JULIA MOLENHOR, all of Harlem.

In this City, at the Clinton Hotel, N. Y., by Rev. E. H. Chapin, LEVI G. KNAPP to Miss ANGELINE E. STURDEVANT, all of Brookfield, Conn.

In this City, on Tuesday evening, Oct. 23, by Rev. E. F. Hatfield JAHURE, E. PLUMMER, of this City, to Miss PHEBE A. SMITH, of Hoboken, N. J.

In Brooklyn, on Wednesday evening, Oct. 24, at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. JESSE S. CARMAN to Miss MARY E., daughter of Divine Burtis, Esq., all of the above place.

In Brooklyn, on Wednesday, Oct. 24, by Rev. Mr. Wood, of the Sands-st. M. E. Church, Mr. ANDREW J. JESSUP to Miss PHEBE ANN GRIFFITH, of Brooklyn.

At Rath, Steuben County, N. Y., on Wednesday, Oct. 17, by Rev. Alonzo Gregory, EUGENE MULLIGAN, of New-York, to Miss SOPHIE, third daughter of the late W. W. McCay, of the former place.

DIED.

In this City, on Wednesday, Oct. 24, Hon. ROBERT H. MORRIS, Justice of Supreme Court.

The friends and relatives of the family are respectfully invited to attend the funeral, from the residence of his father-in-law, Marcus Monroe, at Astoria, on Saturday afternoon, the 27th inst., at 2 o'clock. The steamboat Keuwenee will leave Peck-slip at 1 o'clock.

In this City, on Thursday morning, Oct. 25, ISAAC COLLOID, aged 51 years.

The friends of the family and those of his sons, James, John P. and Benjamin Colford, are respectfully invited to attend the funeral, at his late residence, No. 311 Bowery, this (Friday) afternoon, at 1 o'clock P. M.

In this City, on Thursday, Oct. 25, ANNA MATILDA, only daughter of George and Matilda Fielding, aged 3 years, and 1 month.

The relatives and friends of the family are invited to attend her funeral, this day (Friday) inst., at 1 o'clock P. M., from the residence of her parents, No. 134 East 6th st.

☞ St. Louis papers please copy.

In this City, on Thursday morning, Oct. 25, SARAH JANE, wife of Thomas Glazier, in the 20th year of her age.

Friends and acquaintances are invited to attend her funeral, from No. 8 Dutch-st., on Saturday, 27th inst., at 2 o'clock P. M.

In this City on Wednesday evening, Oct. 24, CATHERINE, widow of the late Commodore J. Chauncey, U. S. Navy, aged 78 years.

Her friends, and those of her sons, John S. Chauncey and Rev. C. Chauncey, are respectfully invited to attend her funeral, this (Friday) afternoon, at 4 o'clock, at St. Mark's Church.

In this City, on Wednesday morning, Oct. 24, SAMUEL O. MAYNARD, aged 16 years and 19 months.

The relatives and friends of the family are respectfully invited to attend the funeral, from the residence of his mother, No. 251 Carmine st., this day (Friday), at 3 o'clock P. M.

In this City, on Wednesday, Oct. 24, STEPHEN G. CRUMBING, son of Joseph and Susannah M. Dunn, aged 6 months.

The friends of the family, and those of his grandfather, Thomas Cumming, are invited to attend his funeral this (Friday) afternoon, at 1 o'clock, from 127 Waverley-place.

In this City, on Thursday morning, Oct. 25, CALEB O. TERRILL.

The relatives and friends of the family are respectfully invited to attend his funeral, on Saturday, 27th inst., at 9 o'clock, from his late residence, No. 236 West 26th st.

A. NEWARK, N. J., on Thursday, Oct. 25, HARRIET PERRIN, daughter of Rev. William and Anna M. Johnson, aged 3 years and 6 days.

The funeral will take place from the residence of her parents, No. 128 Union-st., Newark, at 10 o'clock P. M., on Saturday, 27 inst.

At Winsted, Conn., on Wednesday, Oct. 24, HARRIETTE A., wife of J. P. Beckwith, and daughter of Elder C. Bass, aged 22 years.

SUDDENLY.

Died suddenly, on the 16th or August, of nervous apoplexy, FREDERIC J. HAUPTMAN, Esq., still in the prime of life. Deceased had resided in this country for upwards of twenty years where, by steady application to business, he amassed a large fortune, and lived endeared to a circle of cherished friends, by his amiable disposition and manly virtues.

British Packet, Buenos Ayres, S. A.

COMMERCIAL AFFAIRS.

For Markets see Sixth Page.

Sales at the Stock Exchange.....Oct. 25.

$1,000 North Carolina 6s	88½	50	Erie Railroad	c	8½
1,000 Ryle Bdg. of '76	60	50	do		8½
4,000 H. R. 2d mtg. bds	72	50	do	b3	8½
1,000 Ill. Cen. R. R. bds	82½	100	do	c	8
1 do	75	100	do	b3	8
1,000 do	b10	75½	100	do	8½
1,000 do	c10	75½	100	do	b10	8
1,000 do	c	75½	100	do	8½
1,000 C. & R. I. & R. R.	90	100	do	c	8½
25 Phenix Bank	120	100	do	b10	8½
100 Canton Co.	34½	100	do	c	8½
100 do	s10	34½	50	do	8½
100 do	s10	34	100	do	8½
100 do	34	100	do	b10	8½
100 do	b10	34½	100	do	8½
100 do	b10	34½	100	do	8½
50 Nic. Transit Co	14½	200	do	s30	8½
50 do	c	14½	50	do	s30	8½
100 do	c	14½	100	do	c	8½
200 Penn. Coal Co	145	100	do	b3	8½
50 Old & Rock Island R.	67½	50	Harlem Railroad		11½
50 do	67	100	do	b10	8
50 do	b3	67	100	do	c	8
25 Panama Railroad	132	200	Reading Railroad		8½
500 Illinois Central R.	80	50	do	c	8½
200 do	80½	100	do	c	8½
1150 Cumberld Coal Co.	20½	100	do	c	8½
200 do	20½	100	do	b3	8½
100 do	20	100	do	b3	8½
100 do	c	20	100	do	b3	8½
100 do	s30	20	100	do	b3	8½
100 do	20	100	do	s30	8½
100 do	20	100	do	b3	8½
100 do	20	100	do	c	8½
100 do	20	100	do	b3	8½
100 do	20	100	do	s30